DRY ISSUE ENTERS THE INQUIRY OF SLUSH FUNDS

WASHINGTON, June 30.—(AP)—Turning its spotlight on the political activities of the association against the prohibition amendment the senate campaign funds committee learned today that it is paving the way for referendums on the wet and dry issue in six states besides New York and Wisconsin where elections have been ordered.

Captain William H. Stayton of Smyrna, Md., founder of the association, said these states are Illinois, Missouri, Colorado, California, Montana and Nevada, each of which has an initiative and referendum clause in its constitution. Petitions are now being circulated, he added, with a view to forcing the issue at the polls.

Appearing in response to a subpoena, Stayton occupied the stand during two sessions and under questioning by Senator King, democrat, Utah, told of the political activities of his organization and disclosed that it is a growing concern with 500,000 members and that its receipts now are close to half a million dollars a year, or about on a par with those of the Anti-Saloon league.

Senator Reed, democrat, Missouri, chairman of the committee, who has conducted the bulk of the examination since the inquiry began three weeks ago, stated he had been "slanderously" called a wet and so would turn over the questioning of Stayton to some dry member so that there could be no charge of any efforts to cover anything up.

FARMERS' MARKETING BILL IS READY FOR SIGNATURE

House Has Accepted the Senate Amendments—Way Has Been Cleared for Adjournment of Congress Saturday—Senate Has Agreed to Take Up the Rivers and Harbors Bill December 14, With Assurance of Final Vote Before the Christmas Holidays.

WASHINGTON, June 30—(AP)—Final action was taken today by congress on the administration cooperative marketing bill, the only farm relief measure to run the house and senate gauntlet at this session.

After rejecting, 158 to 65, a motion to send the measure to conference, the house without a record vote approved two senate amendments, and the bill now goes to the president for approval.

Sponsored by Secretary Jardine, it would create a division in the agricultural department to foster the development and work of farmers' cooperatives and appropriation of $225,000 would be authorized.

The bill was approved last night by the senate after it had rejected the Ross-Jones swelling bill endorsed by President Coolidge to which it had been proposed as a rider.

When it came back to the house today, Representative McDuffie, democrat, Alabama, moved to send it to conference. He was supported by a group of democrats and few republicans who opposed a senate amendment to eliminate naval stores from the commodities to be classified under the bill as "agricultural products."

The senate's export "debenture" designed to broaden the scope of the proposed cooperative division was accepted without debate.

ADJOURNMENT OF CONGRESS PLANNED FOR SATURDAY

WASHINGTON, June 30—(AP)—Adjournment of congress Saturday is planned by house and senate leaders.

The chief stumbling block to a getaway today, the rivers and harbors bill, was removed by an unanimous consent agreement reached by the senate to take the measure up on December 14 under limitation of debate that will assure a final vote before the Christmas holidays.

Immediately the house, whose calendar virtually is cleared, began preparations to wind by the end of the week. The house ways and means committee ordered a resolution reported fixing three o'clock Saturday as the hour of adjournment.

It will be reported to the house tomorrow with indications that it will be adopted without serious objection. It will then be sent to the senate, where leaders predict it also will be accepted without material opposition.

As soon as the disputants over the rivers and harbors bill had been pacified, senate leaders obtained unanimous consent for night sessions tomorrow and Friday to consider bills on the calendar.

The bill to provide a commission for radio control, was taken up today by the senate with its managers hopeful that it can be passed and an agreement reached with the house on its provisions before adjournment. The second deficiency bill which must be passed before the session ends was reported to the senate during the day, will be taken up tomorrow and leaders hope it will be in the hands of the president by Friday night.

With the house disposing of odds and ends, a wild wrangle for action on senators' pet measures is expected to follow disposition of the radio and deficiency bills. Senator Heflin, democrat, Alabama, is prepared to make a fight for an agreement to dispose of the Muscle Shoals question during the December session, but it is not expected that failure to arrange a definite program for such legislation would frustrate adjournment plans.

Rejected by the senate yesterday of the Fess farm credits bill and passage of the house cooperative marketing measure helped clear the legislative atmosphere for adjournment, but it was not until agreement was reached on the rivers and harbors proposal that leaders were able to plan with confidence for a wind-up of the session Saturday.

The rivers and harbors bill, with senate action indefinite, forced house leaders recently to abandon their program after adjournment today, a bloc headed by Rep. Madden, republican, Ill., chairman of the appropriations committee, mustering the votes to send the adjournment resolution to the ways and means committee.

The bill contains several highly controversial provisions, among them those for improvement of the Illinois river, linked as it is with water diversion from Lake Michigan, and for purchase of the Cape Cod canal.

Representative Tyson, the republican leader, declared in a statement that since the senate has reached an agreement on the rivers and harbors bill, the way seemed cleared for prompt adjournment.

"Personally I would be willing to stay here through the summer if any good purpose could be served by a continuance of the session," he added. "Nothing further can be accomplished on the agricultural subject however much we may wish to help. For obvious reasons it is the part of wisdom to put over other controversial proposals until the fall."

SUMMER SHUTDOWNS OF MILLS IN TEXTILE CENTERS.

BOSTON, June 30—(AP)—Midsummer shutdowns of mills in several New England textile centers announced today, were ascribed by manufacturers to seasonal depression in the cotton cloth industry, annual inventory requirements and the custom of declaring a July "vacation." Massachusetts cotton centers showed few actual mill closings but admitted in many cases a falling off in production.

The mills of J. and P. Coats, Inc., Pawtucket, R. I., closed down June 30 until July 6, giving the end of the financial year and the annual stock taking as reasons. I., announced that they would shut down July 2 to 10 days. These plants employ 1,100 workers in the manufacture of sheetings, shirtings and other goods. General curtailment was given as the reason for the closing.

The Manville-Jenkes company, of Rhode Island, also announced a curtailment program giving general business depression as the reason. The Globe Mill in Woonsocket and the Berkon mill at Georgiaville, R. I., owned by this company, closed tonight for a 7 day period. The Social and Nourse mills of the company, inc., Woonsocket will close Friday night until July 12. The company's mills in Manville and Pawtucket, it was said, will be closed only for the Monday holiday. Approximately 5,000 workers employed in the manufacture of cotton fabrics will be affected by this curtailment program.

JUDGE YEOMAN'S DAUGHTER IN WRONG WITH AUTHORITIES

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, June 30—Alice, the 17-year-old daughter of Judge Edward M. Yeomans of the superior court and resident of Andover, has fallen into the toils of the law. According to the Andover authorities complaints have been received that the young lady had been driving an automobile about the town without possessing a Connecticut operator's license. She has, however, a driver's license issued to her in the state of Massachusetts where she has been attending college and where the age limit is 16 years. The Bay State license is useless as the Connecticut age limit is 18 years and in addition the girl is said to have been driving under a Connecticut registration.

The arrest of Miss Yeomans has created considerable of a disturbance in the friendly relations of several Andover families. Suspicion as to the source of the complaints against the girl stands as the principal reason for the disruptions.

When Miss Yeomans, accompanied by her mother, parked her car on Main street in this city last Saturday, Constable Joseph Peck was moved to question her. He asked her for her driver's license and found that she did not have one for this state. Deputy Sheriff Allison L. Frink of Andover was in the vicinity and he became a witness to the conversation between Constable Peck and the girl. The girl and her mother were directed to the police station where the parties involved discussed the matter with Chief of Police Thomas F. Grady and Judge Frank H. Foss. After the conference according to Sheriff Frink Miss Yeomans and her mother were allowed to return home accompanied by a licensed operator. The statement was made if a warrant was issued by the local prosecuting attorney Miss Yeomans would be notified of such action.

Finding that the authorities here were apparently not intending to follow up the case Deputy Sheriff Frink got busy and secured a warrant from Grand Juror George T. Platt of Andover charging Miss Yeomans with operating a motor vehicle without possessing a Connecticut operator's license. The warrant was served and Wednesday forenoon arrangements were made to have the case tried before Justice of the Peace Mrs. Ruth Benton. The date was set for July 14 on account of the present illness of Judge Yeomans. Miss Yeomans has been a student at Dana Hall, Wellesley, Mass., for the past yedr.

Three local boys who were arrested for placing tie plates on the railroad tracks of the Hartford division of the New Haven road, at Stafford's Pond bridge, and in the path of a rerouted Shore Line express, were arraigned at a special session of the juvenile court of Columbia Tuesday evening. The tie plates had been thrown to one side by the engine of the train, known as No. 16. Evidence in the cases was presented by State Policeman Henry Heinold of the Stafford Springs barracks and Lieutenant Moran of the railroad police. The boys confessed having knowledge of the affair. One of them said that he found the two tie plates alongside of the tracks. He placed them on the rail and used them as a seat to put on his shoes and stockings which he had taken off to go swimming in the Willimantic river nearby. The boys said that someone told them that a dead horse had been found a short distance away and in their excitement to get to the place they had forgotten to remove the plates, having no thought for the possible dangerous results.

Justice of the Peace Hubert P. Collins he presided over the session was of the opinion that the tie plates were not placed on the rail with any malicious intent, although untold disaster might have occurred from the act. The three boys were found guilty of trespassing on railroad property. The one who admitted having placed the plates were fined $5 and costs, amounting to $14.08 and the other two lads were fined $2 and one dollar respectively, plus the costs. The parents of the youngsters were present at the trial. Grand Juror Joseph N. Clarke, prosecuted.

The sale involves the building in which the business is conducted and a parcel of land. Intending to continue at their vocation of teaching the owners have retained Philip Copeland, who was with Mr. Fenton for several years, to assist them. Mr. Fenton retains his residence at 287 Summit street. He purchased the property in 1892 and for a number of years conducted a grocery business in a building on the southwest corner of Chestnut and Summit streets. He sold the business to Frank P. Bradway some years ago.

One boy, Bert Roy, 15, was sentenced to the state reformatory and his companion was given a suspended sentence in the juvenile court here Wednesday. The boys had figured in an escapade, Friday night, June 18, when they broke into freight cars at Columbia Junction. They stole a quantity of eatables and early the next morning they helped themselves to a hand car and propelled it as far as Hop River where they left it standing on the rails. Passenger train No. 112 due at the local station at 6:45 a. m. knocked the hand car from the tracks. A few night later the boys again broke into freight cars at the Junction and stole a package of holiday torpedoes. Complaints about the explosion of these on Mountain street led to their arrest by the police. One of the pair made further confessions Wednesday to Captain Frank McLean. He admitted that they had broken into the Moose home on Pleasant street and committed depredations. Saturday night of last week. They had also attempted to enter the garage of Samuel Chesbro, nearby. The boy who was given a suspended reformatory sentence has been placed in charge of Probation Officer S. Arnold Peckham for six months.

WEATHER IS FAVORING, EPWORTH LEAGUE INSTITUTE

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC CAMP GROUND, June 30.—The third morning of the institute found the campers alert for a new day of study and sports. Fine weather has favored the gathering day by day. After a slight sprinkle this morning, the sun came out hot, making it the warmest day so far. A stirring breeze mitigated the heat to a considerable degree.

Rev. F. W. Gray of Burnside, had the morning watch at 6:30. Rev. Chester Hoyt directed the setting up exercises before breakfast.

The morning studies proceeded as usual. Rev. and Mrs. B. O. Campbell conducted foreign and home mission classes respectively. Prof. J. Homer Slutz proceeded with his lessons on stewardship; Chester Hoyt with his talks on the fourth department work.

Music in church and league was the subject of Russell Waite's instruction; while parliamentary instruction and community service were considered by Edwin Hughes, Jr., in their respective periods. Prof. George E. Mitchell taught general league methods, and lectured on John Wesley. Mrs. Waite instructed in Old Testament and Mrs. Hoyt in New Testament books. Miss Mabel Pollard continued her discourses on Junior League Methods and Mrs. Robert Bitgood hers on pageantry.

The noon hour in the dining room resounded with songs and shouts between mouthfuls, and such slogans as "Every day in every way the meals are better and better." Their are eight tables seating about a dozen each, with a larger one for transients.

Dean Spaulding announced at the noon hour that a game of baseball was scheduled between the ministers and young men of the institute.

Six of the institute professors are reverends and other ministers are on the ground, including the manager, Rev. N. B. Burton, of Putnam and Rev. Roger C. Stimson of Danielson. About a quarter of the "institopters" are young men.

Coterie

There were eight groups, according to numbers given on slips of paper. Each group had a "boss" who led in respective stunts. Each group had about eight minutes for each stunt or problem given. Then the groups changed entirely, going to differen places assigned to the different "bosses." It took all the evening and a great deal of amusement was afforded all the participators in the several places on the grounds.

Tables, a buffet, lanterns and a graphophone cabinet, which can be played by either winding or electricity. Various painted panels add to the beauty of the interior, all these things being of his own design. The occupants for the season are Mrs. L. R. Olin, son Walter, Mrs. Sadie Carpenter, Mr. and Mrs. P. He was then called to New York to be the recording secretary of the board of Foreign Missions of the M. E. church and died in that office in 1915. He was buried in Stafford Springs cemetery.

All the cottages named above are on Haven avenue which is on the extreme top of the hill, and considered as some of the finest on the grounds. It was named after Gilbert Haven, one of the bishops of the Methodist Episcopal church of a half century ago. Other avenues named for other bishops are Simpson, Foster and Janes. Wesley Circle is named for John Wesley, the founder of Methodism, and one avenue is named Cartwright after the pioneer Methodist preacher of the west, Peter Cartwright.

DANIELSON

INTERESTED IN LANDING FIELD IN DANIELSON

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, June 30.—If all goes well, a mail plane, inaugurating the Boston-New York service of the Colonial Air Transport, Inc., will wing its way over Danielson shortly after 8 o'clock this morning, bound for Boston. Thousands in this territory will be on the watch for it, not that aeroplanes are such an uncommon sight hereabouts, but because of the significance of this particular flight and the possibility it forecasts of Danielson having an emergency landing field for these and other planes in the not distant future and the time when planes of this or other services may make regular stops here.

On this epochal first flight of an established air mail service linking New England with the west, Governor John H. Trumbull of Connecticut, a director of the air mail company, will be a passenger, and the plane will be piloted by R. H. Wells. There is a possibility, it was stated Wednesday, that another plane will fly along with the mail plane, this plane piloted by Talbot O. Freeman, treasurer of the company and former commander of the Connecticut National Guard Air Service.

Irving W. Bullard of Danielson and Boston and vice president of the Boston chamber of commerce and president of the Colonial Air Transport, Inc., will welcome the arriving planes in Boston this morning and conduct Governor Trumbull and the other flyers to the Algonquin club, where they will be his guests at breakfast. Following the breakfast the party will be received at the city hall by Mayor Nichols.

Boston has made elaborate plans to mark the inauguration of this new air service. An air mail dinner is to be held at the chamber of commerce and Governor Trumbull and his party will be among the guests.

The official ceremonies will begin at the Boston airport at 4:45 this afternoon, when a formation of planes will ascend and circle the city. The U. S. Naval Reserve Air station at Squantum will send out another formation of seaplanes under the direction of the station commander. Fire boats will play high pressure streams into the air as another feature of the demonstration cannon will boom and a chorus of steamer and factory whistles will announce to the world that another great commercial step forward has been taken. A battery of artillery will fire a salute in honor of Governor Trumbull.

At 6 o'clock tonight the west-bound plane for Hartford and New York will take off from Boston and should be over Danielson not later than 6:30.

While in town this week Mr. Bullard was enthusiastic about the new air line that he has done so much to bring into being. He is now interested in the development of the emergency field here, a work that will be undertaken on the borough farm in the very near future.

It was announced Wednesday by Clifford H. Sarkweather, treasurer of the Danielson Trust company, that the institution has had a very satisfactory business during the first six months of 1926. The directors have voted the usual semi-annual dividend of 2 per cent. and an extra dividend of one per cent. in addition to carrying a substantial amount to the surplus and profit account.

Remodeling of the bank interior, so as to greatly enlarge it, is far advanced and the entire work will be completed by August 1. The work has been underway since January. The commercial department is now located on the north side of the bank. Another section is given over exclusively to the savings department and still another section is reserved for the Christmas club department. There is a greatly enlarged working space for the bank's corps of employes and the new quarters will provide additional coupon booths, a private room for use of customer's of the bank and private quarters for bank officials, in addition to the director's room and other appointments.

The lobby and some other sections of the bank are to have a new type of hard rubber tile flooring.

MAY PREVENT SALE OF THE WHITESTONE MILL

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, June 30.—There is a possibility that the Whitestone mill property at East Killingly may not be sold at auction after all to satisfy a tax lien of the town of Killingly. The town has taken certain necessary steps leading to such a sale, but it was stated Wednesday that the Providence interests, that own the property may decide to pay the taxes due and retain it.

The overdue taxes, dating back to 1918 and including the one recently due, with taxes and such court costs as have been accumulated recently in preparation for selling the property at auction amount probably to more than $800. The taxes alone, with interest, amount to approximately $728. A recent appraisal of the property, made by court authority, was $1,100.

In this summer of 1926, the property is little more than a ruin. The mill itself was destroyed by fire on a winter night several years ago and the old stone structures that were once used as dwellings and for other purposes are in a very bad state of disrepair. Yet at one time the Whitestone property was one of the most prosperous in this corner of the state. It enjoyed a great boom during the Civil war. In the years since passed it has changed ownership a number of times. The most valuable thing about the property at this time is the water privilege.

The Forthightly club, Mrs. E. H. Keach, president, has recently paid for painting and papering the parlor at the Old People's home, also furnished a large rug for the same. Mr. Frederick Sibley has given $100 to redecorate the room at the home, occupied by his mother, the late Mrs. Preston Sibley.

The Goodyear church will be closed through the months of July and August. At the closing service before vacation Rev. Charles A. Downs preached on "Life's Adjustments." The text chosen was Luke 18: 22, "Follow Me".

The hot wave that set in Wednes-day brought a renewal of a wish by many that Danielson had some handy place where outdoor bathing might be enjoyed. The rivers hereabouts are dangerous. Bathing is not allowed in either Alexander's lake or Quinebaug lake, respectively sources of water supply for the villages of Goodyear and Wauregan. This leaves only Moosup pond, which is a fine place for bathing and well equipped with bathing conveniences, and Old Killingly pond. Reaching either of these latter places entails several miles of travel, something that many would like to avoid and something that makes it impossible to go for a swim when they have only a limited amount of time.

elson fire department, is again ready for service after leaving the hands of the painters. It was spic and span at the central fire station Wednesday and the new varnish has so hardened that it can be used without any serious injury to the new job. There has been no time since the work of refinishing the big truck was undertaken that it could not be used in a fire emergency, but it is regarded as pleasant and good fortune that no calls requiring its use came in. The hook and ladder truck is now receiving attention and will be bright and snappy looking within a short time.

Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 at the undertaking rooms of A. F. Wood on Academy street, funeral services for Mrs. Emma L. Wood were conducted by Rev. Fred M. Buker of Anthony. R. I. Numbers of relatives and friends attended the service. Burial was in Westfield cemetery. The bearers were Hollis Young and Stephen Young of South Killingly, Loren Hopkins of Washington, R. I., and Eugene Frederick of Providence. A. F. Wood was in charge of the arrangements.

Monday, July 5th, being a holiday, all deposits made in our savings department on or before July 6th, will draw interest from July 1st. The Windham County National Bank, Danielson, Conn.—adv.

School officials made a visitation Wednesday afternoon to various school properties within the town with a view to determining what necessary repairs will be required before the opening of the schools next September.

Material is being run out at the mills of the Attawaugan company and employes dispensed with as rapidly as there is no more work for them today. The future of the three plants of this concern, an industrial mainstay to Killingly for more than half a century, is a matter of grave concern to the people of the town as a whole.

When the trout fishing season of 1926 came to a close Wednesday evening, it was remarked by some anglers that no reports had come in during the entire three months relative to anyone catching brown trout that were released in the upper reaches of the Assawaga river last summer.

Some of the marketmen and grocers agreed among themselves Wednesday that they would close at noon today (Thursday) inaugurating with the first of the month the Thursday half-holiday season that will continue through July and August.

About the best news pertaining to the cotton textile industry in Killingly that has been heard in months is that the Quinebaug company will operate on full time during July, August and September. This plant has been running every other week for months. It employs several hundred hands.

Heavy traffic in Franklin and ad-joining streets this week and a congestion of people about the railroad tracks there each night is giving officers a considerable problem in preventing accidents involving people or property.

Deputy Sheriff Charles E. Ayer of Dayville has purchased during the current week from George W. Webster of Boston, formerly of Dayville, four dwellings, three storage buildings and two parcels of land, all located in Dayville. Sheriff Ayer has already resold a considerable portion of his purchases, one of which was the large frame building standing near the railroad track on the state road leading out of Dayville to Attawaugan.

Thermometers that are a bit care-less as to the records they make had readings as high as 90 degrees Wednesday afternoon, such records made where the instruments were exposed to the rays of the sun.

PUTNAM

CONCLUDES PASTORATE OF TWENTY-FIVE YEARS

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, June 30—Concluding a pastorate of 25 years Rev. and Mrs. C. A. Lindevall of North Grosvenordale have gone to New Haven to make their home. Mr. Lindevall will engage in Missionary work for the conference-at-large during the summer. Beyond this his plans are unsettled.

Mr. Lindevall came to North Grosvenordale from Philadelphia, October 13, 1905, to be pastor of the Swedish Lutheran church. He found the church burdened with a debt of $7,000 and under his direction the amount was soon paid.

The large mills of Grosvenordale offer almost the only means of employment in the village and as the children of the parish have grown to young manhood and young womanhood many of them decided on other means of livelihood than the mill. This has necessitated their leaving the village to secure the kind of employment desired. Sometime ago it was decided to unite the Swedish churches of Auburn, Mass., and North Grosvenordale and the Rev. Arthur Hjiem of Worcester will hold services at North Grosvenorade in the afternoon.

Mr. Lindevall is but 62 years old. He has worked earnestly and faithfully in the parish and has taken a great interest in the village. Besides his wife he has four daughters.

SISTERS OF HOLY GHOST TO UNVEIL A "CALVARY"

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, June 30—The local members of the Sisters of the Holy Ghost on July 1 will unveil at St. Mary's cemetery a "Calvary" in that section reserved for the burial of members of the religious order, to the memory of the late Mother General Marie Alvarez who died at the mother house of the order at St. Brieux, Brittany, on August 11, 1925. It has been erected by Rev. Charles F. Bedard of St. Mary's church by direction of Bishop Nilan of Hartford.

The late Mother Marie Alvarez, who was greatly loved and revered in the order, came to America in 1903 and founded the first houses of the order in New England. She returned to the Mother house in France in 1907.

The local house of the order was recently the recipient of a visit from Monseigneur Du Bold de la Villarabel, Archbishop of Rouen, primate of Normandy and Chevalier of the Legion of Honor, who arived on the "Paris" on his way to the Eucharistic Congress at Chicago.

Archbishop de la Villarabel made the voyage in company with Cardinal Charost, Archbishop of Rennes and his vicar general, M. Lamy and Monseigneur Landrieux, Bishop of Ijon. Archbishop de la Villarabel will revisit Putnam before sailing for France early in July.

Mr. and Mrs. Mayo D. Hersey of Pittsburgh, Pa., recently spent several days with Mrs. Hersey's parents, Judge and Mrs. W. M. Warner of South Main street. They sailed this week from Boston with Mr. Hersey's father and mother for a six weeks tour of England and France.

Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Andem of Grove street are at their summer cottage at North Beach Hampton, N. H., for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ackley of Wey-mouth, Mass., have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Eben Holden on Grove street. Mrs. Ackley is a sister of Mr. Holden.

The Putnam Rotary club is to hold a ladies' night at the Putnam Country club this (Thursday) evening, July 1. There is to be a golf match at 3 o'clock in the afternoon with Omer Milot and Fred Prince as captains. Supper will be served in the club house at 7 p. m. after which there will be dancing and cards. Music for the dancing is to be furnished by Paul Whitman's orchestra.

Funeral services for James S. Wil-son were held Tuesday morning at 10:30 at St. Mary's church and burial was in St. Mary's cemetery. Mr. Wilson has been in failing health for some time and died at his home on Walnut street on Sunday. He had lived in Putnam for the greater part of his life and had been a weaver at the Wheelock Woolen company and at the French River Textile mills for a number of years. He is survived by his wife and one brother, Mark Wilson.

Wednesday was the opening day of Camp Woodstock, the Y. M. C. A. camp at Black pond. There will be from 125 to 135 boys to this first camping period coming from Hartford, Tolland and Windham counties. A leader's group has been in training there since last Friday.

The enrollment figure for the first two-weeks period is likely to be repeated during the second and third periods, taxing the camp to its capacity all summer. The governor of the state will continue the governor's day custom and will visit and make a talk at Camp Woodstock on July 25.

Delphis Dupre, aged 78 died at his home on Mill street on Monday morning. He was born in Canada but has lived in Putnam for many years. He was an employe of the local textile plants for the greater part of his adult life. Funeral services were held from St. Mary's church Wednesday morning and burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Briefs will be filed in the superior court in the action of the Connecticut Trust company, trustee, against George M. Coffin, receiver of the First National bank of Putnam and others, a continuance of the legal controversy following in the wake of the collapse of the bank of which G. Harold Gilpatric was cashier. Robinson, Robinson and Cole, counsel for the receiver, had filed a demurre to a substituted complaint and rather than make oral arguments briefs are to be filed. The suit was brought for the recovery of $34,765.06 of the estate of Joseph Cutler. W. Cutler the plaintiff claims were sued by Gilpatric as cashier of the bank, to purchase bonds for the state of Connecticut. The demurrer holds that Gilpatric merely used the machinery of the bank in paying his obligation to the state of Connecticut with the funds of the Cutler estate.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bruce and family have moved from School street in this city to Midvale, where Mr. Bruce, an engineer on the New Haven railroad is now located.

Miss Velma Armstrong of Franklin, Mass., has been the recent guest of Miss Dorothy Keefe of Ring street.

Miss Margaret Dolan of Chapman street and her niece, Miss Catherine Geary of Portland, Conn., who is spending the summer with Miss Dolan, are the guests of relatives at Providence.

Miss Alice Stevens of Fremont street is the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Stevens at East Thompson for a short stay.

Rupert Geissler, who is located at Chili, South America, writes that June 21 was the shortest day of the year for them and with the cool season coming on. On his first leave of absence he is going to Valaparlso to see some green grass and vegetables which are entirely absent where he is located.

WINDHAM

A salad and strawberry shortcake supper was served to about 100 persons Friday night at the Congregational church in charge of the officers of the Ladies' Aid society, Mrs. Gertrude Arnold, with an able corps of assistants. The color scheme of the tables was yellow and white and daisies were used for decorations. People were present from North and South Windham and Willimantic. The proceeds were about $46.

Commencing next Sunday the services at St. Paul's church will be held at 10:45 a. m. instead of in the afternoon through July and August.

Rev. H. P. Page, former chaplin of the Connecticut legislature, will preach in the Congregational church, Sunday.

A cooling drink for the glorious Fourth

WHATEVER you do on this holiday—wherever you go—remember "Canada Dry." It is the coolest, most refreshing drink of all in summer-time.

You will like its delicate, intriguing flavor. The gleam and sparkle of it. The joyous exhilaration in its delicate, enticing bouquet.

But there is a deeper and even more substantial reason than this for the popularity of "Canada Dry"—something that makes men and women prefer it above all other ginger ales.

Do you know what it is? It is the healthful zest of "Canada Dry." The keen, brisk refreshment that comes from pure ingredients. The way it lifts you up and invigorates. The very spirit of the northern pines that waits for you in every glass.

No other ginger ale will bring you this same refreshment because there is no other ginger ale like "Canada Dry." It is a real ginger ale, made from real Jamaica ginger—the purest, finest, best ginger ale that it is possible to make—the choice of great hospitals in this country and in Canada—a safe drink even for children. Keep it in mind for your Fourth of July holiday.

DISCOURTEOUS TOURISTS

In connection with the appeal for the display of courtesy toward the many tourists who will visit New England this summer, a North Adams resident writes the Springfield Republican to present the other side of the matter.

He has recognized the desirability of just such an attitude and he has endeavored to put it into operation on several occasions in recognition of the fact that he lived along side the road and desired to be a friend of mankind. But his experiences were not pleasant. He certainly encountered a bad run of tourists to say the least for the first one, who asked to use his telephone to summons aid for a disabled car, carried off an overcoat when he departed. The second borrowed a lantern to locate car trouble and took it with him when he departed and the third made a wreck of the lawn when given permission to do some repair work on his car, while frequent are the cases where others deposit their rubbish on his lawn as they pass.

It is said if you are going to make friends you must be friendly. Likewise if tourists are going to receive courteous treatment they must expect to shed a corresponding amount of courtesy themselves. By no means can the distribution of courteous treatment be a one sided affair if it is going to be maintained for any length of time.

It is difficult to believe that the North Adams man's experience is that of all others, although it is a well known fact that picnickers and auto parties frequently make a nuisance of themselves, even to the extent of having privileges denied them, just because they fail to recognize the rights and feelings of those upon whom they are disposed to impose.

Extending the glad hand of welcome to the tourists is a commendable thing from the standpoint of encouraging such visits, but there should go with it a 50-50 attitude on the part of the tourists. They have quite as good reason for appreciation what is done for them gratuitously as others have for extending them every courtesy. Even the automobilists whether tourists or residents of nearquite as good reason for appreciating advance the mistake of returning evil for good. It reacts upon the whole army of motorists.

INSPECTION JUSTIFIED

Some of the good effects of the campaign which has been opened in Massachusetts by Registrar of Motor Vehicles Goodwin are already coming to light, as well as the criticisms.

In order to put a stop to driving without licenses the registrar has been designating certain hours when all traffic was stopped throughout the state for the purpose of inspection, the aim being to locate as many as possible of the 15,000 unlicensed drivers believed to be operating within the state.

Complaints have been made that it has caused confusion and serious traffic jams but against such a situation it has been revealed that some drivers do not consider a license necessary in a free country, others are driving who cannot read and many are driving stolen cars. During the hour's examination in Boston seven of 18 cars reported stolen were recovered, and in recognition of the fact that the registrar is in earnest in his effort and plans to continue it, the registry office in Boston had three times the usual number of applicants the following day.

The situation which the Massachusetts registrar is trying to relieve is a serious one. To continue to tolerate it is highly unjust to those who respect the requirements. It simply means that there is a recognized ducking of the law and no effort made to overcome it just as long as nothing is done. It is good present day reasoning for those who are paying license fees to argue that if there are 15,000 to favored as not to be bothered for dodging their fees others might as well get the benefit of similar practices. The situation will gradually grow worse unless it is checked. This the registrar fully understands and from the results that he has gotten in the various sections of the state he has reason to consider that the inspection is thoroughly justified.

With more enforcement of that kind in connection with all matters dealing with the use of the highways there will be eliminated more of the menaces, the establishment or greater safety and greater respect for regulations and the rights of others.

SIMPLY JUSTICE

When making laws there are frequently many angles which are not taken into consideration. The laws either reach too far, unintentionally, or not far enough and thus necessitate changes to meet conditions which experience shows to be desirable.

How this works was brought to light in a glaring manner in connection with many of those who fought under the flag of this country in the World war, and yet who, because they did not return at the same time their buddies did, found it necessary to come back as immigrants in order to get into the country.

Even though they had never been admitted to citizenship it was not right and no one undertook to claim that it was, but it was the law, and there was nothing else to do but to set about making the necessary changes in the law. There was a situation which had not been contemplated when the immigration law was enacted, and it was of course not provided for in connection with the quota requirements and yet it was ridiculous to think that we would accept young men to fight for us without giving them a chance to come back into the country and enjoy its privileges after the fighting was over.

The result was the introduction of the Reed act which provides for the admission of such a soldier to this country if he presents his papers to an American consul showing that he has an honorable discharge. In such a case the quota requirement is lifted and only this week there was a case of a major of the expeditionary force taking advantage of just such a legal right, although he had never been made a citizen of this country.

Because many who served in the army, but who would be subjected under normal conditions to quota restrictions, desired to visit former homes or relatives in Europe after the war they found themselves overstaying their limit and faced with the quota obstacle until the provision was adopted whereby they are given a year within which to return to this country simply by making application. It is only what is dictated by fairness and full advantage will unquestionably be taken of it.

NOT GUILTY

It is a relief to learn as a result of thorough inquiry on the part of the department that there was no firing to the report of the master of that yacht Aloha off Watch Hill. According to the report to the master of that vessel no was fired upon while proceeding to Newport. The supposition was that the shots came from a coast guard vessel that was seeking rum runners, but when it is disclosed that there was no such vessel within that area at the time, and the Aloha was unable to furnish the name or number of the boat doing the firing, it indicates that either the Aloha was mistaken about the firing or else it was done by other than a coast guard vessel.

There has been enough instances where bad judgment was used in firing Aloha, which has never been in without having it happen in the case of the well known and fine appearing Aloha, which has never been in and has no prospects of entering, the smuggling business. Had it been commanded to stop by a vessel of recognized authority there is no question but what there would have been compliance but from all accounts the firing was like a bolt from the sky which was preceded by no hailing and accompanied by no more fuss than would have been the case had it been the backfire from an internal combustion engine.

It is of course with much satisfaction that the coast guard can report that whatever the mysterious firing was none of its boats was responsible, and it is equally gratifying to others to know that none was involved in what has appeared to be an entirely unwarranted procedure.

A TIMELY TIP

There are some who will not require the advice of the American Automobile association when it warns its members to stop the practice of carrying flags on their cars when going to Canada, for it has already been declared illegal in the state of Rhode Island for one or a cluster of flags to be displayed on the radiator. It is held that it interferes with the driver and is not permitted.

For others the warning is one that Canada would raise a howl over it, but in view of the fact that it is to be expected that the flags of countries visited should be displayed along with the flags of the country represented under such circumstances the suggestion to make this recognition or to make no display at all is in the interest of good judgment.

It is not to be supposed that there is any intention of stirring up ill feeling by the display of the American flag on the front of automobiles when going into Canada. Probably no thought is given to such a matter, and yet the fact that it can create resentment and a misinterpretation of motives is enough to steer clear of creating wrong impressions. And those who are tipped off in advance can be expected to give the matter the needed attention. The markers on the cars will give a clear understanding where the autoists are from, and if there is a desire to show a real pride in the flag it can be done in a way that will avoid criticism and hard feelings.

MARTYRE TO THE CAUSE

(Scene I.—The breakfast nook in the south shore district.)

Mrs. Clody—"Do you know, dear, I'm actually ashamed even to think of the Sloanes."

Clody (from behind his newspaper)—"Ashamed to think of the Sloanes! What have they done?"

Mrs. Clody—"You aren't paying any attention, or you would know I didn't mean that I was ashamed of the Sloanes. I'm mortified at the way we have treated them. We have owed them a dinner invitation for perfect ages. I don't know what they must think of us."

Clody—"I know what I think of them. Of all the unconscionable bores they are in class A. I hope you aren't thinking of inviting them over very soon."

Mrs. Clody—"I certainly am. We must have them this week. I will say I'll be glad when it's over. Getting up a dinner party wears me to a frazzle."

Clody (unsympathetically).—"Well, if you must frazzle I suppose nothing will prevent you."

(Scene II.—Living room in the Sloane's north side home.)

Mrs. Sloane—"I've been waiting, Merton, dear, till after dinner and you were a little rested to tell you that we are invited over to the Clody's to dinner for Saturday evening."

Sloane—"Wanted to break it to me gently, eh? Well, my dear, cheer up, we don't have to go."

Mrs. Sloane—"Why, of course, we have to go. If we make any excuse to stay home Mrs. Clody will simply set another date. I can't see why you always make such a fuss when you're invited out to dine."

Sloane—"I must say I don't see anything very hilarious in climbing into my 'soup-to-nuts' and hustling almost to Indiana for a Clody dinner. You know yourself that it will be duller than dish water."

Mrs. Sloane—I know nothing of the kind, and, even if we don't find it very thrilling, we have to go. Certain social obligations are imperative."

Sloane—"Such as eating the Clody's filet of beef with mushrooms. I suppose we can't get out of it, but I'd rather have corn beef hash at home. For Pete's sake, don't hang around there till midnight. Remember, my dear, that good men are scarce, and I need my sleep."

(Scene III.—The Clody drawing room on the evening of the dinner.)

Mrs. Clody—"How nice it is to see you, Mr. Clody and I were saying a few days ago that it's really sad how little people can see of their friends in such a large city as Chicago. I do hope you didn't mind coming out on such a cold night!"

Mrs. Sloane—"No, indeed; it was a pleasure with such an objective, and as for the cold, why it's just the time to go south: This is such a pretty part of the south side."

Mrs. Clody—"We think so, and we do love having our friends come out here. You just must come oftener."

(Scene IV.—In the taxi driving home.)

Sloane (yawning widely)—"Well, thank goodness, that's over. Why didn't you make a start to leave earlier? I asked you to. Well, anyway, tomorrow's Sunday and I can sleep this party off. Think of spending $8 or $9 in taxi fare for a mournful evening. Still, perhaps it's worth the price to know it's over. We are immune now, aren't we, for a long time?"

Mrs. Sloane—"Yes, they won't invite us again until we have had them."

Sloane—"Had them! Heck, do we have to have them to dinner?"

Mrs. Sloane—"Of course, dear, quite soon. I believe in returning hospitality promptly. Why, Merton, any one would think you were in pain the way you groan."

Sloane—"I am."

(Scene V.—The Clody's drawing room.)

Clody (putting out the lamps and emptying ash trays)—"Well, now that you've had them. I hope that you're satisfied. One more evening with them and I'd have the sleeping sickness. I could hardly keep my eyes open the last few hours. I must say the Sloanes don't exhilarate me."

Mrs. Clody—"That's too bad, dear, because Mrs. Sloane spoke of having us over at their house quite soon."

Clody—Heck! Is there no end to this vicious circle?"—Chicago News.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Theodore Christianson, who has been honored by the republicans of Minnesota with renomination for the governorship, was born in Lac Qui Parle county, Minnesota, in 1882. His career is typical of that of many others of Scandinavian descent who have risen to prominence in public life in the northwest. After working on farms and attending a country school, he entered the University of Minnesota and was graduated in 1906. Three years later he completed the university law course. In 1909 he became the owner and publisher of a country newspaper. His career in politics began in 1914 when he was elected to the lower house of the state legislature, where he continued to serve until his nomination and election to the governorship two years ago.

Stories That Recall Others

Jackie Was Lonesome

Jackie is a manly little fellow. Sometimes when his mother has a business errand she had an older boy named Arthur stay with him and apparently Jackie has taken a great liking to him, for a few days ago he said:

"Mother, won't you go away again so Arthur can come to stay with me?"

The One Casualty

Two veterans were reminiscencing of the days of the Civil war and particularly of those engagements in which they had participated. The youngster of the household listened carefully.

"Do you remember, Bill?" said John, "do you remember that day our company rounded the hill next to that little river bridge where the rebels had fixed up an ambush right across the river and got a gun or two in position and opened fire on the road behind us just as soon as we rounded the point. We couldn't go back that way and were thinking of charging the bridgehead when a whole regiment at the other side of the bridge opened fire on us. I tell you it got hot in there next to the river. The only thing we could do was to turn our horses and ride right up that river bluff with them rebels shootin' at us every jump. Shells exploded, round shot tore up the hillside and the minnie balls flew over us as thick as hail. It was awful. An awful day, I tell you. One of the hottest engagements we had during the whole war."

"Yes," replied Bill, no less excited than John, "I remember. And do you know, John, it has always been a mystery to me to know why some of the boys didn't get hurt."

John was nonplused only for a moment. "Well," he said, "you remember about Phil, Bill? Horse shot clear through. The ball went through the horse and lodged in Phil's boot heel. Phil dug it out with his pocket knife after things cooled down a little. Probably has it yet." And the old gentleman grew silent for a minute, probably thinking of Phil and whether he was still alive.

"But the horse," shouted the youngster, "What became of the horse?"

"Th- horse?" exclaimed the old men, glaring about, indignant at the interruption. "The horse? Oh, the horse died, of course."

At a spring wedding in England of a coal truck driver and his bride, their friends showered them with coal dust instead of confetti. The bride's gown of damning, orange material suffered considerably. Many Cockney friends of the couple lifted the pair to a motor truck laden with coal and when the truck moved off, the dusty newlyweds were held on the sacks of coal by six stalwart coal porters.

From Small Beginnings

Samuel Richardson, the Printer, Founder of the Modern Novel

One would hardly think that the ability to write love letters would aid in making one famous. Samuel Richardson, a London printer, about 50 years of age, had unusual skill in writing love letters. Moreover, he liked to exercise that skill. As one might expect of any one who enjoys writing love letters, Samuel Richardson liked the company of women. As one might not expect, however, Samuel Richardson did not write love letters for himself, nor did he pay court to the young women who daily surrounded him. He had by nature the two great characteristics that mark all good writers; a keenly observant mind and a love of writing.

His father had been a humble carpenter, who had had high plans for the boy, but who could earn too little money to give him the education he wished. Instead of sending the lad on to study for the ministry he had to send him to work. Samuel Richardson was only 16 years old when he settled down, with only the scantiest education, to become a printer. By the time he was 20 he had become such a good printer that he felt he could set up a shop of his own. He continued to prosper in the printing business and made new advances in position.

Being of a very kindly nature he had consented on many occasions to write letters for young people. Little by little he drifted into the writing of love letters. This made him intimately familiar with the thoughts of young people, and at the same time gave him practice in writing. At the age of 51 he wrote a novel, in the form of intimate letters, concerning the life of a girl called Pamela. The first of all modern novels was a great success. Several years later Richardson wrote the long story of Clarissa Harlowe, and still later Sir Charles Grandison. As might be expected, one who knew women as well as he knew them could write surpassingly good novels.

Thus, quite unsuspecting his greatness, the humble printer laid the foundations for the modern novel of character and of truth to life. For that reason, Samuel Richardson is often called The Father of the English novel."

He died in 1761 at the age of 72.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Quebec's Experience

Mr. Editor: There is a large class of people so obsessed with the idea that prohibition is the root of all the present evils and the only remedy is the restoration of light wine and beer-beer with a strong kick—for example—bootlegging could thus be done away with. So thought our big neighbor Canada! Listen to her sad lament! Reports from the province of Quebec state that bootlegging is rife there even under the dispensary system. Liquor is being sold by the bootleggers at one-half the price asked by the Quebec commission.

So serious is the situation that one newspaper commenting on the Quebec commission's forecast surplus of $6,000,000 suggests a reduction in the price of liquor as a means of cutting down bootlegging.

German newspapers also report many bootleggers in Berlin. Germany has never had prohibition. Prohibition can not be the cause of this evil.

Never has our beloved country been as prosperous as today. Never has the laboring class enjoyed so many of the real luxuries as under prohibition. Why make a change?

How aptly Shakespeare put it!

"Tomorrow, and tomorrow, and tomorrow
Creeps in this petty pace, from day to day,
And all our yesterdays have lighted fools
The way to dusty death."

OF SPECIAL INTEREST TO AMATEUR PHOTOGRAPHERS

In the early days of the automobile one had recourse to the blacksmith for his repairs, and, such repairs! The same with kodakery in the days of its infancy—the user of a kodak was looked upon with disfavor by the professional photographer and he had to do the best he could by himself. Even today the majority of professional photographers do not look upon the amateur with too kindly an eye as they believe the kodaker injures their business. Fortunately there are a few professional photographers broader minded, who look upon the kodaker as an aid to his business, because he knows that the more people use cameras, all the more people will realize how difficult it is to obtain good pictures and are more apt to patronize the good photographers only, in their locality, when they want good portraits.

I am one of the latter up-to-date professional photographers and welcome the kodakers to my studio, always glad to give them the best advice I can, in order to aid them in getting the best results obtainable with their cameras.

During this coming season I want all users of kodaks to take advantage of my free information bureau, maintained at my studio. No expense to you and you are not obligated in any way.

Yours for better pictures

Where the Pigeons Went

Who sits in judgment must beware
Lest prejudice make him unfair.
—Old Mother Nature.

At first Farmer Brown's Boy, sitting on the end of the shelf on the face of the cliff where was the home of Killer the Duck Hawk and Mrs. Killer, was so delighted with having reached the nesting place of these rare birds, and with seeing the baby Duck Hawks, that he gave little thought to anything else. But presently he began to examine the surroundings to discover if possible what these baby Hawks had been fed. Almost the first thing he discovered was a pigeon feather. He knew it instantly for a feather from one of his own pigeons. He found a few other pigeon feathers on the shelf beside the young. There were some blue jay feathers and some other feathers that he was not sure about.

Climbing down, he looked on the little ledge immediately below the shelf where the nest was, and there he found more pigeon feathers.

There was a dark scowl on the face of Farmer Brown's Boy. For a moment he was very angry. "So this is where my pigeons went to" he exclaimed. "Well, I guess you've eaten your last pigeon of mine that you ever will eat. Now that I am up here I'll just put your young Killers out of the way and there will be no more killing of my pigeons to feed you."

He climbed back up to the little shelf of rock, where the three young Duck Hawks were, and once more sat down on the edge of the shelf, his feet dangling off into space. Again there came to him that feeling that he was on the edge of the world. And as he sat there a change came over him. He forgot those young Hawks, to feed whom Killer had taken his pigeons. He began to dream. Of course they were daydreams, but sometimes daydreams are quite as wonderful as sleep dreams. Looking down from the edge of the world, it seemed to him that the world was his. He wondered what it would seem like to be able to float off into space, looking down on all the Great World with the freedom of the air, with the right to go and come as he pleased. It came over him that there is no freedom like the freedom of the hawks; the freedom of great heights above the world. And as he dreamed, he had a change of heart. Somehow he no longer thought of those pigeons of his. He began to think of them much as Killer the Duck Hawk must have thought of them. They were for those who could get them. Certainly Killer couldn't have looked at them in any other way.

Killer alighted in the top of a tree not 50 feet away and Farmer Brown's Boy had a splendid chance to see him. He looked what he was—every inch master of the air. He was built for speed. The very shape of his wings showed this. He was master of the air and he knew it. He asked no favors from any one. True, he was a killer, but when Farmer Brown's Boy came to think this over, he had to admit that in this respect the Duck Hawk differed little from many others. It was simply that the Duck Hawk killed what man himself preferred to keep for his own killing.

"I suppose Killer," said Farmer Brown's Boy, speaking softly, "I suppose that a good many people would say I ought to kill these babies of yours, and that's what I intended to do when I first saw them. But I do not feel that way now. You kill for food, or not at all. You take only such life as is necessary to support your own life and the life of your children. I suppose in the course of a year you may catch a few ducks. At most, it cannot be a very great number. But because you get those few, men say that you should be shot on sight and those same men will kill many ducks in a day, and do it day after day. The hunter begrudges you the single duck you may take and he himself will kill 25 in a day, so be it the law allows him to. Since I have sat here at your home on the edge of the world I have learned to see farther and more clearly and I am glad.

POETRY

A Song of Sadness

I love the dark—it brings the stars
And all that day denies,
And takes away how much that mars
From weary ears and eyes,
And lets us sink into ourselves
And find that laner shrine
Where pain, nor sorrow, ever delves,
And heart can never pine!

I love the dark—none know how much—
Howe'er its wand deceives;
Asleep, with Time I have no touch,
Forgot that king of thieves!—
And often comes a dream with wings,
The fairest ever seen,
Which waft to me the longed for things
The lovely might-have-been.

I love the dark—its dusky hand
With fingers cool and calm,
Its gentle breezes soft and bland
That lull with murmured balm;
And as they soothe us of our fret,
Still kinder, bring in place
Of vanished joys and long regret
Love's old remembered grace.

I love the dark—no dazzling blush
Walls on the spirit's gaze
That sees far clearer in the hush
Through many a baffling maze;
The brain hath often error spun
That heart refused to mark,
And Truth and Faith have often won
Their victories in the dark.

I love the dark—then timid hopes
Fresh courage seem to find;
Unmocked by light a vista opes
With future garlands twined.
What though the vision falsely glows,
And blossoms but in vain?
Sometime—somehow—somewhere—who knows?—
It may not bloom—to wane.
—Samuel Minturn Peck in Boston Evening Transcript.

Firewood

We cut you into kindling,
We bind you up in brooms—
You who have fenced the whirlwind
And tossed your leafy plumes.

A tree must know compassion
In every outstretched arm
To welcome little children
And keep them safe from harm.

Some of you are knotted
From wrestling wiht the wind,
Others in sheltered places
Are fair and satin-skinned.

Summer brings you armfuls
Of green leaves to hold,
And winter, snowy blankets
For nights are long and cold.

I love you all the year through,
But I love you best of all
When you have shed your burdens
And are freest—in the fall.

At a filling station a mile or so farther on they learned something of interest. "That dog's trained to play dead whenever he runs close to an automobile," the filling station attendant told them. "An' I bet that boy has collected 20 dollar bills from people who have thought the dog was killed."

SITE FOR NORWICH TOWN SCHOOL IS PUZZLE FOR TOWN SCHOOL BOARD

The question of securing a site on which to place the new school building at Norwich Town, for which the special town meeting on May 26 voted an appropriation of $225,000, has come to be quite a puzzle for the town school board, it is understood.

According to the latest information that has been obtained regarding action so far taken by the school board, it is understood that at a recent meeting in the office of Waller F. Lester, president of the board, available sites were discussed, two being the most favored. These are both on West Town street. One is the McNally property, just south of the Tavern garage, and the other is the Geer property, which is just a short distance farther south than the McNally property. Both are on the same side of the street as the Tavern garage, which is well known as the site of the old Adams tavern.

As to the McNally property, it is understood, that the cost of grading here has been estimated at so high a figure as practically to eliminate this from further consideration. In the case of the Geer property the price asked for enough land for the school house and its surrounding recreation room is so high as to be prohibitive. In the opinion of some of the members of the school board, who declare that the figure set is tremendous for real estate in that part of the town. What price has been asked for other property has not been disclosed.

It is understood that the board is about equally divided, some holding that either one of these properties ought to be decided upon and the others being firmly against spending so much money for the site. In this situation the board is understood to be hoping that some suggestions will come to the mfrom citizens offering available sites at a reasonable figure.

New London	49	16	13	27
Tolland	11	2	2	18
Windham	25	20	19	76
Totals	648	306	275	42.5

Fort Terry, Plum Island, where Connecticut students go, is exceptionally well situated for this camp, Colonel Gerhardt said. A few miles off New London it has many facilities for helping to fill the spare time of the young men who attend. There is good fishing and swimming, a baseball diamond and four volley ball courts, a weekly dance and two or three moving pictures a week. Athletics of all kinds are much encouraged, the colonel pointed out. Prizes have been donated for the winners of the baseball series, athletic events and the boxing matches.

There are still about 200 vacancies for Connecticut men at Fort Terry, Colonel Gerhardt said, which may soon be filled from Massachusetts or New York. The entire month of training and sport is entirely free to the young men who attend and there are no military obligations attached Colonel Gerhardt said.

BINGHAM'S ANCESTOR WAS BENNINGTON WATER CARRIER

According to the Washington correspondent of the Waterbury American appointment by Vice President Dawes of the senate members of the commission to help Vermont celebrate the 150th anniversary of its independence and the Battle of Bennington a year from this summer reveals that at least two members of the commission, Senator Bingham of Connecticut and Senator Dale of Vermont, belong there by inherited right. The third member, Senator Green of Vermont, has left town and his record cannot be secured.

The great grandfather of Senator Bingham, although too young to fight with the militia in the battle, carried water to the troops. While the senator's great great grandfather, according to family tradition, was one of the older men of the community, too much along the years to fight, who prayed in the Benington meeting house for a successful outcome of the battle. Both of these ancestors went to Bennington from Norwich. Mr. Bingham's great grandfather, by the way, was one of seven brothers born at Bennington, most of them migrated to the west, and they did not all get together until the youngest was 60 years old. Senator Bingham has seven sons himself.

BROCKETT BROTHERS IN SUIT OVER PROPERTY

Hearing of evidence in the $25,000 action brought against Clarence L. Brockett and Rosina M. Brockett of New London and East Lyme, by Walter D. Brockett of New Haven, in a committee hearing in the superior court at New London was resumed Tuesday and continued Wednesday before Atty. Charles L. Smiddy, appointed by the superior court. The suit was started in November, 1924, and is based on the alleged failure of the defendants to meet certain payments due on property known as the Giants Neck farm in East Lyme, and failure to pay back loans made at intervals by the plaintiff. Atty. Arthur M. Brown of Norwich and Atty. Charles E. Roberts of New Haven are representing the plaintiff. Atty. Frank L. McGuire represents the defendant.

It is alleged in the complaint that in November, 1903, the plaintiff and defendant, together with Lawrence B. Brockett, purchased from John L. Severance, a 200-acre farm tract east of Bride brook, East Lyme, for the price of $20,000, the purchase price to be divided in three equal shares among the purchasers.

Lawrence Brockett, by a quit claim deed, transferred title to his share in the property to Walter Brockett. It is also alleged that Clarence Brockett was advanced a loan of $6,666.66 by his brother Walter, to pay his share in the property. Other claims are made by Walter Brockett for payment of Clarence Brockett's share in improvements upon the property, and the payment of one-third of taxes and insurance charged against the property.

The defense counter claim amounts in damages to the sum of $70,000, alleging that the plaintiff has never shared with the defendant, revenue derived from the property, and that the plaintiff has failed to comply with certain contracts made between them.

BOY ON PICNIC WAS GRAZED BY AUTOMOBILE

As Mr. McGarry in his car was passing along Bentley avenue near the trolley terminal, Howard McGowan, 11 years old, member of a party from the Christ church Sunday school, darted out into the path of his car. Mr. McGarry stopped almost instantly and the auto's wheel barely grazed the boy's leg.

Mr. McGarry took him to once to a doctor where an examination revealed no injury. After a trip to the police station to report the incident Mr. McGarry gave the lad a dollar to spend.

Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle

KINSEY WINS HIS WAY TO FINALS IN MEN'S SINGLES IN WIMBLEDON PLAY

WIMBLEDON, June 30—(AP)—Howard Kinsey, the steady playing Californian, stood out as the hero of today's contests in the jubilee tennis tournament.

In a hard fought five set battle for a place in the finals of the men's singles Kinsey outplayed and outgeneraled the veteran Frenchman Jacques Brugnon, and won 6-4, 4-6, 6-3, 3-6, 9-7.

In the other semi-final in this division Jean Borotra outplayed his French teammate Henri Cochet, to become the American's opponent in the match which will decide the 1926 Wimbledon championship. The score in this contest was 3-6, 7-5, 2-6, 6-3, 7-5.

Kinsey's victory early in the afternoon was achieved in the presence of a huge throng. An interested spectator was England's Queen Mary and the former queen of the Wimbledon courts, Suzanne Lenglen, who has just abdicated because of poor physical condition. Both sat out the four hours of the battling which was necessary to decide the two men finalists.

All told, the American team staged three spectacular battles, to capture two mixed doubles and one singles, thus remaining formidable challengers in all the championships, as Richards and Kinsey had already won their way to the semi-finals in the men's doubles.

Kinsey, who was the first to reach the finals by his defeat of Brugnon, came from behind an apparently overwhelming lead in the fifth set to eliminate one of the three remaining Frenchmen in this class.

Equally spectacular, though on a different plane, was the victory of Kinsey and Miss Mary Brown ver Baron von Kehrling and Senorita de Alvarez, 6-3, 6-4, 6-2, thereby becoming the first semi-finalists in the mixed doubles.

In this match the American pair had lost the first set after carrying it to deuce, and had seen their Hungarian-Spanish opponents take four games in the second set before they were able to speed up sufficiently to win.

By comparison the victory of Vincent Richards and Miss Elizabeth Ryan over George Crole-Rees and Mrs. Marion Jessup, was a tame affair, the Americans winning in straight sets with the loss of only seven games—6-3, 6-4.

When Kinsey went into the match with Brugnon, it seemd as though on several occasions the plucky Californian must go down to defeat. With the point in the hands of the Frenchman five times in two games, Kinsey stubbornly refused to acknowledge defeat, each time fighting back to deuce and finally deucing the game six-all, and then see-sawing seven all, before taking two straight games for the match.

The day was not so successful for the tri-color. It saw the elimination of Cochet, favored to win the singles championship, while in the mixed doubles, France lost its representation through the defeat of Cochet and Mlle. Vlasto. The elimination of Mlle. Lenglen and Mlle. Vlasto by the American pair Miss Browne and Miss Ryan in the first round had already destroyed France's hope of the women's doubles.

Tomorrow will witness the staging of the finals in the women's singles, with Mrs. Molla Mallory meeting Senorita de Alvarez, and Didi Vlasto playing Mrs. L. A. Godfree.

The American contenders for the championships are: Kinsey, finalist, in the men's singles; Richards and Kinsey, semi-finalists in the men's doubles; Mrs. Mallory, semi-finalist in the women's singles; Miss Ryan and Miss Browne, semi-finalists in the women's doubles; Richards and Miss Ryan, fourth round, upper bracket, and Kinsey and Miss Browne, semi-finalists, lower bracket, in the mixed doubles.

ENGLISH AND ROSS MEET TODAY IN CONNECTICUT AMATEUR GOLF FINALS

EASTERN POINT, Conn., June 30—(AP)—F. K. English of Waterbury and F. D. Ross of Seguin, will battle at Shenecossett tomorrow for Connecticut's golfing crown, the state championship. They are the finalists in the four day tournament of the Connecticut Golf association.

The semi-finals, played this afternoon, produced by far the finest golf of the tournament, golf close to the par figures for the difficult Shenecossett course.

In winning his way to the finals, English was taken to the 21st hole before he was able to eliminate J. Sill, Jr., the Wethersfield star, who this morning put W. K. Reid, of Farmington, the medalist, out of the tournament. It was an uphill battle all the way for the Waterbury man, he being two down at the thirteenth hole. He evened the match on the 17th, however, and then came home with a victory on the 21st. Both men chalked up two birdies and English shot par on 17 holes and Sill on 13 holes.

Ross, in fighting his way to the finals eliminated J. J. Geohegan, the youthful Manchester golfer, who this morning eliminated H. B. Carey of Hartford. It was another battle from the first hole to the finish, with the break coming on the "hoodoo 13th hole" when the Manchester man drove his ball out of bounds, losing a stroke, and then landed in a trap. His golf after that point was not of the calibre that had carried him as far as the semi-finals.

The afternoon cards:

Sill, out 6 4 6 4 4 5 3 8 5 4—38.
Sill, in 4 3 5 5 5 3 3 7 4—39.
Out 545—14—91.
English, out 5 5 5 4 4 4 3 5 4 7—42.
English, in 4 3 5 5 4 3 3 4 4—35.
Out 544—13—9.
Ross, out 4 4 5 4 5 3 4 4 4—35.
Ross in 5 4 5 4 4 3 4 x x.
Geohegan out 4 4 4 3 4 4 4 4 5—36.
Geohegan in 4 4 5 7 6 3 5 x x.

Sill in his semi-final match started out like a winner, playing par golf on the first, second and third holes and capturing all three. They halved the fourth in four and English retained a hole on the fifth when he outdrove the Wethersfield man, reached the edge of the green on his second and went down in two for a birdie four. Sill missed his putt and got a five.

Sill again made it three up on the sixth when he reached the green on his drive with an iron and went down for a birdie two. English needed three.

Sill had a streak of bad putting on the seventh, rimming the cup twice, and English captured the hole, making it Sill two up. English then captured the eighth, making a par four, while his opponent, who was having trouble with a trap, needed five. English had his first bad break on the ninth, landing in a trap and embedding his ball deep in the sand in an attempt to get out. He needed seven for that hole while Sill was shooting par golf for a four. Sill was two up at the turn.

The 10th, 11th, 13th and 13th were halved, each man shooting par golf. English captured the 14th when Sill on his approach drove into the rough. English got a par four on this hole, making Sill, who needed a five, one up. The halved the 15th and 16th, both getting par threes on the 15th and birdie threes on the 16th.

It was at the 17th hole that the game was made all square and it resulted from a bad break suffered by Sill. On his approach shot, his ball landed close to a fence. It took him three shots, in which he was forced to shoot left handed, to get out. He went down in seven while English was getting a par four.

The game from then on to the 21st hole was a battle. They halved the 17th, 18th, 19th and 20th, but English gained his victory at the 21st when Sill landed into a trap on his drive an dthen found the rough on his approach.

Both Ross and Geohegan played par golf on the first and second but Ross made it one up on the third when he scored a birdie three. The match was all even again on the fourth, when Geohegan was shooting par golf and his partner was missing a three foot putt.

Geohegan was one up at the fifth when he shot a birdie four while Ross missed a putt and took a five but the match was again squared at the next hole when Ross was on the green in one and took two putts for a par three.

They halved the seventh and eighth but Ross took the ninth and was one up at the turn when Geohegan missed a putt. Geohegan came back with a par four on the 10th and again the match was even. They halved the 11th and 12th, and then on the 13th came the turning point in the game. Geohegan shot his ball out of bounds and was forced to take a 7 while Ross was making a birdie 4. The Manchester man again shot out of bounds on the 14th and Ross took that hole, making him two up.

Geohegan aided his partner in winning the 16th after they had halved the 15th. In putting, Geohegan's ball struck the ball Ross was playing, knocking it six feet nearer the pin. From that point, Ross was able to hole out and win the match.

In the bunker cup division, L. T. Smith, Jr., of Greenwich, will meet S. N. Pierson of Woodway in the finals tomorrow. E. G. Armstrong, of Goodwin Park will meet J. Regan of Farmington, in the finals in the fourth division; D. Cookrey, New Haven, and F. G. Patience, Sequin, in the fifth division; W. H. Booth, Shuttle Meadow, and G. H. Baldin, Litchfield, in the sixth division; F. S. Wilcox, Jr., Norwich and H. W. Barker, Brooklawn, in the consolation championship division.

Wilcox and Barker will play their 18 hole final match this morning.

A COOL KITCHEN all summer long!

Be cool!

Hot days are coming! Escape sizzling kitchens and wood or coal drudgery. Six famous cooks recommend the Perfection for cool cooking. Here's what they say.

"THE food gets all the heat—the kitchen none," says Miss Rosa Michaelis, New Orleans cooking expert. "In the Perfection burner," she explains, "the heat is confined directly to the bottom of the cooking pot. That means cool cooking!"

Mrs. Belle DeGraf, the San Francisco authority, suggests Perfection "top stove" cooking for hot summer days.

Least Time, Least Heat

"When I fried chicken, glazed sweet potatoes and boiled pineapple pudding," she relates, "I used only the top of the Perfection. The food cooked quickly and efficiently—and of course, the shorter the cooking time, the cooler the kitchen." That means cool cooking.

"Yes, and remember," adds Mrs. Kate B. Vaughn, famous Los Angeles Home Economist, "the least fire in your stove through the day, the cooler the kitchen. With Perfections no time is lost in heat generation because cooking begins with the touch of a match to the wick."

No Hot Extra Work

"Then, too, the Perfection saves a world of extra work," says Mrs. Sarah Tyson Rorer, pioneer cooking specialist of Philadelphia, "no wood or coal to carry in nor ashes to carry out."

At Battle Creek College of Home Economics, the nutrition expert, Margaret Allen Hall, speaks of still another "no extra work" point.

"The Perfection," says Miss Hall, "is easily moved from one room to another. Move it to the summer kitchen, out on the back porch—wherever it's coolest. You don't need to bake yourself while cooking meals."

Cool to Work With

The "single row" arrangement of Perfection burners gives you another advantage. Miss Lucy G. Allen of the Boston School of Cookery notices this. "With the Perfection," she makes clear, "there is no reaching across hot flames as with a gas or coal range. You stay away from the direct heat, yourself."

You can escape all those things that make summer cooking the most unpleasant of hot tasks. Your dealer will show you the Perfection today—from the one-burner model at $6.75 to the five-burner range at $120. Six famous cooks tested this stove thoroughly and now pronounce it ideal for hot weather. "Buy a Perfection," they say, "be cool!"

J., appeared on the principal streets of this city this morning seeking funds by the sale of artificial flowers, the money to go towards the strikers' fund. There were about a half dozen young women and two or three men that performed the task of obtaining funds and not until this afternoon were the solicitors stopped at their annoying practice. At a meeting of the city council last Monday permission was given the textile workers to solicit funds from pedestrians and stores. However, after the solicitors had been at work several hours, City Manager William A. Holt received so many complaints against the soliciting that he issued orders to Captain of Police Charles A. Finney that the soliciting come to an end and that the representatives of the strikers be ordered from the city.

When the drive was on for the Community Chest, and for which about $160,000 was subscribed, it was stated that there would be no further calls upon the public for contributions, no matter whatsoever the nature, as the chest would be ample to take care of any emergency. When the solicitors started their campaign for funds, especially for an out-of-town cause, the citizens quickly voiced their complaints by communicating with the city manager.

HEAVILY FINED FOR HIS PART IN SELLING BOOZE

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, June 30—Byron Noyes, who was detected selling booze at the beach, was fined $150 in the police court this morning. He was the agent of Mrs. Azzis in the matter and she too was complained against. When Noyes was arrested he "opened up" and gave the police the information they sought. The woman could not perhaps be convicted, but she agreed to pay the fine against Noyes and with that understanding the case against her was nolled. The arrest is believed to have put the Azzis woman out of the liquor business.

DRUNK LAST NIGHT NOW LOOKING FOR MONEY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, June 30—Eugene McCullen, an old man, who came here from Sag Harbor, is believed to have paid the highest price for a "drunk" of which there is any record here. McCullen declared when he appeared at the police station and sought lodging that he had $200 when he came here. He was too drunk to relate all the facts other than he might have left the money somewhere for safe keeping, but he believed he had been robbed. When he told his story in the police court today he was allowed to go that he might, if he had good fortune and he let someone who is honest care for his money, recover it.

Sergeant John Cavanaugh was detailed to accompany Prescott to the pier and after a brief search was made the automobile was found. The automobile was stolen from in front of Prescott's residence on the 19th inst.

There is hardly anyone who believes that Paddy Fenton, Poquonnoc road and for many months employed as watchman at the Sea Sled Manufacturing company, Groton, has been fouly dealt with, although no tidings of the missing watchman have been obtained since he disappeared about a week ago. Since Fenton disappeared a new phase of what might have caused him to so unceremoniously leave his employment, has appeared. It is stated that for a number of weeks the former Groton Iron Works, where the sled company is located, has been the scene of activities for bootleggers. It is claimed that several big dealers in the handling of liquor had been using the former iron works as a place to unload their cargoes after the liquor had been brought into port and once inside the manufacturing company yard, it was loaded into automobiles and carried to its destination. Now the story goes that Fenton must have had knowledge of the operations of the bootleggers and that he was finally induced to enter into their employ, and rather than make it known that he was to serve no longer as watchman, he decided to join the ranks of the bootleggers and leave without giving his employer notice.

Well Child Conferences

In summer, especially, it is important to weigh the baby frequently, and to practice care and regularity in feeding, and common sense dressing.

Small babies should show a fairly steady gain in weight, even during hot weather. Much worry and often sickness, may be prevented by keeping the children under the doctor's observation. This may be done at the Well Child' Conference, where once a month a doctor is on hand to consult with mothers and to examine babies and small children. Here a weight record card is given each mother on which the growth may be noted month by month.

The next conference, at Wauregan, will be held on Tuesday afternoon, July 6th, in Company hall, from 2 to 4 p. m., and at Moosup Thursday, July 8 in Franco-American hall from 2 to 4 p. m.

Broadway Theater

It is getting so that the modern fast-stepping flapper is very, very much of a problem to their mothers. The one in particular we have in mind is Roberta, the "dangerous" damsel in Headlines, the new Encore picture which is now showing at the Broadway theater. Roberta is about the wildest little blonde powder puff who ever graduated from college through a rear door. Roberta makes 'em wild, and then tames 'em.

Roberta, in this picture is Virginia Lee Corbin and her mother is Alice Joyce, who takes the part of a woman sob writer whose famous stories are being headlined in the metropolitan paper on which she works. Home from school, Roberta smokes and carries on as she pleases, while her mother, a widow, has to work overtime to cover up the advancing years which Father Time has written in wrinkles on her face.

Director E. H. Griffith, a former newspaper man has caught the glamorous spirit of the newspaper "game." The situation in which the sob writer finds herself is tenderly portrayed and the whole drama is enlivened by the jazz mad girl and newspaper characters who look and act their parts.

No members of any profession know better than those employed on the press what the screaming headlines mean to persons about which they are written, so the dramatic situations are made doubly tense when the newspaper folk begin to see vision of their own transgressions swept into print.

The excellent cast includes Alice Joyce, Malcolm McGregor and Virginia Lee Corbin.

Lieut. Commander Noel Davis, U. S. N. R., will attempt to beat Captain Rene Fonck, French ace, to the $25,000 Orteig prize for a non-stop flight from New York to Paris.

U. S. STEEL FEATURED MARKET

NEW YORK, June 30—(AP)—With U. S. Steel common soaring to the highest price on record at 144, the stock market was whirled upward at a faster pace today. Broadening public participated reflected growing confidence in the industrial outlook which was supported by exceptionally favorable reports from the steel trade and other basic industries. Total sales aggregated 1,681,200 shares.

Although the speculative spot light was focused principally on the premiere steel issue its place at the head of the procession was contested by other pivotal stocks, such as General Motors which attracted attention by its rise to new high ground for the year at 149 1-4, within a fraction of its 1925 record of 149 3-4.

Meanwhile investment funds flowed steadily into high grade railroad shares, the average price of which reached the highest point in several years.

Accompanying the upward flight of Steel common were varied rumors of an impending capital split-up, or a distribution of the corporation's huge surplus. All of these lacked confirmation although the one most generally credited, forecast an exchange of two new shares for each one now outstanding, with a new dividend basis equal to $8 or $10 compared with the present $7 rate. A more solid basis for the buying of the steel shares, including Sloss-Sheffield and Bethlehem, was the announcement that production in the first half of the year had broken all records and promised to repeat the performance in the next six months.

Encouraged by the impressive strength of the market leaders, pools made their usual bids for public support and found their favorites alive in some cases by urgent short covering. U. S. Cast Iron Pipe rallied 6 points to a new high on the current recovery above 204, and United Cigar Stores preferred jumped 6 3-4 to a new high at 125.

Numerous gains of 1 to 4 points included American Can, Consolidated Gas, Consolidated Cigar, Dupont, Tobacco Products, Art Loom, the commercial solvent issues, Devoe and Raynolds, Remington Typewriter and Sterling Products.

Willys-Overland vied with General Motors as the speculative favorite of the motor group, buying of large blocks followed reports of a big demand for its new low priced models. The day's turnover of about 1,800,000 shares exceeded that of U. S. Steel and of General Motors. The stock was pushed up 2 3-8 points to 31 3-4 while gains of 1 to 2 points were recorded by Chrysler, Mack Trucks and Pierce Arrow preferred. General Motors, after reaching the year's best level, closed at 147 7-8, up 7-8.

Railroad shares made a favorable showing, with a renewed demand for the Van Sweringen issues based on the announcement that Erie directors tomorrow would consider the amended Nickel Plate merger plan. Chesapeake and Ohio attained a new peak price above 139, closing fractionally under at 138 3-4, while Erie was lifted 1 1-2 point on reports that better terms would be provided for stockholders of the constituent roads.

Union Pacific, Atchison, Southern Railway, South Pacific, Frisco, Reading and Pittsburgh and West Virginia were in demand although early gains were reduced before the close.

The commodity markets continued to move in different directions. Wheat values were firm but corn and oats were lower, probably reflecting dissatisfaction with the defeat of the farm relief bill. Favorable weather reports depressed cotton prices 10 to 13 points. Sugar and coffee were unchanged.

Reduction of the call money rate from 6 to 5 1-2 per cent. indicated that the stringency relative to the mid-year settlements had been relieved. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

The foreign exchange market was featureless, the only feature being the drop of French francs to 2.78 1-2 off 9 1-2 points. Demand sterling held firm around $4.84 1-4. Belgian francs were weaker, losing 4 points to 2.79 1-2. The most of the other European rates showed only nominal recessions.

FRECKLES

Tells How to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots and Have a Beautiful Complexion

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as Othine—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get an ounce of Othine from any drug or department store and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than an ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove your freckles.

CLOTH BOARD MANUFACTURER TO OPEN BRANCH FACTORY HERE

A branch of the United States Cloth Board and Reels Corporation will soon commence operations in Norwich. The concern has two factories, one in New Jersey and one in North Carolina. Starting in a small way, about 15 persons will be employed here, mostly women. The new corporation has leased a part of the Tide Water Paper Board company in Thamesville (formerly the Uncas Paper Board company). Arrangements have been made with the Tide Water Paper Board company for the expansion of this new industry when business conditions warrant it.

About one month ago representatives of this company approached the chamber of commerce as to possible locations and were shown several factory spaces. They will occupy about 15,000 square feet of floor space. Machinery will be installed very shortly and operation of the new industry will commence. Several hundred dollars weekly pay roll, for the beginning, will be added to the pay rolls of Norwich. The new concern again adds to the diversity of Norwich products and the hope is entertained that eventually this pay roll will be materially increased.

SCHEDULE OF SPORTS FOR NORWICH PLAYGROUNDS

With the Norwich playground season for 1926 now well underway the thoughts of those interested turn to organized play. Accordingly Superintendent Earl E. Brigham has arranged a list of schedules covering the various activities conducted by the playgrounds during the season.

It is hoped to hold an inter-city meet with New London at the close of the regular playground schedules here. For this meet the best players in the various teams will be picked to form a championship baseball, swimming and track team to compete in this proposed meet. Such a meet no doubt would arouse considerable interest and enthusiasm and furnish a fitting end to the playground season.

The baseball program calls for two leagues named the National and American. Each league will play out a separate schedule with a miniature World Series between the two winners at the latter part of the season.

The swimming events will be run off at Mohegan park and call for three preliminary meets with a final meet. The park commissioner is co-operating with the playground commission in holding these meets.

The track meets will be all held at the Academy campus track and consist of three preliminary meets with one final meet, the winners in the three previous meets to compete in the final meet.

NTL. COTTON MANUFACTURERS NOW LARGEST ENROLLMENT

The National Association of Cotton Manufacturers, the oldest trade organization in America, now has the largest enrollment in its history according to a report issued for publication at Boston Wednesday by its membership campaign committee. Sixty-five new members have been admitted to the association during the past few months making the total 1,030.

Textile men throughout the country make up the association and the states represented include a number of those in the south as well as all of the cotton manufacturing section in the North. At the present time members of the organization are cooperating with a group in the American Cotton Manufacturers association to work out some plan of united action to meet problems now facing the industry. The association's affairs are conducted under the leadership of President William B. MacColl and a board of government.

The technical and statistical departments, developed by Secretary Russell T. Fisher, are among the important features of the service rendered by the association. Committees on taxation, rates and transportation and other similar groups give prompt consideration to all questions affecting the industry as they arise. Through its transportation committee, in cooperation with other trade organizations the association recently prevailed upon the railroads to delay for several months at least, the proposed abolition of commodity rates on textile products in this section of the country.

W. Irving Bullard, treasurer of the organization, is head of the membership campaign which has been conducted by regional committees in the New England states and New York. These groups are as follows: Boston and vicinity—Charles E. Inches, Nyanza Mills; W. Emerson Barrett, Maverick Mills; Sidney S. Paine, Textile Development company and W. DeFord Beal, Cooper & Brush, Inc.

GAVE FINE REPORT ON ROTARY INTERNATIONAL

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, June 30.—Members of the Willimantic Rotary club and several guests gathered at Grange hall, Scotland, Tuesday evening, to hear the report of Secretary Gerard E. Loisell on the international Rotary convention held at Denver, Col., June 14-19, which he attended as delegate of the local club. The first business was to appease the inner man, which was done to the satisfaction of all with a bountiful dinner of cold roast beef, mashed potatoes, green vegetables and delicious strawberry shortcake prepared and served by the women of the grange. The reading of the minutes and roll followed. Then came a series of group songs and a specialty number by the guests. The visitors were H. Clinton Lathrop, George F. Taylor, Frank P. Fenton, George Holt, Charles H. Caswell, L. D. Crawford, Charles Backus, Carlton P. King, Charles A. Risedorf, Sydney B. Alling, Herbert D. Pollard, Ralph H. Gibson and Charles F. Curran. Cigars were enjoyed at the expense of C. Harry Branch; in honor of the recent birth of twins in his family. The music for the evening was by Dr. R. Bullock Jones, piano, and Ralph H. Gibson, violin. Their feature selection was the beautiful waltz Colorado, the state song. Harry W. Stahdish was official song leader for the evening with Charles H. Caswell as his able assistant. Two popular numbers were rendered by a picked group of singers, comprising P. D. Donohue, George E. Hinman, Raymond A. Parker, Ellison S. Smith, John C. Frazier, Albert B. Smith, Charles H. Caswell, Sydney B. Alling, Walter Abbee, T. J. Laramee.

Roland B. Jordan reported progress in the arrangement for the joint Exchange-Rotary outing at the Willimantic Country club Thursday afternoon and evening of next week. A unique program is promised to please both the men and women. The regular Tuesday noon luncheon will be omitted next week. President Batt turned the meeting over to Charles B. Pomeroy, chairman of the program committee, who called upon Secretary Loisell for his report.

In his opening remarks Secretary Loisell stated that internationalism and the propounding of world wide friendship and confidence among representatives, business and professional men was the keynote of the 17th and greatest convention ever held in the annals of Rotary history. He reviewed various resolutions adopted, including one changing the sequence of the administration of Rotary, proposed as the Chicago Rotary club plan. According to this plan, which is to become effective in 1928, the international convention will be held between the dates of July 6 to 16 with the inauguration of officers on Sept. 1st. He gave interesting sidelights on the election of Harry H. Rogers of San Antonio, Texas, as president of Rotary International to succeed to Donald A. Adams of New Haven. Arthur H. Sapp of Indiana and Tom J. Davis of Montana were the other candidates in the field. In the first ballot Harry H. Rogers received a majority of the votes. On motion of Mr. Sapp seconded by Mr. Davis the election was conceded and Mr. Rogers declared unanimously elected. Secretary Loisell entered into a graphic description of the scenic beauties of Denver, Colorado Springs and Pikes Peak, including an account of the hospitality of the westerners, especially the Denverites. The outstanding entertainment feature during the convention were a stupendous and colorful pageant and a wild west rodeo. Ten thousand Rotarians and their wives, representing the 35 countries in which there are Rotary clubs, attended the convention. Rotary was predicted on every side as being in the morning of its growth. The international convention next year will be held at Ostend, Belgium. QUEEN VICTORIA LYDIA E. PINKHAM

Two Famous Women Born the Same Year

In the year 1819, two babies were born whose lives were destined to have a far reaching influence. One was born in a stern castle of Old England, the other in a humble farmhouse in New England.

Queen Victoria through her wisdom and kindliness during the long and prosperous reign has become enthroned in the hearts of the British people. Lydia E. Pinkham through the merit of her Vegetable Compound has made her name a household word in thousands of American homes.

Mrs. Adolph Bratke of 4316 South 13th St., South Omaha, Nebr., was in a run-down condition for four years before she tried the Compound. "I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound," she writes, "and I have felt my health steadily improving." Mrs. Bratke continued to take the Compound for a year and a half and at the end of that time found herself in excellent health. "I am feeling fine now and do all my work myself," she wrote recently. "I am the mother of six and manage an eight-room house without help."

PRIMARY SYSTEM TOPIC OF HOT DEBATE IN THE SENATE

Senator Neely, Democrat, West Virginia, and Several Other Senators Denounced the Pennsylvania Campaign—Senator Reed, Republican, Pennsylvania, Maintained That the Primary System, Not Corruption, Was the Fault—Senator Borah Defended the Primary System as a Bulwark For the Protection of the People From Grafting Politicians.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—(AP)— Demands that steps be taken to prevent excessive expenditures of money in primary campaigns were voiced in both the senate and house today with the recent Pennsylvania primary the particular target.

Aroused by a speech of Senator Neely, democrat, West Virginia, several senators joined him in a denunciation of the Pennsylvania primary campaign, Senator Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, retorting that the primary system, not corruption, was the fault.

During the debate with Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, author of the constitution amendment creating the senatorial primary, assuming the lead, the system was defended as a bulwark for the protection of the people from grafting politicians.

The senate discussion got under way as the special committee investigating campaign expenditures was considering its inquiry into the Pennsylvania situation, and it spread to the house where Representative Schafer, republican, Wisconsin, demanded an investigation by the house of Representative Vare's successful campaign for the republican senatorial nomination in the state to determine if charges brought out before the senate committee were true.

If they are, he declared, Vare should not be seated by the senate and should be unseated in the house before the end of this congress.

In the senate Norris, republican, of Nebraska, let it be known that he had endorsed William B. Wilson, the democratic senatorial nominee in Pennsylvania, as the only fit candidate for the republican voters of that state to support. If Vare is not seated, he said, "another machine man would be appointed and nothing would be accomplished."

Opening debate by urging passage of his resolution to make it unlawful for any candidate for the senate to spend more than $25,000 in his campaign, Senator Neely declared that the primary campaign in Pennsylvania had exceeded anything in political history for its "bribery, graft, infamy and perfidy." He asserted that it made Philadelphia and Pittsburgh the "political Sodom and Gomorrah, not only of the United States, but of modern world."

Replying, Senator Reed declared that conditions were not worse in Pennsylvania than in any other state and remarked that if the "lid was taken off of any other state the same stench would go up."

Senator Borah interjected that the Pennsylvania senator would get small consolation if he compared the expenditures before the primary system was adopted to those afterwards, while Senator Neely announced he was unalterably opposed to a return to the convention system and with a dramatic flourish shouted:

"The common people will swim their horses by the bridle rein in streams of blood before they will permit corruptionists to lead this country back to the old system."

Senator Carraway, democrat, Arkansas, observed that the wet and dry issue injected in the Pennsylvania campaign had made it so that the elected officer either was a "subservient tool or the most ungrateful man on earth."

"If this continues the government as our fathers set it up will cease," he added.

Declaring he did not wish for the impression to go out that the republicans were the only ones that had sinned, Senator King, democrat, Utah, a member of the campaign funds committee, said some of the democrats had "yielded to the blandishments and their organization has been prostituted."

The senate debate closed with both Senators Borah and Blease, democrat, South Carolina, announcing they would reopen the discussion later.

BRIAND USES SLUMP OF THE FRANC AS WARNING

PARIS, July 1—(AP)—Today's slump of the franc to a new low record of 28.30 to the dollar has served as a text for a sermon by the newly formed Briand ministry in favor of ratification of the Washington debt agreement.

Premier Briand, in an informal conversation in the lobby of the chamber of deputies, himself attributed today's drop to the feeling in the United States that there is a hostility in France to the Bergeneer-Mellon accord.

At the same time the slump of the franc has created considerable anxiety as to the fate of the new ministry when it will be obliged next Tuesday to reply to the postponed interpellations on the financial situation.

The premier today said that he felt sure that the United States government would accord to France all the time necessary if payments should become impossible at any period. He said he believed this despite the absence of a safeguard clause in the agreement, which would make French payments dependent to some extent on German reparations. He admitted that he did not think it possible to obtain a safeguard clause at this stage of the agreement.

A CENTURY OLD TEXTILE CO. IN LOWELL BANKRUPT

BOSTON, July 2—(AP)—A petition for a receivership for the Hamilton Manufacturing company of Lowell, a century-old textile firm, today was taken under advisement by Judge Bishop in superior court. The action was the latest in months of effort to re-organize the firm begun last summer after a shortage of $600,000 in capital was discovered. The petition was brought by "The Dumaines," a voluntary association and creditor to the extent of $1,500,000.

Half a dozen former officers and employes of the company were arrested after the discovery of the shortage. They were charged with offenses ranging from conspiracy to defraud stockholders to falsification of entries in the books.

OBITUARY
William H. Williams

DERBY, July 1—(AP)—William H. Williams, state referee and former judge of the superior court, died at his home here this afternoon. He was 76 years old.

Three weeks ago Judge Williams tripped and fell at his home, his left hip being fractured. He was taken to the Griffin hospital for treatment, but at his own request, was removed to his home on the same day. Since that time he had been failing slowly at first, but more rapidly the last few days. Tuesday he had not been expected to live through the night.

Besides his widow, he is survived by one brother, Charles Williams, of Butler, N. J.

Funeral services will be held at the home Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Burial will be in Oak Cliff cemetery, Derby.

DRY AND WET TESTIMONY BEFORE SENATE COMMITTEE

WASHINGTON, July 1—(AP)—With a pertinacity unequalled since its investigation began more than three weeks ago, the senate campaign funds committee pursued today and tonight an inquiry into the inner workings of the Anti-Saloon league and reports of the attempted purchase of support for William S. Vare in the Pennsylvania republican senatorial primary.

Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel and legislative agent of the league, was the witness in the one case and Frank X. O'Connor, a South Philadelphia magistrate, was questioned in the other. Senator Reed, democrat, Missouri, chairman of the committee, conducted a relentless examination of both.

Through Wheeler, Senator Reed undertook to establish that a small group of officials control the Anti-Saloon league organization, both national and state, and that while the league engages in the dissemination of propaganda for the dry cause year in and year out it regards itself as obligated to make reports under the corrupt practices act only for sums directly spent in election campaigns.

Recalled for questioning about published and other reports that he had stated Vare's organization had offered him first $75,000 and later $150,000 to throw his support to Vare, O'Connor denied flatly that he had made any such statements. He was a candidate for the congressional nomination in the May primary and insisted that he always had been determined to see through a fight which he had started against Vare three years ago.

Confronted with the testimony of three reporters for the Philadelphia Public-Ledger and statements made to Senator Reed by Senator Pepper, who lost out in the three-corner race with Vare and Governor Pinchot to succeed himself, O'Connor insisted that he never had told anyone that the Vare organization had sought to purchase his support.

VIOLINIST SUING FOR $50,000 DAMAGES FOR INJURED WRIST

BRIDGEPORT, July 1.—(AP)—A professional violinist and author, Mrs. Byrd Mock Dentinger, of Greenwich, brought to the superior court this afternoon a suit in which she asks for damages of $50,000 from George Boles, of Greenwich, because in a fall on premises owned by Boles she fractured her left wrist, an injury which has obliged her to stop playing the violin, by which she earned $5,000 yearly, and which makes writing painful and difficult, it is set forth.

Mrs. Dentinger is the wife of Dr. Willett E. Dentinger, a specialist. He has filed a second $50,000 suit against Boles for other reasons. Dr. Dentinger leased from Boles on August 15, 1925, property at Riverside, Greenwich, for use as a sanitarium. On June 1, 1926, he says he made known his wish to buy the property for $42,500, a privilege guaranteed him, he declares, under his lease.

INVESTIGATION OF BREAD TRUST CASES ORDERED

WASHINGTON, July 1 (AP)—Investigation of the federal trade commission and department of justice prosecution of the recent bread trust cases was ordered today by the senate. Its judiciary committee will conduct the inquiry, holding hearings during the summer recess if necessary.

The investigation was ordered on a resolution by Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, which was based on charges made in the senate yesterday by Senator LaFollette, progressive republican, Wisconsin, involving a consent decree entered recently at Baltimore in proceedings against the Continental Baking corporation.

Senator Nye Wins In North Dakota

Nye's Victory Conceded by L. B. Hanna, His Opponent For the Republican Senatorial Nomination.

FARGO, N. D., July 1—(AP)—Headed by Senator Gerald P. Nye, non-partisan leaguers scored decisive victories in the North Dakota republican primary, returns from virtually one fourth of the state's precincts indicated tonight.

Coming from behind, Senator Nye had established a lead of more than 1,000 over L. B. Canna, credited with the support of the administration, in the contest for the short term ending March 3, 1927, when 543 of the state's 2,167 precincts had reported. The vote stood Nye 22,507 and Hanna 21,414.

For the long term nomination 707 precincts gave 30,922 and Nye 29,657 but each return from the rural districts cut into this Hanna lead, with indications that it would become a Nye advantage long before 1,000 precincts were in.

In the gubernatorial race A. G. Sorlie had 37,823 votes in 845 precincts compared with 34,954 for J. M. Hanley, Mandan, also termed an administration candidate. J. A. McGovern, Fargo, "left wing", non-partisan candidate had 2,131 votes.

Recognizing the trend or the vote during the day, Mr. Hanna conceded Nye's victory, both for the short term and the nomination even while the senator was several thousand votes behind in actual tabulations. Hanley likewise conceded Sorlie's nomination.

In the past ten years, the republican nominations have been equivalent to election in the fall, despite occasional combinations or democrats and "real" republicans aimed against the league candidates.

C. P. Stone, wet candidate for the senatorial nomination, made what newspapers of the state termed a "surprising showing," although he ran far behind Nye and Hanna.

While both Hanna and Hanley established early leads at the outset of tabulation of state returns last night and continued to hold these leads in the early hours today, experienced observers realized the league candidates had been victories. First returns came from the larger cities, the anti-league strongholds, the trend changing today as the western rural precincts began reporting.

GOV. FULLER DENIES CLEMENCY TO PONZI

BOSTON, July 1—(AP)—Governor Fuller today denied executive clemency to Charles Ponzi, on condition that the one time financial wizard leave the country. Ponzi, now held in Houston, Tex., for Massachusetts authorities today telegraphed Gov. Fuller:

"Will your excellency extend executive clemency to me, a fugitive from injustice, oppression and persecution, conditional upon my leaving this country at once and forever? Reply respectfully solicited."

The governor's answer was:

"No. Have signed requisition papers for your return."

CHARLES PONZI GRANTED HABEAS CORPUS HEARING

HOUSTON, Texas, July 1.—(AP)—Charles Ponzi won his first legal skirmish against extradition to Boston when Judge Walter Monteith today granted a habeas corpus hearing and fixed the date for July 9.

Until the hearing has been held, Ponzi must be kept in Houston, regardless of the outcome of extradition proceedings against him.

In their application for the release of the convicted swindler on a writ of habeas corpus, Ponzi's attorneys charged that he was being confined illegally in Harris county.

The petition alleged that the bond of $20,000 set by Justice Campbell Overstreet yesterday is beyond the power of Ponzi to secure and asked that "bail be fixed temporarily in some such amount as may be reasonable."

DISAGREEMENT ON NAVAL PROBLEMS AT GENEVA

GENEVA, July 1.—(AP)—No rupture, but a very definite and serious disagreement on naval problems stands out tonight as the big feature of the preparatory disarmament conference.

The American decision to submit a minority report, setting forth that the United States cannot accept the report of the naval sub-commission, was announced at a meeting of the naval experts, which today approved the report of the drafting committee.

The American delegation refrained from commenting on any part of the document, but when it was adopted, Rear Admiral Hilary P. Jones arose and declared that the Americans were so far in disagreement that they could not accept it. At the same time, he said the American delegation was ready to join any other delegation in submitting a minority report.

DROWNED WHILE BROTHER STOOD HELPLESSLY BY

WATERBURY, July 1.—(AP)—While his brother and two other playmates stood helplessly by, Paul D'Angelo, 13, of 56 Cottage place, drowned in the Naugatuck river near Browns' Meadows at 3 o'clock here tonight. Paul's body remained in the water nearly an hour, police believe, before it was removed.

Neither Paul, his brother Ernest, 17, nor their two companions could swim more than a few strokes. Jerry De Vito, the member of the gang nearest to the sinking Paul, stood in water as deep as he dared to go and reached for his friend. He grasped one arm, Ernest said, but was unable to pull Paul to safety.

NITROUS FUMES CAUSED DEATH OF A FIREMAN

BOSTON, July 1. — (AP) — Nitrous fumes from burning celluloid caused the death of a fireman today, and three others were in a serious condition at a hospital.

Boseman Michael Travers died from the fumes, inhaled when he and others were fighting a fire last Monday in the Manhattan Collar and Novelty company's building. Travers was taken to the hospital on Tuesday with congested lungs. A medical examiner said after an autopsy that the burning celluloid collars gave forth cases similar to those which caused fatalities in munitions plants during the war.

Plot Against the Spanish Government

Arrests Continue and Many Important Personages Are Being Kept Under Close Surveillance.

PARIS, July 1—(AP)—The gravity of the present situation in Spain is accentuated by additional reports from across the border, indicating the wide spread nature of the recently discovered plot against the Prime de Rivera government at Madrid, while Paris has had a sharp reminder of the insecurity of a monarch's life through the frustration by the police of a plot against King Alfonso.

One of the men charged with being implicated in the rising against the Spanish government is Count Romanones, who, it is said, warned a few hours in advance that his arrest was imminent, escaped from Spain and reached safety at Hendaye, France. It was learned tonight that the former premier, anxious to avoid publicity, had slipped out of the resort town, bound for Vittel, ostensibly to take the "cure".

Arrests continue daily throughout Spain, according to travelers crossing the frontier and many important personages although not actually in custody, are being kept under close surveillance. Spaniards in Paris having intimate knowledge of political developments assert that the plots against the Madrid ministry had been known to the government for at least two months, and that the only reason the arrests were not made sooner was because the police wished to learn the ramifications of the plot in their fullest details.

It was even hinted that King Alfonso had been fully informed of the situation, but refused to cancel his trip to Paris and London, because that would have accentuated the importance of the movement. If that is so, he seemed to be proceeding into even more dangerous territory, and if the police had not rounded up the plotters in Paris a tragedy might have ensued.

Although the king and queen of Spain are safely out of France, the French police are still probing into the plot against the lives of the sovereigns. A number of Spaniards have been detained, and they have not yet been able to satisfy the authorities of their harmlessness.

The preliminary stages in the criminal action against Ascaro and Duretti, the gingleaders in the alleged attempt against the king, got under way today. The men will appear before a committing magistrate later in the week and a specific charge will be laid against them of carrying prohibited arms; violence towards the police, association with malefactors and carrying forged passports. It is notable that thus far no charge has been laid of an attempt against the life of Alfonso.

MEXICO TO PAY INTEREST ON EXTERNAL DEBT

NEW YORK, July 1—(AP)—Interest payments on Mexico's external debt, which have been suspended since the de la Huerta revolution, will be resumed within a short time in accordance with the modified agreement signed last October, the International committee of bankers on Mexico announced today. Thomas W. Lamont, chairman of the committee, issued the following statement:

"The government of the United States of Mexico has, in accordance with the terms of the amended agreement of October 1925, between the government and the committee representing the bondholders, remitted to the committee the greater part of the half year's funds payable to it with respect to the direct debt. Immediately following receipt of the balance of such funds (which the committee has been advised are on deposit with the Banco de Mexico) formal notice will be issued calling for the presentation of cash warrants for payments.

"As to the service of the debt of the National Railways of Mexico, the railways company has made considerable remittances but not yet sufficient to meet the service for the full half year. At such rate as the railways' remittances shall have been sufficient to meet the service in question, prompt announcement as to the presentation of warrants will be made by the international committee."

HARTFORD, July 1—(AP)—Air mail planes making the first trip from New England to New York and points west, arrived at Brainard field here at 6:20 (standard time) tonight They took off on the last lap of the contract route Number 1 at 6:46 accompanied by Governor John H. Trumbull.

Fireboats screeched and sent their streams high in air as the three mail planes, preceded by two pilot machines, took off. A battery of field artillery guns fired the governor's salute, tugboats and ferry boats tooted and a crowd of 3,000 assembled on the field cheered and clapped while the planes circled over them and set off on their journey. The first plan was piloted by H. R. Wells of Worcester, the second by Leroy Thompson of New York and the third, carrying Governor John H. Trumbull, of Connecticut, by Major Talbot O. Freemand, a member of his governor's staff.

Governor Alvan T. Fuller was on hand, and from the airport commander's automobile he and the Connecticut governor made impromptu speeches. Then there were stunt flying and antiaircraft demonstrations. Ten minutes before leaving time, motor trucks arrived bearing the 1,500 pounds of mail to be transported and the two executives joined postal workers in lugging heavy bags of letters and packages on their shoulders to the waiting planes.

One of the watchers was Captain Harry M. Jones, a commercial flyer from Old Orchard, Maine, who 13 years ago flew from Franklin field to New York with the first air cargo of parcels post matter ever carried in this country. Governor Fuller in his speech saw in today's event the beginning of a new era for New England. He hoped the service would, meet with signal success and praised the "men of courage and daring who in fair weather or foul will hop into the air to make this undertaking a success."

Governor Trumbull, who has earned the sobriquet of "the flying governor," because of his trips to and from Boston with the planes today, pointed out that Hartford, his state's capital, is now "only an hour" from Boston.

"It is a pioneer proposition," he went on, "and its success depends on the support which you people of New England may give it."

One of the last to arrive at the field was Mayor Malcolm E. Nichols, of Boston. Two of the planes had hopped off and as Governor Trumbull's glided by he stuffed into the latter's pocket a package of letters containing this city's greetings to the mayor of all mail route cities throughout the United States.

The new service was begun earlier in the day, when a mail plane arrived from New York and received a welcome.

The aviators were greeted by Assistant Postmaster General W. F. Glenn. Major T. O. Freeman, commander of the 43rd Division Air service, Connecticut National Guard, was in charge of the flight. The other pilots were Leroy Thompson and Lieutenant H. J. Wells.

GOV'T SURPLUS OF $377,767,816 FOR FISCAL YEAR JUST CLOSED

WASHINGTON, July 1.—(AP)—Secretary Mellon reported today a government surplus of $377,767,816 for the fiscal year just closed.

A record collection of customs, totalling $619,430,092 as well as a heavy income tax yield amounting to $1,922,040,088 swelled the treasury funds beyond the needs of the government. The $500,000,000 surplus recently forecast by President Coolidge for the year, which ended last night, failed to materialize, however, as a result of last minute disbursements to meet a post office department deficit and tax funds. At that it was more than three times the total estimated by administration officials in February.

The surplus was immediately applied by Secretary Mellon to retirement of the public debt, cutting it to $19,643,216,315, and making the total reduction in the debt for the year $872,975,5[illegible].

Income tax collections were $221,502,265 above those of a year ago, despite the reduction in rates provided by the new revenue law which was effective in the last two quarters of the fiscal year.

BLONDE'S FRENCH HEEL CAUSED HALT OF TRAFFIC

NEW YORK, July 1—(AP)—A French heel tied up Broadway traffic at the peak of the rush hour this afternoon. It became wedged in a trolley slot when its wearer, a dainty blonde, attempted to dodge across the street.

"It cost $9.98 and I don't want to ruin it!" she gasped while she tugged at the slipper. Street car gongs clanged, motors honked and chauffeurs yelled. The husky traffic cop tried his brawn on the shoe to no avail. Finally a gallant motorman procured a crowbar and pried the trolley slot apart.

The blonde, nearly exhausted from her efforts to hide her slipperless foot under a knee length skirt while balancing on one leg, thanked him and hurried away through the dense crowd that had gathered.

INJURY OR SICKNESS IS IMPORTANT TO FIREMEN

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, July 1—Hinging on the ultimate interpretation by the common council of what constitutes absence by injury and absence by illness is a matter which now confronts permanent members of the local fire department and in which they are taking considerable interest. Hoseman William L. Smith appears in the role of principal in a test case to determine the question. Some months ago while fighting a chimney fire Hoseman Smith narrowly escaped blindness when chemicals blew out of a chimney flew into his face. But for the fact that he was wearing spectacles he would undoubtedly lost his sight. This injury caused him to be absent from duty for two weeks plus one and one-half days. A resolution adopted by the common council under a previous democratic administration provides for full pay to each permanent fireman during two weeks vacation and two weeks of illness annually. Upon returning to duty Hoseman received pay for two weeks and a deduction was made for the extra one day and one half.

Monday afternoon, June 21, he again sustained injuries while fighting the fire in the pole yard of the creosoting plant of the Southern New England Telephone company on Columbia avenue. He was incapacitated for five days and when his pay envelope came this week the five days pay had been deducted.

Ex-Alderman Pierre J. Laramee, who was sponsor of the resolution mentioned above and which was adopted at the regular council meeting in October, 1925, said that the committee had aimed to make provision only in case of illness during the year in adopting the resolution. Injury in the performance of duty and illness were two different things to the committee and so they are to about everyone conversing on the matter. Hoseman Smith feels that he must be mighty careful during the remainder of the year. If he becomes ill or is again injured he must go without pay. In every business illness and injury are naturally placed on a separate basis, one or both being provided for by compensation. Conducting a fire department is nothing less than a business and one in which there are many hazards. The general opinion is for an entirely separate and definite form of compensation for injury which cannot in the best interpretations be modified to illness. While watching the outcome of Hoseman Smith's case other members of the department are disturbed over the possibilities of losing pay. It becomes almost an inducement to shirk some of the more dangerous work in fire fighting. This procedure is not by any means expected to be resorted to but who could blame a man with a family.

TOWN OF WINDHAM MAY INSTALL VOTING MACHINE

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, July 1—Windham is considering stepping in line with cities and large progressive towns in another phase of town activity by purchasing automatic voting machines in the near future. With the City of Willimantic and town of Windham elections taking place in one locality in past years the returns from one of the paper ballots were generally the last to be announced in the state.

Matters were severe enough then but when the women were added to the voting list, voting became nothing short of pandamonium during the rush hours. Subsequently the town and city were divided into four voting districts, which helped the situation but has failed to remedy it to a point of satisfaction. The automatic voting machines agitation has been before the public eye here for a decade. Urged by many requests the selectmen have now ordered a machine from a New York firm to give a demonstration open to all voters. First Selectman Ernest P. Chesbro, representing the town and Mayor John C. Heavy with members of the common council will in due time, set a date and announce the place of the demonstration to feel out the sentiment of the electors, should the decision be to make the purchase special city and town meetings will be called to appropriate the necessary amount. The machine is a compact affair only eighteen inches across the top and four feet wide. It is placed on standards and fitted to be handled by the "long" and "short" members of the population. The number of votes cast for all candidates can be ascertained five minutes after the polls close and in less than half an hour the final election results are announced.

There seems to be no question about the machine soon paying for itself as a set of four of them, one for each district would eliminate the nine or 16 counters, four ballot tenders, four booth tenders and four list tenders, necessitating an annual expense of several hundred dollars. The city of Hartford with 100 machines, Norwich with a dozen, Manchester, Bristol, Torrington, Hamden and other places about the size of Willimantic are entirely satisfied with the time, money and labor saving device.

The town of Coventry, the birthplace of Nathan Hale, Revolutionary martyr spy, and otherwise rich in American war history will be the scene of a mammoth sesqui-centennial celebration on Monday, July 5, under arrangements of the Men's social club of South Coventry. Judge George H. Robertson said Thursday that the event would eclipse anything ever attempted in the town. Heads of the program committee are Fred Forster, Frank L. Turner, Albert Trickmore and Thomas Overholdt. The big feature will be a pageant "en marche" giving an allegorical effect. Drum corps, floats and other representations will depict famous characters and happenings of the Revolutionary days. The moving pageant will halt at the town park at Flanders where sport events will take place. The procession will assemble and start from the green on Monument Hill. Among those to deliver patriotic addresses at noon are Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock of the Willimantic Congregational church, Rev. Thomas F. Moran of St. Mary's church, South Coventry, Rev. Charles S. Johnson of the South Coventry Congregational church and Rev. E. M. Dodson of the South Coventry Methodist church.

Captain William A. Wolfe of the Coventry Home Guard will be marshal of the parade with a corps of assistants. First in line will be the fifers of the town to be led by the famous Nathan Hale fife and drum corps whose numbers will be swelled by the drummer lads from Willimantic. Some 25 floats are being arranged for and they will depict all the historic personages. There will be a little diversity too. One float will carry an old-time champion fiddler with two little girls dancing the Charleston. Clowns will keep things lively on another float. Another drug corps will bring up the rear, followed by the Boy and Girl Scouts. Mens Social Club and other fraternal and social organizations.

All Flanders prizes will be given for the winners of sporting events and for such features as the best and the most grotesquely clothed man and woman.

He was attended by Dr. Turcotte of this city. It was only last Monday that Mr. Brenn's two and one half year old daughter, Ann W., fell into an 18 foot well near the house. Showing great presence of mind and courage her father had rescued her from drowning. Mr. Brenn hopes that fate will lend him a kinder and more peaceful hand in the future.

CAMP GROUND COTTAGES PRACTICALLY ALL FILLED

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC CAMP GROUND, July 1.—The fourth day of the institute opened auspiciously with bright skies and a cool breeze. Later heat did not dampen the ardor of the pupils in their strenuous work of attending the six 45-minute periods of morning studies. These were substantially as given before in the "Bulletin".

One of the interesting evenings of the week was that held on Wednesday evening in the tabernacle in the interest of foreign missions. From 7 to 8 Latin American missions was the subject. Rev. and Mrs. B. O. Campbell, who have been missionaries in both Mexico and South America, had charge. They had arrayed several of the institute members with the picturesque colored garments of those countries and Spanish songs were sung. "Brighten the Corner Where You Are." Billy Sunday's popular song, was written in Spanish on the blackboard and the audience speedily caught on to the singing of it. Dean Spaulding and Missionary Campbell stood up at either side of the desk. The former made an address in English, which Mr. Campbell translated into Spanish sentence by sentence. Mr. Campbell gave a vivid description of a bull fight as seen in the largest bull ring in the world at Mexico City. It will seat 20,000 people.

The hour from 8 to 9 was devoted to Japan. The speaker was a young lady who in 1920 went out from Norwich district as a missionary to that country, Miss Esther Thurston of South Manchester. She was brought up in the home of her uncle, who was pastor there, the late Rev. Sherman E. Ellis. She maintained there was no real "yellow peril," such as is often heralded in the "yellow" papers of both Japan and the United States. While they cannot forget the unfortunate exclusion act of our country, they recall with even more force the amazing gift of millions from America through the Red Cross at the time of the terrible earthquake in 1922. Miss Thurston came home a year ago for a year's furlough and remains for yet another year, going in the fall to Boston university to study for the degree of M. A., making her home with her aunt, Mrs. Olive Ellis of Brockton.

Circus Parade

The feature of Thursday afternoon was the circus parade, one of the big sports of the week. The young folks gathered at police headquarters at 3 o'clock, where a great variety of costumes and masks were provided by Chester Hoyt, director of recreation. There were all colors of garments, and various nationalities were represented. The procession was headed by Rev. S. F. Maine, of Attawaugan, clad in police uniform, followed by Chester Hoyt as drum major. Then came the band: Rev. Hinman of Willimantic, cornetist; Richmond Young, Sterling, trumpet; Clayton Richards, Vernon, baritone and Cushman Robertson, Portland, with washtub, base drum. King Cole and his queen followed, impersonated by Russell Waltz of Providence, and Miss Susie Lucas of Staffordville.

Camp Fire girls followed, all in obstume, led by their guardian, Miss Ethel Woodward, of Storrs. Chinese girls came next, with a Japanese faggot-carrier, Miss Esther Thurston. A menagerie followed: Bear, tiger, lioness, rooster, Miss Ruth Bosworth Staffordville. German soldiers and firemen followed these. Among others Dean Spaulding represented a fierce Chilean half-breed Mapuche Indian, leading along his Indian child wife by flourishing a formidable rawhide whip. His daughter, Miss Miriam Spaulding, impersonated a Chino-Poblano, or Mexican Indian dancing girl. Rev. G. W. Potter of Portland, in cap and gown represented the dean of the institute. Mrs. Bitgood of New London was costumed as Mrs. O'Brien. Frank Gray, of Burnside, with huge straw sombrero was an ideal Mexican. David Hutchinson of Manchester, with his blanket, was an ideal American Indian. The parade started from F. H. Bushnell's police headquarters in rear of auditorium, passed through the upper gate, to Prospect, Haven and Simpson avenues, back to the "trysting tree" just outside the upper gate, where a picture of the company was taken. A march around Church circle completed the parade. Nearly a hundred took part, and the line extended half way round the inner circle. Much credit is due the untiring efforts of the director of recreation, Rev. H. Chester Hoyt, Beverly, Mass., for the presentation of the parade. It was witnessed by practically all dwellers on the grounds.

Grove Jottings

The leader clanged cymbals and the lads smote tin covers together. They received hilarious greetings from occupants of the other seven tables.

DANIELSON

GOODYEAR TO BE POPULAR PLACE SATURDAY NIGHT

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, July 1—Goodyear is broadcasting an invitation to the countryside to be on hand Saturday evening when the annual fireworks display will be staged by that community. The news goes out that this year's fireworks display will be far and away of anything previously shown at Goodyear, and there have been some fine displays over there, and that those who come to enjoy a good time with Goodyear people will not be disappointed. Parking spaces for hundreds of cars is available in areas from which the display can be seen. State officers will be in control of traffic, so there is assurance that the big movement of motor cars will be orderly. Diggitt's Popular band is to give a concert incident to the fireworks display.

Here is Goodyear staging a great free exhibition for all who care to come. It is a community movement such as any town might be pleased to sponsor and the assurance is it will not be overlooked. The crowd will be there.

Chief A. P. Woodward of the fire department has some good advise on a subject that gets little attention at this time of year—the matter of having chimneys cleaned. However, this is an excellent time to have the work done and the chimneys already for use in the early fall. Reference to the annual fire records of Danielson for any given year or any number of years will show that the great majority of alarms are for chimney fires—fires caused by dirty chimneys. As a rule these fires do no great damage, but there is always the risk that such a fire may spread to badly damage or destroy a building.

The no parking regulation in force about the passenger station of the New Haven road here is not enforced by the borough, as many believe, but is an arrangement made by the railroad company, to keep clear space for motor coaches on regular runs and for taxi stands that are leased to different persons by the railroad company.

Men who have been in close touch with Snake Meadow brook during the trout fishing season just closed say it will be necessary for the state to restock this leased brook against the coming of another fishing season. On accounted of being a state-leased stream, it attracted hundreds of fishermen the past three months and they caught, first and last, several thousand trout from its waters. They did not get them all by any means, but they made a great reduction from the numbers of fish that were in the stream when fishing started on April 15.

Young America must restrain itself as to celebrating the Fourth in any noisy manner until 4 o'clock Monday morning, said Chief John McFarland Thursday afternoon. While Sunday is actually the Fourth, the celebration of it goes over until Monday. There has been some doubt in the minds of youngsters as to when they would be free and unrestricted in making the welkin ring. They would not be averse to opening up Saturday night and keeping at it through Sunday and Monday, but the chief says it can't be done.

Chief McFarland also calls attention to the law against the use of revolvers by celebrators. Revolvers are prohibited and may be confiscated by an officer.

Major E. L. Darbie, Captain Harold Greene and the detail of sergeants, corporals and privates enlisted here sometime since under Major Darbie, in command of special troops of the 43d division, are to leave here for 15 days of field service at Niantic on July 25. This organization, with headquarters at the state armory, is separate from the Service battery, which is leaving for camp next Tuesday.

In observance of the 150th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence a patriotic meeting is to be held in Unitarian hall at Brooklyn Sunday evening. E. C. Babson will preside as chairman. There will be singing, the reading of the Declaration by Miss Arlene Raymond and the reading of Washington's Farewell address by Miss Loise Babson. Lincoln's Gettysburg address will be given by George Lewis Ingalls. The public has been invited to attend this meeting.

Mention in a news despatch Thursday that in the old days overland mail was from 7 to 9 days going with a horse and rider between New York and Boston recalled the fact that it was three days' journey from Danielson to Boston with one's own horse, though the trip was sometimes made in two days.

The Fourth is to be a long holiday this year. It will get underway tomorrow night with the night before celebration, this including the big display of fireworks at Goodyear, and dances at various resorts. Sunday, the real Fourth, will find citizens listening to patriotic addresses. Just after Sunday midnight a big dance is scheduled and then will come Monday with the general observance.

A greater volume of water will come into the central section of the borough as the result of the laying of a new line of 10-inch main through Mechanic street. Another main line comes down through Main street from the direction of Elmville. The added water will give better pressure in many places and will be particularly valuable in case of any serious fire.

A delegation representing the Methodist Episcopal church of Danielson will be at Willimantic camp grounds over the week end attending the institute that is attracting attendance this week from various sections of eastern Connecticut.

Chief A. P. Woodward of the Danielson fire department has a congratulatory letter from an official that was at the recent convention of fire chiefs in Manchester, N. H., the communication expressing appreciation of all that Chief Woodward did to keep the gathering entertained and in a happy mood.

Danielson had half a half-holiday Thursday. Some business places closed at noon for the day, while many others remained open. This likely will happen again next week, for all will not close next Thursday on account of Monday being a full holiday. The real half-holiday season for the store forces will start on July 15.

Hundreds of people throughout this section were on watch Thursday evening for the west-bound plane carrying mail from Boston to New York. There was lively local interest in the establishment of the service and watching for the morning and evening flights will be a little habit with many people for some time to come.

Arthur C. Leland of New Haven is spending the week end with friends in Danielson.

Camp Woodstock, the County Y camp at Black pond in the town of Woodstock, has opened for the season. Frank Condon of the Tolland county Y. M. C. A. is in charge of the camp this year.

Oil has been applied during the current week to that state highwya on the Putnam route through Attawaugan and on the Attawaugan-Baileyville route.

GETTING DOWN TO BUSINESS

That congress should so quickly change its attitude and be ready to adjourn can be attributed to the fact that it has gotten down to business on one or two big measures and decided what was going to be done. Had it done as much some weeks ago there would have been nothing in the way of adjourning as desired a week ago.

Two bills which threatened the prolongation of the session far into the summer were the farm relief measure and the rivers and harbors bill. The fight on both has been determined but no more has been gained through the week's delay than was possible before.

The defeat of the Haugen bill, with its objectionable features left the situation open to the adoption of a farm bill on less radical lines with the administration giving its approval to the Fess bill. This was patterned after the Tincher measure and provided for a fund of $100,000,000 to aid the cooperative organizations among the farmers. Because the Haugen bill with its dangerous provisions was not approved, those who favored it in the senate threw their opposition to the modified bill with the result that it was killed, the democrats with three exceptions opposing the administration. Immediately after there was approval given to the house bill for cooperative marketing from which it as expected well directed aid will be given to the farmers. That leaves congress as having done something, willing to have done more but balked by those who would accept a whole loaf or nothing, even though the loaf was unwise and unsound.

The chance of making headway on the rivers and harbors bill doesn't exist. Floor Leader Tilson tells the story when he says he would willingly stay there all summer if anything could be done but there's no chance. That being the case the sensible thing is to close up and go home and there will be no great mourning if that action is taken in the next few days. The regret is that congress has wasted so much time in getting nowhere which might have been better applied to serious efforts for constructive legislation.

A SERVICE TO HUNGARY

It is not believed that there is a sound basis for the assertion that other nations dislike the United States. If, however, for any reason there is disposed to be ill feelings for one reason or another they certainly have not been made worse by the act of Jeremiah Smith, Jr., of Boston who has recently refused to accept anything in the way of financial recompense for the services he has been rendering Hungary for the past two years in straightening out its finances.

Mr. Smith was named from this country by the league of nations. He went to Hungary with the knowledge of a hard job before him. He encountered just what was expected but he has mastered the situation, Hungary is in a position where his presence is no longer required, there, conditions are promising and he is on his way home.

Naturally Hungary is gratified with the results and it recognized its obligations to recompense Mr. Smith for his services. Although no terms had been agreed upon it was a generous recognition when he was tendered $100,000 for his two years' work. It was no doubt with surprise that Hungary learned that he would accept no pay. All he wanted was the well wishes of Hungary and he directed that the money be devoted to the relief of the conditions among the poor Hungarians. That was certainly a most generous act, especially in view of the fact that Mr. Smith is not a rich man, but it was representative of the attitude which this country has taken on repeated occasions toward European and Asiastic countries.

Those who have gathered the idea that other countries do not feel friendly toward the United States may well consider the situation in the light of the relationship of Jeremiah Smith, Jr., and Hungary. He has nobly displayed the American attitude at a time when he would have been thoroughly justified in accepting what was offered him. He had already rendered a service of high order before he declined any compensation. He has strengthened the ties between the two countries in a manner which could have been done no better at a much greater cost. His act shows the calibre of Jeremiah Smith, Jr., and that of a real American.

WHEN HUMAN AGENTS FAIL

In reaching the decision that the rear end collision near Gray, Pa., last month was due to the failure of the engineer of the second express to control his train as required by the automatic block signals, the interstate commerce commission reaches a conclusion which was indicated by the facts in the case as reported at the time of the wreck. Just what caused that failure no one will ever know for the engineer was among those killed, although it is possible that he had been stricken by death before he reached and passed the signals set against him.

This was a case where there were two engines hauling the express which crashed into the rear of another express which had been forced to halt by trouble. Each locomotive had its engineer, although the operation of the train was left to the engineer in the first cab, the second engineer apparently not being required to check up on the first or to cause the train to respect signals when it was observed that the first engineer was not doing so.

Because of this the commission directs attention to the part which the second engineer might have played in prcventing the wreck, to the fact that additional help would have been given had the flagman gone back as far as time would have allowed him and to the need of automatic train control appliances.

The part which "if" plays under such circumstances is always large. It is easy to figure out what might have happened or what might not have occurred under different circumstances but it is known what did happen and it is evident as the result of the wreck at Gray that there is need for making both engineers responsible for respecting signals and that no greater delay than necessary should be sanctioned in the equipping of railroads with the automatic control system in order to take care of those cases where the human agency fails to do what is expected of it, whether it is because of death or the taking of chances. Wreck after wreck has shown that the man at the throttle for some reason or other hasn't been properly discharging his duties for the safety of those he is transporting.

SAFE AND SANE IN ALL WAYS

For the next few days, including as it will one of the nation's biggest holidays, it can be expected that there will be an unusual amount of traffic on the highways. Never before were there so many automobiles and with good weather expectations are not overdrawn when they anticipate a greater volume of traffic than ever. This will be encouraged by the fact that the Fourth will be celebrated on Monday meaning a three day week end of which full advantage will be taken by those who have machines.

Under the circumstances the warning that is offered about using unusual care over the week end is pertinent. It is well to get the mind in tune with the probable situation in advance and keep it there until the holiday is over. There is need for safety and sanity on the highways quite as much as there is in the use of fireworks.

The safe and sane plea was put forth to prevent the needless deaths and injuries that formerly resulted from reckless observance of the nation's natal day. It is quite as important that the sane plea should be made for the prevention of deaths and injuries in the highways, most of which are is the needless class and can be avoided by the exercise of a little foresight and care.

Through giving heed to the safety suggestion a happier week end can be anticipated and in the suggestions there can be found a chance for the pedestrian as well as the motorist to apply the warning personally. It is not what a few can do but what the many are ready to do that gets results.

THE SOUTHERNR N. E. RAILROAD

The dream of a railroad from Palmer to Providence, to be known as the Southern New England road and built by the Grand Trunk, is over. There were the days of much activity, grading, bridge building and abutment construction. The results are discernible along the proposed line, but they have been going to waste for years and now they are actually abandoned to be disposed of according to court orders.

The charter of the road in Rhode Island has expired. Efforts to have it renewed failed. Renewals were made under promises which could not be kept and the time came when the legislature was unwilling to continue the uncertainty. The property could undoubtedly be bought today for a song. But, who wants it?

The line was conceived during the day of the Mellon regime when the New Haven was facing strenuous opposition. It was proposed for competitive purposes with the idea of giving the Grand Trunk an outlet at Providence. The experiment never got anywhere. It was a failure but an expensive one. Millions were put into it and through changing conditions the time arrived when there was no more money to be obtained. Without funds and no great enthusiasm the end was obvious. It has been reached after desperate efforts have been made to keep the charter alive.

Conditions do not require the line. The Grand Trunk, now controlled by the Canadian government, has an outlet through the Central Vermont at New London which it has possessed for years and from which it would have derived much greater benefit had it devoted its millions in increased development instead of plowing them into the ground between Palmer and Providence. The Southern New England railroad has been a most expensive dream.

QUICK CURE.

"OOOee!" breathed Edna at the breakfast table, "George, I believe I have a touch of neuritis in my right arm! It hurts so when I move it! A queer sort of pain!"

"Yeuh," said George, turning over a page of his newspaper and reaching for his coffee.

"I didn't sleep much last night," his wife went on sadly. "My head ached so much. And I think that cold I had settled in my larynx—I thought I'd strangle two or three times! George!"

"Huh?" asked her startled husband, emerging from the financial news.

"George Wilson!" cried Edna, "you don't care a snap whether I live or die!"

"Well, but," blinked the man across the table, "I didn't know it was anything special. Seems as though something always is the matter with you, Edna! I get kind of used to it."

He left her in tears. Used to it! As though she were in the habit of complaining! Of course of late there had been that cold and her headaches and now her arm—and he did not care!

Edna sniffled on, pitying herself. She guessed she would not stay in and mend his socks—she'd go out and enjoy herself, call on her friends and idle her time and get some sympathy for her troubles!

"So glad you came!" Mary White greeted her from the elaborate chaise longue in her sitting room, reaching out a languid hand. "Sick? I should say I was! My dear, I never closed an eye all last night! What with listening to Jack snore, and this ache down my side! It may be appendicitis and maybe it is gall stones and you can't imagine how I feel! I—"

"You poor thing!" said her caller. "I know just how you feel, because I was awake all night too, with my arm—neuritis—"

"Neuritis!" asked the other vaguely. "Oh, that is cured so simply nowadays—but I must tell you how awfully I felt when I realized that no doubt that pain I was having would mean a sudden operation before morning, maybe! No, I haven't had the doctor this morning, because the pain is sort of gone, but I expect it will come on any minute, I—"

"When my arm first—"

"And I get the queerest tremors down my spine! Not an ache, but the oddest kind of nervous pain—do you suppose it could mean meningitis or anything like that? Yes, I know my color is good, but I never do show it in my face when I am suffering, and I suppose that is why I get so little sympathy! Oh, I think I'll drag myself down to dinner tonight; we're having duck, and I love duck, and then I think it is a woman's duty to hide her illnesses as much as possible, don't you? They're cooking the duck with that gorgeous sauce—oh, must you be going?"

"Hello!" said her friend at the next stopping place, subsiding pale and wan into a couch corner. "I don't know how long I can sit up, my dear, but I'm glad to see you! I never slept a wink all night with my neuritis—"

"Oh, that's what I have in my right arm!" Edna informed her excitedly. "You just can't imagine—"

"Were you?" asked her hostess absently. "The doctor says he never saw a case of neuritis like mine! He has tried simply everything, and it won't yield to a single thing! Three doctors have examined my heart and insist that it is all right, but I guess that is it hopped around for them the way it does at times when I am alone, they'd take more interest in the possibilities! I tell Harvey he may come home any time and find me lifeless. The pain—"

"I know! My arm—"

"The pain I have is excruciating! It is all I can do to keep from crying out many times! Maybe it is paralysis coming on and I must be prepared for anything. I want to tell you about what Dr. Gibbs said—oh, must you be going?"

"How do you feel tonight?" George Wilson asked his wife apologetically as he came home at dinner time. "Are you all right? I phoned twice, but you were out—how's the arm?"

"You nice thing!" Edna said against his coat sleeve. "Why, I'm perfectly all right, haven't a pain anywhere, and believe me, I'm going to stay that way from now on!"

"Grand idea!" said her husband with an arm around her. "Say, where did you get the notion I don't care?"

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Answer To Fair Play

Mr. Editor: The Norwich gas and electric department gives one and all the same privilege. If you have not got enough to pay all for an article you can make a small deposit, no matter who you are, you are not dinged and pestered if you have sickness, or any other misfortune befalls you, if you do not pay the instant your installment is due. Some people go without or would go without because they do not get big wages. Some other conderns howl about it. If they would give the poor people the same chance, they might find they would receive more trade. The gas and electric department not only feels for the poorer class, but gives them a chance to get a few things that they would like to have, easier and a trifle cheaper, so that they can work easier and accomplish more without the old-fashioned grinding. So put the shoe on the other foot and see how much different these fair play howlers would do. Rome was betrayed by the quacking of geese.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Senator Menier, who has sold Anticosti Island, in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, for the sum of 180,000,000 francs is known as the "chocolate king" of France. The business was first established by his grandfather, Emile Menier, who made many millions of dollars out of it. Senator Menier inherited Anticosti island from his father, the late Henri Menier, who bought it in 1896 as a gigantic game preserve and came very nearly arousing international complications, owing to a dispute with the St. Lawrence fishermen and with the Dominion government. The island was well timbered when M. Menier bought it for $16,000, and it was generally considered that the chocolate manufacturer had obtained a big bargain. His heirs took little interest in Anticosti, however, and their sale of the island at a handsome profit is not surprising.

From Small Beginnings

John H. Patterson, Developer of Cash Register

On a farm near Dayton, Ohio, about 1850, a 6-year-old boy was playing. When he grew older he took part with his brother in the hard work of the farm. The two did all that any farm boy has to do, and felt themselves fortunate, indeed. Their grandfather had been a soldier in the American Revolution, and soon after that war had come to help settle what was then the western wilderness. The lads hoped to carry on their grandfather's ideals, and to be as good farmers as he had been, and as good a farmer as their father. About 40 years later the two boys had grown into men of business, and they established on the ancestral acres a huge factory that employed thousands of persons, turned out products to the amount of over $30,000,000 a year and sent the output to all parts of the world. eBfore long the descendants of the old Revolutionary soldier had covered 140 acres of the farm with factory buildings. The leading brother was John H. Patterson, and the other was Frank J. Patterson.

John H. Patterson, the farmer's boy, took advantage of the public schools and gained a good preparatory education. He went on to Dartmouth college, from which he was graduated at the age of 23. When he left college, without any very definite ambition in view, he had to go to work in order to support himself. Part of the time he was a toll collector and a clerk. Having not only supported himself, but having also saved money, he united with his brother in the operation of undeveloped coal and iron mines in Ohio, for which he acted as manager. The losses in the company's store led him to an interest in a newly patented cash register, invented by John and James S. Kitty. The Pattersons used their genius and money in the development of the cash registers. After years of struggle and after meeting great losses, they built up a huge business. In the management of the great factory, Mr. Patterson developed after a time a system of kindly treatment of workmen that made him remarkable. He made his factory a place where men could be both happy and prosperous. In the time of the great Dayton flood he gave both his buildings and his workers to the service of relief agencies. Mr. Patterson died suddenly of heart disease in May, 1922, at the age of 78.

CHILD TRAINING

SELF-CONTROL, TAUGHT ONLY BY EXAMPLE

Maude Freeman Osborne

Whenever you see a well-bred, obedient child, you may be pretty sure that at least one of those who have had his training in charge has been gentle and self-contained. One reason why some parents do not have more control over their children is because of lack of poise shown when attempting to govern them. This, in turn, is apt to make the children excitable as well as hard to govern. Mothers and fathers should school themselves in self-control.

Mrs. Lynde and Mrs. Wells lived in a double house. Mrs. Lynde had a large family, and there was always something happening. This "something" was sure to be retailed more or less truly to facts to Mrs. Wells often in the presence of the children. Mrs. Wells high-strung and nervous, would get very much excited over each "near tragedy," and the effect became noticeable in her government of her children, already almost unmanageable. I like Mrs. Wells and wanted to help her. I realized that persons of her temperament are apt to resent advice, so I tried to be very tactful.

Occasionally, I had opportunity to call attention to the ridiculous side of the occurrence and then to add some comment. The girl next door, for instance, always chose the spectacular moment to "faint." Bringing this to Mrs. Wells' attention one day, I remarked that had the girl not been brought up without self-control, she would not faint at sight of a dog, and I added, "Mrs. Wells, how much better it would be for your children if they were away from such exciting influences."

But I was unable to make much impression and things seemed to go worse with her. Finally, however, I was able to give her an object lesson.

A new viaduct had been built, and put into use before the side walls or copings had been added. Mrs. Lynde had gone over it twice, and had "screamed all the time. It just seemed as if the car couldn't help but go over the side!"

It happened that for the very next day I had made arrangements to take Mrs. Wells and her three children to a cradle-roll party, and we had to go over the viaduct. Mrs. Lynde advised her not to go.

Finally, by dint of much arguing that if the bridge were not safe the city would not allow it to be used, we started. On the viaduct, when Mrs. Wells was getting ready to scream—she had opened her mouth for it several times—I said very quietly, "Now look straight ahead, and try not to frighten the children."

Then I told the funny little story of the old lady who went over a railway trestle for the first time, saying when the train reached the farther bank of the river, "Thank Fortune we've lit!"

So, with the exception of an hysterical laugh once or twice, we rode, not only safely, but serenely, across. Though she said a little shamefacedly, "If it hadn't been for the children, I believe I should have screamed."

I said, "The fact that you didn't shows you have good control of your nerves."

A few weeks later they went for me to see their new home.

"It's only three rooms and a sleeping porch," said Mrs. Wells, "but we are in a nice yard by ourselves. The children sleep better already."

GIRL MISSING SINCE TEACHER SCOLDED HER

BOSTON, July 1.—(AP)—The police of every city in the country have been asked to search for a bobbed-haired miss of 15 who left her home in Dorchester a month ago after a school teacher had scolded her for "playing hookey." Today Dr. Gilbert M. Mason, Boston physician, posted a reward of $1,000 for the safe return of his missing daughter, Doris V. Mason.

With a girl chum, her parents said, Doris "played hookey" one day from the Dorchester high school. The next day she was reprimanded by a teacher. There was another day of truancy, a second return to school, and on the evening of May 28 the two girls took the money they had saved for the summer vacation, packed their suitcases, and disappeared. Doris was described as 5 feet 3 inches in height, weighing 120 pounds. When last seen she wore a signet ring on her left hand with the initials "D. V. M." and a cameo ring on the same hand.

RAYLESS GOLDENROD CAUSE OF SERIOUS STOCK POISONING

That the disease of cattle in the southwestern United States commonly known as "alkali disease" or "milk sickness" is caused by the eating of rayless goldenrod has been proved by experiments carried on by the United States department of agriculture. The most serious complaints of this disease are from the Pecos Valley, in the region from Roswell, N. Mex., to Fort Stockton, Tex., where there have been considerable losses of cattle and horses, according to Department Bulletin No. 1331-D, "Rayless Goldenrod As a Poisonous Plant," which contains a report of the experiments.

In the feeding tests cattle were made sick in 11 days by eating 1.5 pounds daily per 100 pounds of animal; sheep were similarly affected by eating daily for about 21 days 2.25 pounds per 100 pounds of animal; while horses were make sick in 13 days on a daily dose of about 1 pound per 100 pounds of animal.

Animals that were fed cut grass or kept in pasture during the experiments were not so readily poisoned as those kept on dry feed. Evidently the grass feeding, presumably became of its laxative effect, tended to delay the production of symptoms and to aid in recovery.

Because of the belief that milk sickness is conveyed to humans by milk or butter, which is probably true, it is almost impossible to sell these products from Pecos Valley farms where the cows are allowed to run on pastures.

Stock eat the rayless goldenrod, it has been observed, only when confined in pastures where there is little good forage. The obvious remedy, therefore, is to see that the animals are well fed. It is practicable also to dig out the weed from fenced pastures.

That it costs more for a girl to violate a smoking law is related by a local party, who tells of a young woman paying a fine of $5 while men paid fines of $3 for violating the law relative to smoking on a ferry in New York.

The ambition of youth was noticeable Thursday afternoon on Franklin street where a gang of boys were helping to unload a truckload of watermelons, probably with the expectation that one of them might come their way for "service rendered."

POSTAL SUB-STATIONS IN CITY WENT OUT OF BUSINESS THURSDAY

All six of the postal sub-stations in Norwich were closed Thursday by order of the government post office department, because of the refusal of those conducting them to sign the new two-year contract from June 30. The government contracts for the next two years called for the sub-stations to handle all parcel post packages, both insured and C. O. D. packages, and provided such a very small increase for this extra work that the contractors would not sign for the next two year term.

It is the same all over the country, it is understood, resulting in a flood of appeals to senators and representatives to do something in order to save the sub-stations for the convenience of the public.

Congressman Richard P. Freeman from this district has been alert to the inconvenience that would be caused by the withdrawal of the sub-stations here and has been exercising all the influence at his command to have it made possible for the sub-stations to be retained and continued, while at the same time Postmaster Casper K. Bailey has been working for a month to get this matter straightened out with the postal department and the contractors, but without success. The matter now rests with the United States government to determine whether to give the contractors such increased compensation as they feel they ought to have for the increased work of handling parcel post matter.

CHURCH UNANIMOUS FOR ACCEPTING NOYES OFFER

By a vote that was unanimous, the Central Baptist church decided Thursday night to accept the offer of Charles F. Noyes of New York to give the church $25,000, under certain conditions, this money to apply particularly to additions and improvements on the Gilbert property, northerly of the main church edifice, which when completed will be known as "Carrie Crane Noyes chapel", in offering this handsome gift to the church, of which he is a member, Mr. Noyes stated that it was his desire thereby to perpetuate the name and memory of his mother, Mrs. C. D. Noyes, of 18 Lincoln avenue.

The vote was taken at a business meeting of the church Thursday night, which followed the regular covenant meeting. The pastor, Rev. David A. Pitt presided, and James L. Case, chairman of the special committee appointed to consider the offer by Mr. Noyes, presented the report of the committee which was a recommendation that the offer of Mr. Noyes be accepted with grateful appreciation, that the board of managers be constituted and authorized as a committee to complete and carry out the necessary plans, and that the resolutions be spread upon the church records and a copy sent to Mr. Noyes.

Several of the church members spoke, each one in favor of accepting the offer, and entering into the wonderful opportunity for an enlarged church work which the terms of this offer presented. When a rising vote was called for, not a person in the room remained seated.

Acceptance of the offer imposes upon the church membership the obligation of raising approximately $30,000 more in order to completely carry out a plan for changes and improvements in the Bushnell chapel end of the property. However, a legacy of $10,000 which is shortly to be received by the church can be applied towards the sum of $30,000, leaving $20,000 to be raised by the church membership.

The meeting closed with the singing of "Praise God From Whom All Blessings Flow."

SPEAKER FROM AFRICA TO BE HERE SUNDAY

There is to be a union service of special interest to all Congregationalists at the Norwich Town church, Sunday evening, July 4, at 8.30 (daylight time).

Mrs. Frederick Bridgman of Johannesburg, Natal, South Africa, a speaker of compelling force and power will tell of the work done in this large city, thronged with thousands of mine workers. The American Board of Foreign Missions has established a large social plant here and it will be of interest to many Norwich people to know that Rev. Arthur G. Adams, of this city, went to Johannesburg last November to have charge of this institutional work for the men of the mines. Mr. Adams succeeds Frederick Bridgman at this post and those who go out to hear Mrs. Bridgman on Sunday evening will therefore have the story of life and work there from an eye-witness who tells it especially vividly.

The general public will be welcome to this meeting, and the program will be especially interesting to young people.

NON-SUIT MOTION IS GRANTED IN TREE CASE

Mrs. Kate Fromberg of New York city, whose automobile was damaged in June, 1924, by a limb that fell from a tree in the street in front of 46 Hamilton avenue, lost her suit for $2,000 damages against Gilbert S. Raymond, trustee of the estate of Albert Stafford, late of Norwich. The suit was tried in the common pleas court and after the plaintiff's evidence was in, Judge C. B. Waller granted the motion for non-suit, which was made by Attorney E. W. Perkins, counsel for the defendant.

A big chunk of the limb of the tree was brought into court as an exhibit to show what went through the roof of the Fromber automobile.

RAISE $350,000 FOR MIDDLETOWN "Y" BUILDING

Spurred on by the offer of former Senator Edward W. Hazen of Haddam to give practically dollar for dollar of the amount raised, Middletown completed the campaign to raise $350,000 for a modern Y. M. C. A. building Wednesday night shortly before midnight.

Wednesday morning only $201,000 had been raised with the initial gift of Senator Hazen standing at $50,000. With the promise that some good news might break the workers redoubled their efforts and at noon the announcement was made that Senator Hazen would add $100,000 to his original offer and make his gift total $170,000, thus leaving $180,000 for the community to raise.

At the dinner Wednesday night at 6:15 reports from the teams showed that there was still needed $32,000 and the workers were sent out again. It was announced shortly before midnight that the deficit was $21,943.

At this juncture the teams of men who had been raising the money agreed to underwrite $13,500 of the deficit. The balance of the deficit, $8,433, was thereupon underwritten by a small group of business men.

Most of the pledges are payable over a period of two years, and work on the new building will probably not be commenced until that date is reached.

NAVY RECRUITING DRIVE UNDER WAY IN STATE

The recruiting drive for enlistments inaugurated by the navy department on June 25th is well under way and the Connecticut district of the recruiting service is conducting an intensive campaign for first enlistments. The results for the first week have been very gratifying, according to Lieut. Commander Thomas M. Stuck, the navy recruiting officer. Six men were enlisted the first day of the drive and were sent to the training station at Newport, R. I.

A feature of the drive is the enlistment of machinists, boiler-makers, coppersmiths and blacksmiths directly into the third class rating of their branch. A qualified machinist who has had experience with marine machinery can be enlisted as a machinist's mate second class.

The educational advantages offered by the navy are proving particularly attractive to the wide awake youths of Connecticut. The many trades schools maintained by the navy, such as machinists, radio, electricians and hospital apprentices are proving particularly attractive to the many applicants that appear at the various recruiting stations in the state. Lieut. Commander Stuck announces that the recruiting service expects to obtain 24,000 first enlistments during the fiscal year.

DESTROYERS WILL VISIT TWO CONNECTICUT CITIES

The navy recruiting offices for this city, Chief Quartermaster Justin F. McCarthy, U. S. N., announces that the U. S. S. Goff, Lieut. Commander E. D. Langworthy commanding, will visit New Haven over the fourth, and the U. S. S. Barry, Lieutenant Commander J. H. Holt commanding will visit New London at the same time. The Goff and the Barry are destroyers of the post-war type displacing about 1300 tons and having a speed in excess of 35 knots. The armament of this type consists of four 4-inch guns, and twelve torpedo tubes mounted in four triple mounts. These destroyers are attached to the destroyer squadrons of the scouting fleet and are occupied during the summer in training reservists. A detachment of reservists from New York city will be on the Goff during her stay in New Haven.

The vessels will be open to visitors during the afternoons while in port. They expect to arrive the afternoon of the third and remain until the morning of the sixth.

The place of mooring of these naval vessels will be announced later.

STATE'S RECEIPTS IN EXCESS OF EXPENDITURES

During the fiscal year of 1926, which closed Wednesday, the state treasurer received $28,610,057.14. In the fiscal period of 1925 the receipts amounted to $28,338,375.57, an increase for 1926 of $271,302.57.

The state expenditures for 1925 amounted to $27,974,468.75. In 1925 the total payments were $27,140,387.29, an increase of $734,095.86.

The civil list funds in the treasury at the close of the year 1926 amounted to $6,500,126.99, and in 1925 the balance was $4,565,912.99.

The funded debt of the state at the close of the fiscal year of 1926 was $16,291,100. This fund has remained unchanged since 1922 when it was increased from $14,291,100 to $16,291,000. The system which was put into effect a few years since to supercede the custom by which heads of institutions were allowed to draw on the comptroller from their appropriations for money to maintain balances in the banks is giving satisfaction. Instead of having balances in banks to the credit of the institutions all payments are made by the state treasurer. Deputy State Treasurer Thomas H. Judd said that there will be ample funds in the treasury to meet every outstanding obligation without borrowing money. There was no money borrowed last year.

JUDGE RESERVES DECISION IN BOUNDARY DISPUTE

Judge C. B. Waller took the papers and reserved decision in the common pleas court here Thursday in the suit of Mrs. Mary Donovan against Powel Stacewicz both of Norwich.

The action arose over a dispute on the boundary line of properties on Roath street belonging to both parties. The plaintiff claims that a retaining wall encroaches upon her land, but this is denied by the defendant. Attorney Edmund W. Perkins is counsel for Mrs. Donovan and Attorney Arthur F. Libby for the defendant.

STONINGTON'S INFANT DEATHS LOWEST OF CITIES

The record low rate for infant mortality attained in 1924 by cities of the United States lacked a fraction of a point of being equalled in 1925, according to the report issued Thursday by the American Child Health association, New York city. The report for 632 cities, having population of 10,000 or over in 1920, show that for every 1,000 babies born in 1925, 73 died during the year. The exact rate was 72.6 as compared with 73.2 in 1924.

The report relates to the cities within the birth registration area of the United States, which includes 23 states and the District of Columbia. This area was first established in 1915 and then consisted of only ten states in addition to the district. States admitted are those in which the United States census bureau finds a reporting efficiency of 90 per cent or better. There are now 641 cities included in this area and the figures given above are based on the returns from 632 cities, which represent over 99 per cent of the urban population of the area.

Stonington and Winona, Minn., achieve the lowest rates of all cities, the figure being 32. These cities are in the group having populations of 10,000 to 25,000 in 1920.

Of the largest cities, those of 250,000 population or more, Seattle, Washington, was lowest with a rate of 45. For more than four years Seattle has had the lowest rate among the large cities. In the large population group two other west coast cities were among the lowest three, namely, Portland, Ore., 46, and San Francisco, 53. The rates for the ten largest cities of the birth registration area were New York 64, Cleveland 66, Los Angeles 67, Chicago 75, Philadelphia 77, Detroit 77, Baltimore 82, Pittsburgh 82, Boston 83, Buffalo 86.

Salt Lake City, Utah, was lowest in the population group from 100,000 to 250,000, with a rate of 45.

In the group of cities from 50,000 to 100,000, Union City, N. J., led with a rate of 38. This low rate it is stated, is due to the absence of hospitals, many baby deaths occurring outside of the city. The corrected rate for Union City furnished by the state was 70. The next lowest city in this population group was Brockton, Mass., whose rate was 39.

Oak Park, Ill., with a rate of 35 was lowest in the group from 25,000 to 50,000.

The rates for the municipalities of over 10,00 population show that the cities of Utah lead with a composite rate of 47. The cities of Oregon are second with a rate of 48; the cities of Washington third with 50; cities of North Dakota and Wyoming fourth each with rates of 51.

The urban records of 16 states show reductions in infant mortality in 1925 as compared with 1924. A year ago 26 states showed declines in urban mortality, over the preceding year.

When grouped by size the cities with populations over 250,000 show the lowest infant death rate, 71.2. The cities of 10,000 to 25,000 population have the highest average rate, 76.

The statistics issued by the American Child Health association are based on records of the United States census bureau supplemented by preliminary returns from state and local registrars. The report is published annually with the object of interesting the entire country in the reduction of infant mortality and the necessity for complete birth registration. The association strongly supports the government's efforts to have the entire country within the birth registration area by 1930, for it feels that a complete record of births and deaths is essential for the carrying out of an effective child health program.

SEMPLE McPHERSON HAS RETURNED TO LOS ANGELES

DOUGLAS, Ariz., July 1.—(AP)—Aimee Semple McPherson, Lost Angeles evangelist, her mother and a party of searchers returned to Los Angeles tonight after another futile search in the country along both sides of the international boundary line for the shack from which she says she escaped from kidnappers June 22.

Indications at Los Angeles were that the county grand jury would investigate the circumstances surrounding Mrs. McPherson's disappearance at Ocean Park, Calif., May 18 and her reappearance in Douglas more than a month later with a story of having been kidnapped and held for ransom.

Herman H. Kline, Los Angeles detective chief and deputy district attorney and Joe Ryan, who have been conducting an investigation of the case, were summoned before the jury late today.

MANY MAPLES BEING DESTROYED BY WILT

Because of the recent spread of the destructive wilt of maples in various parts of the country it is thought advisable in future plantings, in limited localities where the wilt is prevalent, to substitute other kinds of trees for maples, says the United States department of agriculture.

Maple wilt, which was first reported in the United States 11 years ago, is now known in spots in the region extending from North Carolina and Tennessee to Canada and westward to Wisconsin. This disease has been noted principally upon Norway and sugar maples, according to department circular 352-C, Maple Wilt.

The fungus, which frequently gains entrance to healthy trees through wounds, can be carried from tree to tree by insects and by pruning tools, though there are various other ways for its spread. The rate of spread of the wilt varies greatly.

The disease has been found principally upon street trees, but in several different states it has been observed in nurseries, and in three places it has been discovered in native forest growth of maples near towns or cities. The suggested treatment consists of sanitary measures, such as cutting out and burning infected parts and the protection of wounds.

RUSSIANS COMPETE FOR ROOM IN SCHOOL

Apportioning educational facilities among children strictly on a basis of trade union membership of their parents has not proved entirely satisfactory in Russia, according to Mr. Khodorowski, assistant commissioner of education.

Some places in the high schools of the Russian Socialist Federated Soviet Republic (Russia proper) will be reserved for the children of certain classes of society, but the largest number will be filled by competitive examinations.

POWER CO. TEAM NOSES OUT SAINTS IN HECTIC TWILIGHT LEAGUE GAME

It is one of the most exciting and hectic games ever played on the Duwell Field, or any field for that matter, the Eastern Connecticut Power Co. nosed out the Saint Joseph's nine 10 to 9, Thursday night.

It was predicted that when these two teams met, there would be plenty of fireworks, and last night's game certainly afforded plenty of excitement.

It was a see-saw affair, the tide of battle turning first to one team, and then to the other, the final outcome remaining uncertain until the final inning, when the E. C. P. pushed across the winning run.

It was a game of exceptionally free-hitting, and one which afforded the rival pitchers plenty of trouble. Tony West, pitched the entire contest for the Saints and was touched up for 14 hits. Tony did not seem to be able to fool the E. C. P. batters, who smashed out safe hits repeatedly when hits meant runs.

Johnny Greene, started in the box for the E. C. P. and retired in favor of Tommy Simcox in the fourth with score 6 to 3 against him. Simcox pitched to the last two batters in this inning, and Lefty Dugas finished the game. Lefty showed up the best of any of the twirlers, holding the Saints to one hit in three innings while fanning five.

The E. C. P. got off to a substantial lead in the first inning, when they scored five runs, on hits by Whitney, Sheffiot, Murphy, Barry and Smith, and a hit batsman.

After two scoreless innings, the Saints came back strong in the third, scoring 4 runs. J. Gilbert led off with a single and went to second when Nap Liberty walked. West hit into a double play, Cimikowski to Barry to Murphy. Gilbert going to third. Bill Liberty scored Gilbert with a single, and when Barry juggled Kosiowski's grounder, Gilbert went to second, and Koslowski was safe at first. L. Gilbert doubled, scoring his brother, and Koslowski took third. Both scored a moment later on Robertson's long hit over the fence for two bases.

In the following inning, the Saints went to the fore for the first time, scoring twice on hits by Raille, J. Gilbert and West.

Not to be outdone, the Power boys came back in their half of the inning with two runs, making the score 7 to 3 in their favor.

After both teams had gone scoreless in the fifth, the Saints again took the lead in the sixth with three more runs. Raille led off by getting hit, took second on J. Gilbert's sacrifice, and scored on Nap Liberty's double. West grounded out to second, and Nap Liberty went to third. Bill Liberty walked. He attempted to steal second, and when Cimikowski cut off Sheffiot's throw, Nap Liberty was trapped between third and home. Sheffiot then threw wild over Whitney's head at third and Nap scored. Bill Liberty in the meantime, had rounded third also and started for home. Greene, recovering the ball, in left field, threw wild over the plate and Liberty was safe.

In their half of the frame, the E. C. P. tied the contest again at nine runs apiece on an error by Nap Liberty, a two base hit by Lefty Dugas and a single by Eddie Murphy.

After the Saints had been retired in one-two-three order in their half of the final inning, the Power Co. went out and won, scoring the necessary counter before a man was put out. Smith led off with a pass. He stole second, and when no one took Bill Liberty's throw to catch him, went on to third. Johnny Greene then proceeded to win the game with a hit just over the infield, scoring Smith with the winning tally.

Tonight's Game

Tonight's game will be between the Bon Tons and Yantic.

The Bon Tons are reported to have strengthened their lineup considerably and are out to win their first game in the league at the expense of Yantic on the other hand are equally determined to come out on top and are bringing down their strongest lineup to make sure of the decision. Bill Jones will probably pitch for Yantic with Charlie doing the catching, while Robertson, who showed such fine form in the box last week will be the probable choice for the Bon Tons. The game will be called at 6:30 p. m. sharp, and Umpires Morin and Oney will handle the game in their usual capable manner.

GAS AND ELECTRIC WIN FIRST GAME OF SEASON

The Gas and Electric team won its first victory in the Jr. Twi league at the Academy campus Thursday evening, defeating the Nordics by the score of 14 to 7. Woodmansee who pitched for the winners was in fine form and kept his opponents hits well scattered. Brumme caught for the Gas and Electric. Pete Labenski pitched for the losers and Boyens caught. Gunderman of the Nordics featured with a home run through the center field fence.

To-night's Game

To-night's contest in the Jr. Twi league is a postponed game and will bring to-gether the Bearcats and Centennials. Both teams are considered to be exceptionally fast and a good game should result. Keenan and Vitano will be the probable battery for the Centennials while Phalen and Lamory will be the Bearcats probable battery.

The game will start at 6:30 p. m. sharp.

Miles Wins Another Race.

YANTIC FAN ANSWERS LETTER OF BON JOUR

Dear Mr. Editor:—

Replying to Bon Jour of Fitchville who had an article in this morning's paper, and who claims to be writing for the Fitchville fans, and who appears to be all "het" up over the way Yantic is managing their affairs, we do not need any advice from the Fitchville fans as to how we should run our team, or what duties should be assigned to our managing committee of three. For your information, Sam Carden handles the Sunday games while George Gaskell and Charles Peckham look after the twilight games and we are indeed proud of the way they have acquitted themselves. Do you not think five straight games to their credit is a good record?

Certainly we go out of Yantic for players if we feel we lack the proper material. We try to put on real games and the reason for last Sunday's game being so one sided was because the majority of the Rubes came from Fitchville. We were disgusted with the brand of ball played by the Rubes, but a manager can never tell what he is up against until he has given them a trial. We are fearful lest the so-called Fitchville team managed by Pat Sullivan of Horrahville meets with the same fate next Sunday and the game prove as uninteresting. Let us hope that Pat fully realizes what he is up against so that the crowds that attend our Sunday games will not go away feeling they were not well paid in witnessing the national game on the Yantic diamond.

Now Bon Jour, the $50 has been covered by one of Yantic's most enthusiastic fans, and is now in the hands of Mr. Field, at Fitchville Store. Why did Mr. Sullivan not make it $100 as he did in 1924? Is it for the reason he feels his 1926 aggregation does not come up to the 1924 standard? Remember, Pat, how hard it was for your 1924 backers to drop their stakes. Fitchville hated to let go and had it not been for the fact the money was held by an honest man Yantic probably would be whistling for it yet. Well Bon Jour you can kiss bon jour to the $50 next Sunday as I understand Yantic is putting on practically their twilight league outfit and you certainly should know what this means if you have been following their record. Yantic is proud of their team and also feel very grateful to the loyal supporters who are making it possible to produce players with such rare ability.

Now Mr. Editor, Yantic has put up and the stage is all set. Andy Grieve, our treasurer, says he has already marked up the $50 on the credit side of the ledger. You can't fool Andy. Pat Sullivan, with his ball nine hailing from all corners of the state and his rooters are not disturbing Yantic fans in the least.

Yours for the fifty,
A. FAN.

THOMAS PITCHES NO-HIT, NO-RUN GAME AT DANIELSON

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, July 1.—The Paco team went on a batting rampage in the third and fourth innings of today night's game to beat Conn. Mills, 12 to 0, while Thomas, the crack little pitcher, turned in the first no-hit, no-run game of the league. Cowery who was hit and Kelley, who was safe on an error, were the only two players to reach first for Conn. Mills. The Paco batsmen gathered 15 hits, sending Marland to the showers. Thomas fanned six and had but four batsmen face him while Marland struck out two and Perreault one. A rather unusual coincidence occurred when Shorty Stockton hit a triple and double in one inning. MCTIGUE OUTPOINTS JOHNNY RISKO AT GARDEN

McTigue's victory came as a surprise to fistic followers following Risko's victory by a large margin over the present champion, Paul Berlenbach, in the same ring several weeks ago. McTigue lost the crown to Berlenbach last summer.

Dick (Honeyboy) Finnegan, southpaw pride of Boston, won a pudgey decision over the Steve Smith of Bridgeport, Conn, in a 10-round slugging match. Finnegan's sharpshooting style was puzzling to his opponent, who suffered a severe beating. Finnegan weighed 129 1-2, Smith 128.

X. Y. CLUB OF NEW HAVEN AT MARTIN GROUNDS SUNDAY

On Sunday the attraction at the J. B. Martin grounds will be the fast X. Y. club of New Haven. This club needs no introduction to the fans in this vicinity, having defeated some of the fastest semi-pro clubs in this state. This will be their first appearance in this part of the state this season having played last season at the State Hospital grounds, the New Haven boys winning by the score of 7 to 3, only being defeated 5 times in the season of 1925 out of twenty starts. The Velvetmen have been put through a stiff workout during this week after being in a slump for the last two games and are out for blood Sunday so one of the best games of the season will take place at the J. B. Martin grounds. Sunday, both lineups of these two clubs will appear in tomorrows paper. Simcox and Roy will officiate.

WILSON'S DRIVE WINS PITCHING BATTLE FOR CUBS

CHICAGO, July 1.—(AP)—Hack Wilson's smash into the right field bleachers broke up a pitchers' duel and gave Chicago a 3 to 1 victory over Cincinnati here today. Chicago tied the score in the ninth inning on doubles by Freigau and Scott. The visitors had scored a run by bunching two singles with an error. Cooney was chased from the game by Umpire McCormick in the tenth inning when he protested a decision at third. Heathcote saved the game for Chicago in the early innings when he leaped in front of the screen in right field for a catch which prevented a home run with a man on base.

MACHINES ON THE FARM.

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

The more I see of machine-work on the farm, the more I don't like it.

I mean machine-work as it is ordinarily done by Tom, Dick and Harry, the average farm hands.

When Mr. Farmer himself or some expert mechanic from the factory take charge the results are apt to be somewhat better. Somewhat. But not so awfully good, at that.

Not that I would advise the discarding of machines on farms, and the return to all hard-work. We're living in a machine age, surrounded by machinery and machine-made products, and we've got to swim with the current if we don't want to be stranded on a mud-bank.

Furthermore, there are certain advantages in the use of machines. They work faster; they do more in an hour or a day; they make it possible for the lonely farmer who can't hire help to get over more ground, all by himself, than he and six hired men could by hand and on foot

No, we're going to keep on using machines. Probably we shall use more and more for many years to come. We're in much the position of the boy who was furiously digging after a woodchuck. "Ye don't expect to git him, do ye?" asked an onlooker. "Got to," breathlessly responded the digger: "we're out o' meat." We can't hire hand-labor any more for the two excellent reasons that there isn't enough hireable to go 'round, and such as can be got wants more wages than all the produce it can raise will sell for.

"Needs must when the devil drives," says an old adage. "Beggars can't be choosers," says another. We've got to do our work with such tools as we can obtain. Whether they're the most desirable or not is quite immaterial to the question. It's machines or nothing.

But they don't do as good work, they don't do as clean work, they don't do as thorough work, and they don't produce as desirable results as hand-work.

When I come to compare the work done and the crops produced and the fields shown in my own immediate neighborhood, 60 or 70 years ago when every stitch or work was done by hand, with the work and the crops on same fields, today, when practically all the work is done by machine, it's decidedly discouraging.

Right in front of my windows lie two meadows containing 156 acres of absolutely level land, low and a little wet in spots, but without a stone or a hillock bigger than a golfer's "tee." Sixty years ago those 156 acres were mown, by hand, to the last inch and into the smallest fence-corner. They were raked by hand and loaded by hand and the scatterings cleaned up by hand. Every year more than 250 whacking, four-ox-team loads of hay were drawn off them. And every year, after the haying was done, they were as trim and as neat-looking and as smooth as a lawn on some rich man's estate. There wasn't a clump of weed or a bit of brush in the whole 156 acres.

Then came machines, mowing-machines and horse-drawn tedders and rakes, etc. Of course the machines couldn't get into the fence-corners. Nor could they handle the small clumps of alders which started here and there. Nor was it safe to drive them across the "soft" places where men on foot found it advisable to watch their steps. So the old rail fences gradually developed into "hedge-rows" of scraggly brush, every year encroaching farther and farther into the grass land. And the "soft" spots turned into tangles of cattails and Joe-Pye-weed and the like. And the small clumps of little alders grew into groves of big alders. And first one area, then another, was abandoned and fenced off for pasture for young stock.

Till now of that original 156 acres less than 50 are mown. Most of the rest is such a jungle of weeds and bushes and bogged swamp-holes as to be unfit even for pasture.

For several years the use of tractor-drawn plows, harrows, etc., has been spreading in my neighborhood. I've had occasion, this season, to watch quite closely the work of some of these machines. It is quite certain that they move a good deal faster than oxen or horses. It is also clear that, on perfectly level land, free from stones and stumps and swales, with ample headlands for turning around, they do creditable looking jobs. But if one happens to catch into a concealed stump or stone, there's trouble. If one comes to a bit of soft land it is extremely apt to get mired. And when it tackles a field with even the gentlest slope, it simply won't turn the sods over up-hill. The driver, perched up on his seat over the tractor, has no control over the shares and mould-boards, such as the man walking between the plowy-handles has, and must perforce take what they do. The result is such a tanglification of torn and tilted but only half-turned sod as no harrow can fine into workable, soil.—I know of one neighbor who has actually had to put in four days of the hardest kind of hard work with a hand-hoe, on what should have been a four hours job, had his potato-land been properly plowed. Even now there seems to be grave doubt whether he's got the land in such shape as to make the use of the horse-hoe possible, next time. He may have saved half-a-day in the plowing. It has cost him at least three days and a half hard work, and nobody knows how many bushels of crop. For the potatoes there aren't doing well and aren't going to.

I have plowed that same field, many times, with the steady old farm horses and always found it possible by the exercise of some care and a little gumption to plow it well. But I had to do something more than grip a steering-wheel and occasionally twitch a lever. I had to keep an eye lifting to see what the plow was going into next, while I was at the same time watching how it was turning the slice on the mould-board, and steering the share-point so it would do its work. It called for a keen eye and a steady hand and gave ample occupation to all the back and leg and arm muscles in my corporosity. But, when the job was done, it had been done as well as I could do it. I didn't have to do the work all over again with a hand hoe.

The simple truth seems to be that machines will do farm work faster and cheaper than it can be done by hand. They also do it less efficiently. They do more work and faster work but poorer work.

Nevertheless, we've got to use machines. We've got to rely upon them. The old-fashioned farm-hand who knew what good farming was and could be trusted to do it is no longer available. He's either died of old age or has swapped his 12-hour day under the hot sun for an eight-hour day in shop or factory at double the wages. We've simply got to depend on machines, whether we wholly approve their work or not. As President Cleveland once remarked: "It's a condition that confronts us, not a theory."

If I were a young farmer, I should use machines. Of course. They would be the best machines thus far made. And I should live in hopes that gradually they would be improved by deft touches here and there, as experience developed their faults, till they attained at least as near perfection as the self-regulating, almost automatic devices used in shoe-shops and textile mills and automobile factories.

In the meantime, while waiting for them, it seems to me that wisdom would suggest to the man who drives them that he find out how they're made, what they are capable of doing, and how to make them do their best, regardless of the trouble or labor it may cost him.

In other words, we should use our farm machines, not as lazy men's loafing seats, but as tools to be managed and guided and controlled so as to do the best work possible to them.

I knew farmers whose only idea of a cultivator or horse-hoe is to let the horse do all the work, while they saunter nonchalantly behind and rouse to action only when the end of a row makes turning the cultivator around necessary. I know one who once went to sleep on his mowing machine and only woke up when the cutter-bar went smash against a stump the horses evidently didn't see. So far as I have been able to observe, the usually youthful farmers who use tractor-drawn plows seem to think they've done all they can be expected to if they keep the guide-wheel in the old furrow and lift the shares out before they hit the end fence. Perhaps this is all they can do with such tractors and plows as they have. I don't know, never having ridden one. But it isn't all they ought to do, by a long shot. They ought to have and to exercise some sort of control over the plows; to see that they're doing their best work and to make them do it if they aren't.

There's a real difference between a chauffeur's job and a farmer's with a plow: between a truck-driver's work on a dray and a farmer's on a mowing-machine. The chauffeur's and truckdriver's business is to get somewhere as speedily as feasible, without doing too much damage on the way; the farmer's job is also to get somewhere, but to do as much and as good work as he can, en route.

If anybody thinks farming can be transformed into an "easy snap" simply by getting enough machinery on the old place.—why, he's got another think coming as the boys used to say.

There always have been and doubtless always will be lazy farmers, who spend more time dodging hard work than doing it. They are the sort who want congress to coddle them. There also always have been and doubtless always will be some few successful farmers, who have usually succeeded in keeping everlastingly at it and doing the very best they knew how, regardless or whether it took hard work or not.

Machines are, probably, more helpful than congress. But neither will ever make farming an "easy snap" or a lazy man's amusement.

VOTE KATHERINE LUDINGTON ONE OF STATE'S OUTSTANDING WOMEN

Nominated by the people of Connecticut and selected by a state wide committee of judges, the following have been named as Connecticut's outstanding women in the fields of civics, art, literature and music:

Civics, Miss Katherine Ludington, Old Lyme.

Art, Mrs. Evelyn B. Longman Batchelder, Windsor.

Literature, Mrs. Mabel Osgood Wright, Fairfield.

Music, Miss Rosa Ponselle, Meriden.

The announcement was made in an Associated Press dispatch Thursday.

At the request of Mrs. George H. Lorimer, chairman of the states' committee of the Sesqui-centennial, the state commissioners appointed by the various governors were asked to send in the names of the four outstanding women in public life of each common wealth represented at the Sesqui-centennial. Mrs. George Maynard Minor, of Waterford, and Mrs. Clarence H. Wickham, of Hartford, Connecticut's commissioners, felt that the fairest method of selecting was by means of a state-wide contest through the newspapers in many cities, thus allowing entire popular nomination, with final choice left to the following judge named by the commissioners: President Benjamin T. Marshall, of Connecticut college, New London; Mrs. Leonard M. Daggett of New Haven, former president of Colonial Dames of Connecticut; Mrs. Charles Humphrey Bissell, of Southington state regent, Connecticut Society, D. A. R.; Prof. William Lyon Phelps, of Yale university, New Haven; Col. Francis Parsons, of Hartford, U. S. Security Trust Co.; Albert I. Prince, Hartford, city editor, The Hartford Times; Harry I. Horton, Hartford, editorial writer, Hartford Courant.

A short biography of each of those named by the above committee of judges, with a photograph, will appear in book form, the original to be held at the state's building, otherwise known as the State building, in the Street of 776 at the sesqui-centennial grounds. The photos of the four Connecticut women will be hung in Connecticut's building at the exposition. Photos and short biographical sketches of the women chosen by the other states of the union will also be printed in book form.

Miss Katherine Ludington, daughter of Charles Henry Ludington and Josephine Lord (Noyes) Ludington, was born in New York city Oct. 16, 1869. She was educated at Miss Comstock's school in New York city, and Miss Porter's school at Farmington. Miss Ludington studied painting at Miss Porter's under Robert Brandegee, and later in New York under Montague Flagg and at the Art Students' league. From 1884 to 1890 she was principally occupied with painting and from 1890 until 1900 she did social settlement work in New York.

In 1912 she became interested in the woman suffrage movement, working first in Old Lyme, then as chairman of New London county, and from 1917 to 1920 as president of the Connecticut Woman Suffrage association. The campaign for ratification of the 19th amendment occurred during the last year of her presidency. In January, 1920, Miss Ludington was elected director of the first, or New England, region of the National League of Women Voters, and in April 1922, became treasurer of the National League of Women Voters, which office she still holds.

Other Connecticut women nominated by the public as the outstanding women of the state, and given very careful consideration by the committee of judges, are as follows:

Mrs. Joseph W. Alsop of Avan, patriotism and politics.

Mrs. James Parkhill Andrews of Hartford, patriotic service and Americanization work.

Miss Anna Hempstead Branch of New London, poetess.

Miss Florence Griswold of Old Lyme, organizer of the Old Lyme Art association.

Mrs. Frank Mitchell of Norwich, first woman in state to be appointed on commission by governor.

FREIGHT RATE ON COAL IS HURTING NEW ENGLAND

Despite the heat of Wednesday there was a large attendance at the weekly luncheon of the Norwich Rotary club at the Wauregan hotel and the meeting was one of the most spirited in many weeks, due largely to the unsuppressable enthusiasm of the energetic song-leader of the day, Lucius Briggs. Seldom does the club experience so many novelties along the musical lines as it did Wednesday. There were solos, duets, trios, sextettes and even chorus singing with varying volume and quality with plenty of static to make it interesting.

President Edwin A. Harris presided at the meeting which was devoted largely to business matters and a very interesting report of the Convention of Rotary International at Denver, Col., given by Secretary Edward I. Jewett, local delegate to the convention. Mr. Jewett told interestingly of the convention with its marvelous pageant representing the growth of Rotary. His highly instructive and interesting addresses and the most pleasing social events. In speaking of the addresses Mr. Jewett said that there were several outstanding talks, one by a 12 year old boy who spoke for the boys on what Rotary had done and could do for the youth of the nation and world. Another interesting talk at the convention was by President Green of the American Federation of Labor who said that he could assure the American people that there would never be a general strike in this country such as was recently suffered by the British. He said that American labor and American capital could agree on things that were for the general welfare of the nation. Other talks were equally as brilliant and instructive but pertained more closely to Rotary.

E. LaRue Bliven, chairman of the programme committee for the month of July announced his programme as follows:

July 14—William B. Park, song leader; John J. O'Rourke, current topic speaker with an address by President John Reardon of the Putnam Rotary club.

July 21—Business meeting, with the Educational Committee in charge and Joseph C. Worth as song leader.

July 28—Charles A. Gager, song leader. Annual visit to William H. Oat's Ludlow farm.

Willis Austin will be programme chairman for August and Grosvenor Ely for September.

Two Boy Scouts will be sent to the summer camp by the trustees of the Dr. John S. Blackmar Boys' Fund.

Charles W. Taggart of the Norwich gas and electric department, was the current topic speaker of the meeting and although it was extremely hot his topic was on fuel. Mr. Taggart spoke as follows:

As an event which is not only current, but one that is ever before us, is the matter of our fuel supply, particularly here in New England, where practically no fuel has been found in nature's storehouse. It has, therefore, been necessary to secure our supply outside of the New England states.

The question of freight rates has always been an important item in the delivered cost of fuel. It was my privilege during the past week to attend a hearing called by the New England Governors' association before the interstate commerce commission that met at Atlantic City to take testimony on the matter of freight rates, particularly as to an all rail rate from West Virginia fields.

Some of you may recall during the past winter, after a hearing on this same matter, the interstate commerce commission entered an order fixing the temporary rate, which gave us some relief during the strike in the anthracite fields of Pennsylvania. This rate expired on April 30, and with the expiration of the rate, competition from the West Virginia fields to all rail points of delivery was shut off, and New England was again at the mercy of their Pennsylvania producers and carriers. There are in West Virginia coals that are not substitutes but are superior to those mined in Pennsylvania for household and industrial uses. For instance, our Norwich gas supply, for the past 18 months, has been made from coal from this field, formerly we used coke or anthracite. We have, at least assured ourselves that we are not without competition insofar as our supply for fuel for gas making purposes is concerned.

New England, as a whole, should get back of this important matter and do all in its power to secure the establishment of through-all rail rates from this competitive source of supply. Past experience has taught us that every time there is an interruption of supply from the anthracite fields, due to wage troubles or other causes, the price of fuel has gone up and it never returns to its original point.

New England was represented at the hearing by E. W. Gourse, a member of the New England Fuel commission, a Mr. C. L. Evansen, president of Manufacturers' Association of Connecticut, W. E. Day, head of the traffic committee of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, and your humble sevant representing ten gas companies. Producing companies from West Virginia fields are naturally doing their part to bring about the establishment of through-all rail rates, and were well represented at the hearing, but this is not enough.

While New England had one representative, the operators and railroads had ten, and the best legal talent that money would secure, and this talent was used in cross examination of the New England witnesses.

How the rate increased.—Temporary rate was $5.70. The rate after temporary rate was abolished, and went in some cases as high as $16.75. It seemed the general opinion that this hearing later will develop a further case in which a readjustment of rates from all coal producing points will be the subject for consideration. Public utility commissions, in some instances, were afraid to support this movement due to political reasons.

Again let the repeat New England should show some real action if they expect to get a lasting and final relief from our present fuel situation.

JEWETT CITY

MAKING ALTERATIONS AT THE BALTIC CHURCH

(Special to the Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, July 1.—For several Sundays the morning services at the Baptist church will be held in the vestry. Extensive repairs in the audience room will include the removal of the old plaster, that had done service since 1846. New plaster, with attractive designs of redecoration, are partly completed. Additional side-lights are to be placed at intervals on the east and west walls, which, with the chandelier and organ bulbs, will perfect the illumination of the room.

Necessary repairs have been made on the roof and to the belfry. Upon the completion no one will find a more attractive place of worship.

Nearly 100 relatives and friends of Rev. and Mrs. William J. Reynolds gathered at the "Manse", the Congregational parsonage in Newent, Monday evening, to enjoy the informal reception in honor of the tenth anniversary of the marriage of the host and his good wife. At the time of their wedding, John Nicholas Burnham, organist at the Lutheran church of the Epiphany in New York city gave the musical program. Monday evening Mr. Burnham was there, and entertained the company with many solos on the piano. Mr. Burnham has been totally blind since infancy and never saw a note or scale, which makes his performance upon the instrument little short of wonderful. He is a composer as well as instructor on the piano and organ.

The "Manse", with its low ceiled rooms and ancient architecture, challenges the admiration of all who step beneath its hospitable roof. Records tell of its having been built in another century, 136 years ago. Mr. Reynolds is the pastor of Newent Congregational church, and incidentally, the owner of the Pilgrim dahlia gardens, where more than a thousand rare and beautiful varieties are approaching bloom.

What is to be said of the bride presents itself in her rare personality upon the instant of acquaintance. A lasting friendship is established between herself and everyone she meets. That night, the ancient house, the soft light of the oil lamps that had been placed about the rooms and the pleasant company went to make up a picture of peace and home, not soon to pass from the memory of those who were present. Ice cream, cake and fruit punch were served during the evening. Besides individual gifts, Dr. G. H. Jennings, acting for the guests, presented a purse of $60 which the groom accepted, with words of appreciation. Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds were entertaining for the occasion, Mr. Burnham and Mr. and Mrs. William M. Hoag, with their daughter, Marjorie and son, Donald, of Westfield, N. J., also Miss Elizabeth Rosebrooke of Webster, Mass.

40,000 UNION CLOAK AND SUIT WORKERS HAVE GONE ON STRIKE IN NEW YORK CITY

NEW YORK, July 1—(AP)—Scenes of women and girls walked out in the latest struggle in the garment industry, reminiscent of the great garment strikes of 1833 and 1925 were re-enacted in the metropolitan district today.

Forty thousand union cloak and suit workers, including a large percentage of women and girls, walked out in the latest struggle in the garment industry. Sixteen hundred shops, which make 75 per cent of the ready-to-wear cloaks and suits sold in the United States, are effected, including some in New Jersey.

The present strike is unusual in that the workers are not striking against their employers, the manufacturers, but against the jobbers, who have no employees, but control the output of the shops affected. The workers demands include a forty-hour week instead of the present 44-hour week, increased wages and a guarantee of 36 weeks work a year. They are members of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union.

Keep Your Nerve

It matters very little who you are,
Or in what field of effort you may serve,
No one your way to triumph long can bar,
Provided you can only keep your nerve.

If you a calm demeanor can maintain
When other men are nervous and unstrung,
Experience and reason have made plain
You may possess the things they might have won.

In games of sport, or everyday affairs,
The thing that one from his great purpose swerves
And in the gloomy list of failures snares,
Is that he does not well control his nerves.

The jockey in the sulky on the course,
Just when his steed is speeding round the curve,
Would come to grief as surely as his horse,
Should he in that great crisis lose his nerve.

The captain standing bravely at the wheel
When his good ship is plunging, tempest-tossed,
Would be undone, should he by act reveal
That o'er his nerve he government had lost.

Yield not to anger, wheresoe'er you toil,
Would you the best of all great things deserve;
So shall you ne'er your disposition spoil,
And this will aid you most to keep your nerve.

—Thomas F. Porter, in Boston Globe.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

The Young Killers Are Banded

Man's dominion, when he tries,
Prevaileth even in the skies.
—Old Mother Nature.

This is largely true if not wholly true. For instance, take the case of Killer the Duck Hawk. Lord of the air was he. Of all the feathered folk none could surpass him in speed of wing. Fearless was he, and bold. Yet Farmer Brown's Boy brought to him the fear of man. For Farmer Brown's Boy found his nest and climbed to it, even though it were built on the edge of the world; and there Killer's children were at the mercy of Farmer Brown's Boy. Had Farmer Brown's Boy had a gun with him, Killer and Mrs. Killer would also have been at his mercy, for love of the children brought them nearer and nearer until they were perched but a few feet away.

But Farmer Brown's Boy had no gun, for long ago he put his gun away. Nor did he harm those baby Duck Hawks, despite the fact that they were being fed with his pigeons. Instead he went home with the resolve that he would keep his pigeons shut up until the nesting season of the Duck Hawks was over. He was highly delighted, was Farmer Brown's Boy, for he knew he had seen what comparatively few had seen, the home of the winged free-booter of the air — the Duck Hawk. It had been a wonderful experience—that climb to the little rock shelf on the face of the cliff, "the edge of the world," as Farmer Brown's Boy called it.

Ten days later he made the climb again, and this time he found the young Hawks big enough to resent his presence and to strike at him when he reached over toward them. Meanwhile he had learned a great deal about the Duck Hawk. He knew that it traveled great distances, and the thought came to him that he would band these young before they left the nest. Then if anything should happen to one of them in some far distant place that band might be returned and thus he would be able to know where the young bird hatched there on the Big Mountain had journeyed to.

He waited just as long as he dared. Then, with the bands in his pocket,

Then, with bands in his pockets, he once more made the climb to what he called "the edge of the world".

he once more made the climb to what he called "the edge of the world." When he put his head above the edge of the little shelf he was startled at the size of the three Hawks there. In their eyes was all the wildness and fierceness of their parents. When he reached for one it struck at him savagely and backed away. But he finally secured it and fastened the little numbered band around one leg. It was a little silvery aluminum band, and he fitted it so that it would slip up and down easily, but would not chafe. One by one he banded the three birds. The last one, as he set it back on the shelf of rock, took two steps to the edge and then abruptly pitched off, beating its great wings for its first flight. Such a screaming as there was on the part of Killer and Mrs. Killer as they watched this first flight of the young Duck Hawk.

Around the face of the cliff the young bird disappeared and Farmer Brown's Boy could hear the screaming of the parents. There was an anxious note in those screams, but the note of fear was not there. The other two young Hawks teetered on the edge of the shelf, but they did not quite dare launch off into space as the first one had done. So Farmer Brown's Boy left them, and when he reached the foot of the ledges and looked back, the two young birds were still trying to get up courage enough to try those mighty wings of theirs. The one who had flown he discovered in the top of a tree and he knew that all was well with him.

"Soon," said he, "they will be sailing the skies and no man's hand will ever touch them again while they are alive; but always they will carry the little band and it will be a pledge that my hand will never be turned against them. It will be a pledge that so far as I am concerned they have the same right to live that I have. And long may they live!"

When a tire blew out on Joe Vonderhaar's automobile as he was passing a pasture at Fort Madison, Ia., six mules stampeded, broke through the fence and kicked the automobile full of holes.

Summoned to court for failing to have a muzzle on her dog, Mrs. Charlotte Kalabza of Astoria, L. I., pleaded, with an explanation. "He's ten years old," she informed the court. "He hasn't a tooth in his head and no matter how hard he might try to bite anybody, he couldn't."

Representatives of the 42 states that now have state parks, forests, or similar natural areas open to the people for educational purposes will meet at Hot Springs, Ark., for their sixth national conference, June 14 to 16. John Barton Payne, chairman of the conference, says that since the movement was organized on a national basis at Des Moines, Ia., in 1921, the number of states having parks has doubled, and the number of preserves in such systems has shown ever greater growth, so that the area now included is nearly 7,000,000 acres. The goal of the movement is "a state park every 100 miles."

NEW LONDON RESTAURANT OWNERS HELD FOR TRIAL IN SUPERIOR COURT

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 1—Three restaurant men were today found probably guilty of incendiarism and were held for trial at the September term of the criminal superior court. The men are Greeks—Arthur Boondris, Gregory Pappas and Thomas Stavros, partners in the Sea Food restaurant at 93 Bank street. Sunday midnight the building was discovered in flames. There was an odor of ether when the first of the firemen entered the place, which was about five minutes after the alarm sounded. The work of the firemen was such that the fire did not destroy the property and an investigation by Fire Marshal Shipman disclosed that a soap box filled with paper napkins emitted the odor very strongly. The marshal has had experience with fires in which ether has been an element, so he searched farther for a cause for the fire. Then he concluded that the box was lined with putty that made it almost water tight, so he set the box aside till such time as he could examine it and its contents. The fact that Police Sergeant Murphy had seen Boondris come out of the restaurant a brief time before the fire was discovered, and that Boondris had gone a short distance up the street and had immediately returned, was communicated to the fire marshal. He followed the terms of the statute and called in the state police to continue the investigation, giving them the information he possessed. Officer Albright came right on the job of probing from the Groton barracks. He went into the box with the paper napkins and found what he declares to be a fuse made from cloth, which when set afire, would cause the ether to explode. The investigators trace the presence of the napkins in the box to the fact that they were on a shelf just above where the box is located and, that, when the explosion occurred, the napkins were tumbled into the box. This theory was followed to a conclusion and when the box was drained of about half a pint of liquid that is declared by those who have tested it to be ether. The box containing the ether and the napkins was badly charred, but not destroyed wholly.

Carmen Teamer gave testimony that left little doubt that an explosion had been a feature of the fire. He was in an alleyway in the rear of the Sea Food and was putting his auto in a garage when he heard an explosion, not a loud one, but of sufficient force to attract his attention. He called it like a puff from the muffler of the car, but was satisfied that muffler theory was wrong. He went to the street and found that the restaurant was in flames, so he sought to arouse the sleepers in the building adjoining. Then he went to sound an alarm and found Boondris was at the box, but another party pulled in the alarm. The response of firemen was immediate. So the fire did not occasion the damage that fire of such a nature often causes. It was learned when the accused men were taken into custody and questioned that they bought the restaurant last August for $3,000, paying $1,000 when the deed was passed and giving notes for the payment of $50 a month thereafter till the purchase price had been paid. The buyers still owe $1400 on the payments. There was insurance taken on the restaurant and stock for $4,000, but when the place was refitted in some degree the insurance was increased $3,000 through a second agency. The owners did not then disclose that there was any other insurance on the property of the restaurant. So the total insurance was $7,000, for a place that cost $3,000 and which had been improved to some extent.

The defense did not put in any testimony, preferring to conceal its testimony till it is introduced in the upper court. Boondris was bound over in the sum of $10,000, while his partners were held in $1200 each. Boondris could not furnish a bond, so he is in jail.

Miss Frattuf Fish, Mystic; Mrs. Waldo E. Miner and infant son, 15 Post Hill place; Miss Iowa Latram, Centerbrook; Frederick Johnson, 171 Lincoln avenue and Miss Nancy Stirling, 22 Ledyard street, patients at Lawrence hospital, were discharged today.

Joseph E. Miner, Sr., 74, died at Home Memorial hospital last night, death ending a lingering illness. He was born in New London and resided here his entire life until about four months ago when he removed to Noank. Mr. Miner is survived by his widow and three sons, Dr. J. Otis Miner, George Miner and Joseph E. Miner, Jr., all of this city. He was a locomotive engineer by occupation and for many years was employed by the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad. He was a member of Union lodge, F. and A. M., and Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. Mr. Miner's death occurred on his 74th birthday.

Mrs. Caroline B. Huxford, 90, widow of Capt. James B. Huxford, died last night at the residence of her son, Allen B. Huxford, 503 Ocean avenue. Mrs. Huxford had been ill many weeks because of infirmities attending her advanced years. She was born at Edgartown, Mass., and the body will be forwarded to that city for burial.

The funeral of Hugh McPartland was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Joseph's church and was attended by a large concourse of mourners, including the employes of the plumbing firm of which Mr. McPartland was its head many years. A mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. William C. Fitzsimmons. The bearers were Frank E. McCormick, Edward Paradise, Eric Wilson, George Berry, Harry J. Kennedy and William Thomas. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

The funeral of Mrs. George W. Peabody, was held this afternoon at 2.30 o'clock at her residence, 31 Franklin street. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First Church of Christ. The bearers were Charles F. Peabody, Gurdon Pendleton and Richard W. Mansfield, this city and Frederick A. Beckwith, East Lyme. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

Lillian W. Moon, this city and Augusta W. Comstock and Charles E. Walden, Brooklyn, N. Y., have sold to Sidney H. Moon two building lots, one parcel being located on Walden avenue and the other on Dow court.

A barn on the Peter Collins farm, Hartford turnpike and about a half mile from the city line, corner of Jefferson avenue and Broad street, was entirely destroyed by fire, together with its contents, early this morning including a horse and considerable farming implements.

The fire was discovered by Collins about 1.30 o'clock and with his son an attempt was made to extinguish the flames. The father and son were unsuccessful in combatting the flames for the fire had gained considerable headway when it was discovered. Finding that they would be unable to subdue the flames an alarm was rung in from Box 293, corner of Jefferson avenue and Broad street. When the firemen arrived at the location of the box, the burning building was a mass of flames, and because of the barn being located far away from the hydrant at the city line the services of the department were useless, causing the barn and its contents to be swiftly destroyed. How the fire originated, it is not known.

The condition of Edward Trouting, 458 Williams street, who was struck by an unidentified auto on Williams street, near Rosemary street, last night, is reported this afternoon as resting comfortably at Lawrence hospital. The man did not suffer a concussion of the brain, as was feared, but sustained abrasions of the head and chin. The police ascertained today that the automobile that struck Trouting carries Connecticut registration either 5394 or N-8284. The former registration was issued to the Butchers' Ice Supply company, 328 North Front street, Hartford, and the latter was issued to Anthony Mugevero, 9 Archer court, this city. As the driver of the automobile failed to stop after hitting Trouting, he will probably be arrested in a day or two charged with evasion of responsibility.

This afternoon Sergeant John Cavanaugh, who had been investigating the accident, determined that the automobile that struck Trulting was driven by Mugervero and placed him under arrest. He furnished a surety on his bond of $200 for trial in the police court tomorrow morning.

Half a dozen white sailors, looking for excitement, went to the home of Stanley Roberts, colored, and wife at 32 Douglass street last midnight and there were found when a quartette of police officers called after word was received at the police station that there was something doing in the Douglas street section. The party was all well behaved when the police entered and there was no liquor found except what was on a roof outside the place. They were arrested and in court today Roberts was fined $50 for keeping a place reputed to be a disorderly house. The complaints against the sailors were nolled, but they received a caution to the effect that their place was not among negroes and not at a house that has a bad reputation.

The state police at Wickford Junction, R. I., today requested the New London police to be on the lookout for a gang of young men, who burglarized two small stores in the former town. The plunder obtained included cigarettes, candy, chewing gum, perfumery and notions.

Paul Cubilla, 33 Belden street, reported to the police this evening that he had lost a bill fold containing a bank note, automobile registration and driver's license and pass to the submarine base.

The continued case of Thomas Gentile, 34, Brooklyn, who had been employed on construction work at Ocean Beach several weeks and until his arrest last Thursday charged with indecent exposure, will come before the police court tomorrow morning. Since his arrest Gentile has been confined in the county jail.

Another case that will come before the court is that of Peter Jardino, 34, of 54 Golden street, where he is proprietor of a small grocery store. He was arrested in a raid upon his place last Thursday and is charged with violation of the liquor law. A small quantity of liquor was found in the place and the police alleged that they have still further evidence of Jardino having violated the law. He has been at liberty since his arrest on bail of $1,000.

A soldier, who had been paid off, having been honorably discharged at Fort H. G. Wright this week, made complaint to the police this evening that he had been robbed of $115 while in a negro resort, 16 John street. Patrolman Frank Philopena, to whom the complaint was made, accompanied by Motorcycle Officer Augustus Ray went to the resort with the soldier, but there was no evidence obtained that would warrant the arrest of the proprietress of the place or any of the occupants of the house. The soldier stated that he had $115 in a wallet in his hip pocket and about $25 in bills in his side pocket when he entered the house. He admitted drinking there, claiming home brew was served. The proprietress stated that the soldier appeared there during the afternoon and said that he was looking for a male friend. She denied that even home brew was served him and stated that he had been drinking prior to his arrival at her house.

The police this afternoon and again this evening were showered with complaints because of youths having started to celebrate the Fourth. The complainants stated that loud fire crackers were being exploded and creating not only a condition of annoyance to the residents where the explosives were being discharged, but also providing an element of danger in the way of fire. Motorcycle Officer Augustus Ray was kept busy dispersing the assembled celebrators.

SEVERAL RAILROAD MEN FINED FOR GAMBLING

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 1—The police were notified last midnight that a gambling place had been established on Bank street and that optical evidence of the fact was to be had by sending officers to the place. The officers appeared and thus broke up a little game that was being engaged in by friends who are all railroad men. Nobody denied what was going on, but they believed they had a right under the law to go to the room of a friend who was generous enough to donate it for the session. The men reported that they had a session every week and were just indulging in a pastime that was recreational and a bit alluring. The players, eight of them, were fined $5 each without any embellishment, but the man who supplied the room was fined $25 with the fringe of cost attached.

Three drunks was the sum total among the defiant opponents of the Volstead act. They all received suspended judgments.

Thousands who have piles have not learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with internal medicine. Neither cutting nor any amount of treatment with ointments and suppositories will remove the cause.

Bad circulation causes piles. There is a complete stagnation of blood in the lower bowel and a weakening of the parts. Dr. J. S. Leonhardt was first to find the remedy and called his prescription HEM-ROID. Dr Leonhardt tried it in 1000 cases with the marvelous record of success in 98 per cent. and then decided it should be sold by druggists everywhere under a rigid money-back guarantee.

Bread Theatre

The screen's most mysterious production is "The Danger Girl," starring Priscilla Dean which will be seen at the Breed theatre today and Saturday.

In "The Danger Girl," mystery runs rampant—the result being that the spectator is left in absolute ignorance of the secret of the story until the end of the picture. The story concerns the theft of a collection of rubies, valued at a million dollars. There are detectives, patrolmen and "plain clothes" operators. You wonder at one scene, you marvel at another, and you roar with laughter at others while you always question certain players and their moves.

The plot and its unfolding has been worked out finely, swiftly, and with much humor. Priscilla Dean is supported by John Bowers, Arthur Hoyt, Cissy Fitzgerald, Clarence Burton, Stanton Heck, William Humphrey, Erwin Connelly and Gustave Von Seyffertitz. Edward Dillon directed the production from a scenario by Finis Fox.

A. & P. Increases Advertising Funds

Announcement comes from the main offices of The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea company that the company's advertising appropriation for the current year will show an increase of $500,000.

A. & P., as it is known throughout the country, is a large and consistent user of newspaper advertising space, and the bulk of the advertising increase this year is being devoted to newspapers for the furtherance of local retail business in every community where A. & P. is established. A magazine campaign will also be inaugurated.

The familiar red front of the A. & P. store is to be seen in practically every neighborhood trading center in the larger cities, and in the smaller communities as well.

The administrative and buying organization of the A. & P. is world-wide. In London, England, is a purchasing office with a complete purchasing staff. Food brokers from all parts of Europe travel regularly to London to offer their merchandise to A. & P. In South America, A. & P. maintains five coffee-purchasing offices—one at Santos, Brazil; one at Rio de Janeiro and three in Colombia. These buyers make several trips into the interior each season, 200 and 400 miles, to the coffee plantations, where they inspect and examine the coffee in the growing bean, on the trees.

In San Francisco, A. & P., maintains fruit and vegetable purchasing headquarters. Its salmon fisheries in Alaska are operated for the exclusive use of the company's stores. Other representatives are scattered throughout the Orient.

Thirty-six large buildings, used as food distributing depots, are maintained at advantageous points throughout the United States. Bakeries are operated in various cities. Potato warehouses and cheese-curing plants are located at strategic points. A corp of trained buyers constantly travel through domestic food-producing areas. Food chemists and laboratorians are actively engaged in testing foods.

Recently the A. & P. inaugurated free group insurance for its employees. At different times during the past few years A. & P. employes were given the opportunity of subscribing to shares of the company's prefered stock, and last year both preferred and common were offered.

The organization is perhaps the most unique in the food retailing field today.

Mr. David M. Goldberg of the Goldberg Rubber Tire Co. announces the opening of his new drive in station at the corner of Franklin and Willow streets.

The firm now buys tires by carload lots and carries in stock every known accessory for the automobile. The service and courteous treatment and dependable work of this firm has gained thousands of satisfied patrons and has made this station possible. Mr. Goldberg prides himself on the road service of his house and a telephone message always starts a service car on the road to repair a tire or install a battery. The firm sends a workman regularly to the leading tire and battery factories to study the latest methods of repairing. They use the Firestone method in repairing balloon and cord tires. The new station has four gas pumps and patrons always procure prompt attention. Cars oiled and greased and free crank case service.

NORWICH TOWN

When the annual basket picnic of Home chapter of the Kings Daughters, was held at the home of Mrs. William Bell of South Windham Thursday, there were 20 present from Norwich, including several from Norwich Town.

The party left Franklin square during the morning, and upon arriving at the Bell home was made welcome. Sociability occupied the time until the luncheon, which was enjoyed in the open. Mrs. Bell seated her guests at a long table on the front lawn, on which were attractive decorations significant of Home chapter colors, purple and silver. Long strips of purple crepe paper were laid length-wise and cross-wise of the table, and at each section where the strips of paper crossed were flat maltese crosses in silver color. Besides these, the entrance gate was trimmed with purple paper.

With the tempting lunches brought by each member, the hostess served delicious individual strawberry shortcakes with whipped cream, also coffee, etc. The berries were raised by Mrs. Bell.

During the afternoon the time was devoted to games and story telling. In the company was a fortune teller who entertained with prophecies of the future also tales of the past.

On this occasion, Mrs. Bell presented Home chapter a handsome pieced bed quilt, which she had made for the benefit of the chapter. Later in the afternoon, Mrs. Bell served punch.

Mrs. David M. Dean is chairman of the food sale and cafeteria supper to be given under the auspices of the Drop-In-Sons of the First Congregational church.

The July communion service in observance of the Lord's Supper, will be observed at the Congregational church, following the Sunday morning worship.

Sunday evening there will be a missionary meeting, under the auspices of the Eastern Connecticut branch of the Woman's Board of Missions, with the president, Miss Abby Willard of Colchester, presiding. Mrs. F. B. Bridgman of South Africa will be the speaker.

At Sacred Heart church today (Friday) there will be the usual mass in the morning for the first Friday of the month, with devotions in the evening, in honor of the Sacred Heart of Jesus. During the summer the sessions of the Sunday school will be discontinued, also the singing by the choir, these activities to resume again in the fall.

Francis Mullen of Norwich Town left Wednesday afternoon for Bellefourche, South Dakota, to spend the summer with the Messrs John and Frank Durr, former Norwich Town young men, who have been most prosperous in the west for many years.

Young Mullen who has just completed his second year at the Norwich Free Academy, is a exceptionally ambitious fellow and should the right inducements be held out, he possibly will remain for a longer period. He is very fond of horses and his arrival in the west, will be just in season for the big Round Up, which is to be held July 5th, 6th and 7th. This is an annual affair and looked forward to each year by the westerners. Francis, has the best wishes of a host of admiring friends for his future prosperity.

Word comes from the Misses Smith of Colchester, now enroute to California to pass the remainder of the summer, to their sister Mrs. George A. Peck of Norwich Town, that they have passed through Cleveland, Ohio.

The Misses Smith left Colchester Monday morning by auto, thence by train that afternoon from Springfield, arriving Tuesday night in St. Louis, where they will be guests over the Fourth at the home of their brother J. Henry Smith. From here they will proceed on their journey, expecting to reach San Francisco Saturday, July 10th, where they will be met by another brother, William Smith, who will accompany them to San Mateo, the home of their sister, Miss Bertha Smith whose guests they will be the greater part of their visit. Some time will also be spent at their brother's home in San Francisco, before returning home the latter part of August or early September.

Miss Rose K. Durr, R. N., of Norwich Town and her niece, Miss Barbara Binns, of East Great Plain, left by auto Thursday morning to spend the month of July at the Fuller cottage, East beach, Quonochontaug, R. I. They were taken to the shore by Miss Durr's brother, Walter Durr.

NEW YORK, July 1.—(By The A. P.)—Railroad shares took up the leadership of the stock market today as industrials faltered under a wave of pre-holiday profit taking. For the greater part of the active trading session construction operations were successfully carried on in face of professional attempts to bring about a reaction. Selling pressure grew heavier toward the close, forcing recessions of 1 to 5 points, in contrast to an equal number of net gains ranging up to 6 points.

Reawakened interest in the carrier stocks was credited to the completion by the Van Sweringens of a modified plan for the Nickel Plate merger, once barred by the interstate commerce commission. This development, it was believed, would put new life into other pending consolidations and benefit most of the stocks involved in the Nickel Plate deal because of the more favorable terms outlined in the new proposal. As Erie directors took action on the plan, refusing to disclose their decision, this road's first and second preferred issues were whirled up about 4 points to new high records for the year, before reacting slightly at the close. Nickel Plate, Chesapeake and Ohio and Pere Marquette kept pace with the rise, all attaining the best levels of 1926.

A basis for the buying movement in other leading rail shares was found in the maintenance of car loadings at the rate of more than a million a week, giving promise of further improvement in earnings, with the peak of the crop movement still to come. Union Pacific sold at 155 3-8, the best price since 1914, and a strong demand developed for New York Central, New Haven, Frisco, Southern Railroad and Rock Island.

The outbreak of profit-taking which developed in U. S. Steel and General Motors was regarded as a natural development in view of their impressive advances earlier in the week. After fluctuating unevenly through the day, both issues closed 1 1-8 points net lower at 142 1-4 and 146 3-4 respectively. DuPont, Mack Trucks, Chrysler Steel, U. S. Alcohol, Fisher Body, New York Dock, Otis Steel preferred and Panhandle Producing preferred fell back 1 to 5 points.

As the customary market leaders showed a disposition to lag, speculative operators of the pools were transferred to other quarters with varying degrees of success. Adams Express was run up to a new high above 116, closing 4 1-2 points into new high. Texas Gulf Sulphur, Allied Chemical, Consolidated Gas, Air Aeduction, Hayes Wheel, International Mercantile Marine preferred and Pierce Arrow preferred, Standard Oil of California and Pan-American Petroleum led an upward movement in the oil shares.

The commodity markets were distinctively firmer a better export demand accounted for advances of about 2 cents a bushel in wheat futures, while cotton rallied 8 to 15 points on covering in anticipation of tomorrow's government crop report. Coffee and sugar were slightly lower.

Further evidence that the strain attendant upon the distribution of some $500,000,000 in dividend and interest payments had been relieved was shown by the drop in call money to 4 1-2 per cent. After a renewal rate of 4 3-4. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

The conflict over French financial policies caused a sharp break of more than 10 points in the franc to a new low record for all time around 2.67 cents. Belgian francs held relatively firm at 2.83 cents but demand sterling eased to fractionally to $4.86 1-8.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, July 1.—(AP)—An evident easing of the money situation failed today to draw the bond market from its lethargy of the last few days.

United States government issues were stronger with a heavy turnover in liberty fourth 4 1-4s which carried that issue 3-32nds of a point higher. A somewhat less heavy demand for the second and third 4 1-4s took them up 1-32nd. Aside from the activity of the government bonds the market was generally dull and unresponsive to any influence. Despite an announcement by the international committee of bankers on Mexico that the government of Mexico had made a payment of the greater part of the half year's funds that were owing of the direct Mexican debt and that there has been a considerable remittance on the obligations of the Mexican railroads, Mexican bonds generally showed little inclination either way. The greatest change was in Mexican 4s of 1904, assented, which dropped 1 1-2 points.

French issues likewise showed little variance as a result of the franc's dip to a new low mark. Polish bonds, however, lost ground in spite of the firmness of that country's exchange, the 8s closing 3 1-4 down and the 6s off three-eighths.

First grade domestic rails, industrials and utilities averaged a mere fraction higher. Erie convertible 4s "A" and "D" responded to the revival of negotiations for the Nickel Plate merger and were in heavy demand at a fractional increase. Missouri-Kansas-Texas adjustment 5s and St. Louis-San Francisco income 6s were likewise freely bought at a slightly higher price. Both roads figure in projected mergers in the southwest.

Brooklyn Union Gas bonds followed the rise in the stocks of that company, the 5 1-2s of 1936 70 per cent paid, touching a new high at 142 while the other 5 1-2s of that year jumped 2 1-2 to within a point of their high. U. S. Steel 5s were also in demand at a fraction higher.

CURB MARKET.

NEW YORK, July 1.—(By The A. P.)—Despite an irregular price tendency in today's transactions in the curb market, a decidedly better tone prevailed throughout the list, certain issues of public utilities and industrials showing particular strength and activity.

Favorable monthly earnings reports of public utility operations seemed to attract demand for these issues. United Gas Improvement stood out in the group, scoring a net gain of 3 points. Various other issues were active, but earlier gains were reduced towards the by profit taking.

Special stocks in the industrial list were well bought. Devoe & Raynolds new "B" stock showing a gain of 6 1-2 points for the day. Lehigh Valley Coal sales company, closed 4 1-2 higher at 94, on reports that coal companies generally were reaping good earnings. Johns Manville, usually inactive on the curb, was bought liberally and moved up several points and American Seating "when issued" new certificates were bid up actively, the common closing 3-4 higher at 5, a new high.

Oils were sluggish, leading issues showing only fractional changes. Borne-Scrymser stood out with a net rise of 4 points in small sales, and Salt Creek Producers gained slightly on an extra dividend of $1 and an increased quarterly rate placing the stock of an annual basis of $2.50 a share.

BARN AND HORSE IN WATERFORD BURNED

Awakened early Thursday morning by flames crackling through the walls from the barn, Frank Collins of Broad street extension, Waterford and his sons, Frank and Fred, escaped through the blaze with what clothes they could pick up in the rush, and a half hour later stood on the Hartford turnpike gazing at the ruins of everything they had as fire apparatus arrived from New London, but too late to save anything. The house and farm, built a year ago, were destroyed, and a horse in the barn was burned.

One of the sons said he fed the horse at midnight and there was no evidence of fire at that time. He had been nearly killed while mowing Wednesday, he said commenting on the cumulative nature of disaster.

The actual amount of the damage is not large, but it represents the savings of the family, according to neighbors, and there is believed to be no insurance.

CHIMNEY FIRE AT ORE STREET RESIDENCE

At 5:20 o'clock Thursday afternoon the fire department was called out by telephone for a chimney fire at No. 22 Ore street, a house owned by Salvatore Silvidio and occupied by Mrs. Ludwska Daza. Six gallons of chemical were used on the blaze. Squad A and Engine Co. No. 2 Greeneville fire station responded to the call.

LONG SOCIETY SCHOOL CHILDREN MADE TWELVE PROJECTS DISPLAYS

As a part of the closing exercises of Long Society school during the past week, an exhibition of school work was demonstrated in the school building on the afternoon of June 25 with a host of friends and relatives as delighted onlookers. The exhibit was a credit to the boys and girls of this Norwich school, and deserves the real praise which was bestowed upon the delighted youngsters.

An entire room was set aside for the display of the finished work and was tastefully decorated by the children. Every pupil in the school contributed to some part of the exhibit. Drawings showing real merit and artistic ability, Arithmetics of spelling, geography, English and project work of a high type were to be seen. Under the direction of the principal, Miss Pearl V. Palmer, twelve projects were developed and shown. Among them were Life of Lincoln, Japan, An Indian Village, Building Land, Life in the Desert, Exhibits A and B of The Home Beautiful showing contrasts between the rigorous life in Alaska and the far North and the extreme life in the desert. Little Red Riding Hood, The Three Bears and The American Home, a Protect the Bird Campaign, and many others.

As a part of the American Home and Home Beautiful project, hospitality was dispensed to the guests in the form of cocoa and cake, the children also acting host and hostesses.

The entire program was handled by the children and the rare initiative with which they handled this delightful school affair shows that real community spirit is abroad in the hearts of the children and that the home and school will in the future, in this particular district serve a two fold purpose, namely; cooperation and progress.

Of particular interest in the Life of Lincoln project was the miniature reproduction of the log cabin home of Lincoln, with fence and trees surrounding it. The Japan project was very completely carried out to give an idea of distinctive characteristics of that country and its people.

CONNECTICUT IS 14TH IN AMERICAN LEGION DRIVE

National honor and prestige for this state has been won by the Department of Connecticut of the American Legion, according to information received here from national headquarters. Connecticut will march in 14th position in the great Legion national convention parade to be held in Philadelphia in October, by having finished in that position in a national membership contest to determine parade position, seating arrangements and accommodations at the convention city.

The Legion's annual national convention parade, which was reviewed in Omaha last year by President Coolidge, has been described as "the most colorful and impressive parade in America." It will be viewed this year by the vast throngs attending the Sesqui-centennial celebration to commemorate the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

Connecticut won her position among the leaders for attaining by June 15, 110.52 percent of its average membership of the past four years, the basis of award in the national parade position contest. Delaware department will lead the parade, Florida, twice leader of the impressive procession, will march in second place, and Idaho will swing along in third place.

An unusual feature of this year's parade position figures is the fact that 23 Legion departments surpassed their average membership of the past four years as against only four departments to surpass their four-year average in 1925. The first 25 departments in order follow: Delaware, 208.33; Florida, 161.21; Idaho, 150.70; France, 147.44; Wyoming, 139.01; West Virginia, 132.13; Arizona, 129.03; Colorado, 125.65; Canada, 120.83; Philippine Islands, 120.50; Alabama, 118.22; Georgia, 111.52; Panama, 110.57; Connecticut, 110.52; Oregon, 110.49; Oklahoma, 109.59, Utah, 104.05; Kansas, 103.93; North Carolina, 103.63; Tennessee, 103.07; Nevada, 102.89; Illinois, 102.65; Maine, 101.48; Wisconsin, 97.93, and Minnesota, 97.29.

FRENCH POLITICS CAUSING DEPRECIATION OF FRANC

It is Generally Conceded in Paris That the New Slump of the Franc Originated in Paris and Was Largely Political—Premier Briand Criticises French Leaders Who Have Been Trying to Throw Responsibility For the Situation on New York Bankers.

PARIS, July 2—(AP)—Financial and [illegible] in France got another [illegible] the French franc [illegible] to 37.50 to the dollar, hitting [illegible] time. The franc re- [illegible] before the bourse closed. [illegible] French exchange and [illegible] for a stabilization, [illegible] contention that [illegible] such a bad bar- [illegible] debt settle- [illegible] used as arguments for [illegible].

[illegible] were unable to give [illegible] continued drop [illegible] news over the [illegible] and uncer- [illegible] new. Briand [illegible] favorable recep- [illegible] deputies on [illegible] interpellation on the [illegible] question will be heard on [illegible] and the fate of the new cabi- [illegible] well hang in the balance.

[illegible] New York has taken the head [illegible] movement against the French [illegible] since Wednesday. It is generally [illegible] that the new slump [illegible] campaign in Paris and [illegible] political. Premier Briand [illegible] been outspoken in criticism [illegible] leaders who have been trying to throw responsibility for the situation on New York bankers.

The great tension produced by the steady decline of the franc has made ratification of the Washington debt accord of outstanding importance in the present political situation.

A bombshell was thrown into anti-ratification ranks in parliament today when figures were produced purporting to show the total present value of the payments France is expected to make to the United States under the Berenger-Mellon agreement, is only two billion dollars. This includes the price of war stocks and is just about the total of the sums which France has borrowed from the United States since the armistice. This is the first time this analysis has been presented in parliamentary circles.

Premier Briand has been particularly active within the past two days seeing leaders of the different political parties and endeavoring to convince them that the key to salvation of the franc is in ratification of the accord. The premier is thought to be preparing for an exit and out stand for ratification when the financial debate comes up on Tuesday.

Andre Tardieu and M. Franklin Bouillon are expected to lead the opposition.

REED BRINGING OUT FACTS ABOUT ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE

WASHINGTON, July 2—(AP)—Expenditures of more than $7,000,000 by the [illegible] on leagues in 22 states during the past six years were disclosed [illegible] additional reports filed today with the senate campaign funds committee [illegible] Wayne B. Wheeler, counsel for the [illegible] organization.

Those states include New York, [illegible] and Rhode Island, which [illegible] have no local dry enforcement [illegible] as well as Pennsylvania, Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, Iowa, Missouri and Kentucky.

While the state organizations contributed a certain part of their income to the National Anti-Saloon league, it was learned from Mr. Wheeler, who occupied the stand for nearly six hours, that both the national and state [illegible] do their own collecting [illegible] dent of each other.

[illegible] the examination to the [illegible] ment of federal prohibition enforcement agents, Senator Reed wanted to know what influence the Anti-Saloon league exerted in that direction. [illegible] conceded the league had made recommendations for appointments.

"Did you interfere with the appointment [illegible] ner?" Reed asked.

"I interfere when we think there is an effort to put across crooked men."

The leader retorted with a show [illegible]

Referring to the speakers paid by the league, Senator Reed read into the record a series of letters touching upon the services of Rep. Upshaw, democrat, Georgia. These showed that Upshaw received $75 for delivering a speech at a [illegible] meeting here on December [illegible] but that he finally consented [illegible] the address for $25 plus $1 [illegible] expenses.

Senator Reed made it a matter of record that Richmond Pearson Hobson, [illegible] member of the house and [illegible] of the Merrimac sinking at Santiago during the Spanish war received a total of $171,649 from the Anti-Saloon league from 1914 to 1922 and that William Jennings Bryan received $11,000 for lecturing for the league in 1909.

Records show that S. Willis Drew received $1,200 in 1920 and $1,000 in 1921. Reed pursued. "Is that [illegible] Willis?"

Wheeler replied, adding that [illegible] Willis was elected to the [illegible] state league's reports submitted [illegible] consulted the committee and [illegible] stenographer. Senator Reed [illegible] not to read them, but finally [illegible] to admit them to the record [illegible] reading. They gave in detail [illegible] cases of expenditures and also [illegible] ment exception showed that [illegible] cost for speakers for the dry [illegible] time of its segregation from [illegible] organization on October 1, [illegible] September 30, 1924, the [illegible] league spent a total of

PROHIBITIONISTS TO HAVE TICKET ON STATE BALLOT

MANCHESTER, July 2.—(AP)—E. L. [illegible], head of the prohibition [illegible] in Connecticut, has filed with [illegible] clerk of Manchester a list [illegible] which are now being [illegible] in the first move in a [illegible] campaign to get a prohibition [illegible] basket back on the state [illegible]

[illegible] will be circulated in all [illegible] Connecticut to secure a list [illegible] equal to one per cent. of the [illegible] cast at the last general election, [illegible] names when verified will [illegible] to the secretary of state.

[illegible] another party, it was announced today, before nominating a [illegible] this fall will question all [illegible] in the field as to their [illegible] towards prohibition and the [illegible] laws. If the candidates in [illegible] do not meet the desires of [illegible] party that party, it [illegible] known, will place its own [illegible] in the field.

TWO MEN AND A WOMAN RESCUED FROM DROWNING

BELMONT, Mass., July 2.—(AP)—Two men and a woman were rescued from Fresh Pond reservoir tonight after [illegible] automobile had crashed through a fence into 12 feet of water. All three victims were pulled through the open windows of the car.

With Erickson were his uncle, John Erickson of Belmont, and the latter's [illegible]

ROTHSCHILD EXCLUDED FROM FRENCH CHAMBER

PARIS, July 2—(AP)—The chamber of deputies today voted against the admission as a member of the body of Baron Maurice de Rothschild, of the prominent international banking family, whose election as deputy for the Abutes Alpes department in August 1924 was contested on the charge of corruption. Today's vote was 209 to 66, with 285 absent or not voting.

Baron de Rothschild's election to the chamber was contested on the ground of certain alleged liberalities to electors that came close to the legal definition to corruption. When the first bureau of the chamber considered the case in March 1925, it decided to recommend that the chamber annul the election.

The baron, who is one of the wealthiest men in France never voted in the chamber as the validity of his election was held up pending the inquiry. It was reported by the commission appointed to investigate the charges against him that he spent in the neighborhood of 1,600,000 francs in donations, and that most of it went to people who exercised little or no influence in the election.

The report declared de Rothschild would have been elected whether he spent the money or not and that most of the money he did spend went to people who did not keep their promises.

The committees finally concluded in favor of making the election valid because large expenditures are always customary in the department of Hautes Alpes, but the chamber today voting largely on party lines, failed to take that view.

Another election, in which Baron de Rothschild probably will be a candidate, is to be held to fill the seat.

MEIGHEN GOVERNMENT DEFEATED IN CANADA

OTTAWA, Ont., July 2—(AP)—Failure of a progressive member to remember a pair when casting his vote today brought defeat to the Meighen government after barely 72 hours' existence and, as a further result, dissolution of the Fifteenth Canadian Parliament.

The fateful ballot was 96 to 95, the all important vote being cast by T. W. Bird, one of 14 progressives who swung to the liberals.

Dissolution brought to an end the shortest and most dramatic parliament—according to most observers—the house had ever seen.

The dissolution was granted by the Governor-General Lord Byng on the recommendation of Premier Meighen, this afternoon.

General elections may now be held any time after August 17.

THREAT OF STRIKE ON THE I. R. T. SUBWAY SYSTEM

NEW YORK, July 2.—(AP)—The transit commission today offered to arbitrate the wage question involved in the threatened strike at midnight Monday of motormen and switchmen on the Interborough Rapid Transit subway system.

Spokesmen for the employes at a conference with the transit commissioners said that when the strike was decided upon last night, the members of the newly formed consolidated railroad workers of greater New York were unanimously against accepting the commission as arbiter because they felt "they would not get a square deal."

However, the representatives said, the commission's offer will be submitted to the organization and voted upon tomorrow.

At the offices of the I. R. T. system, it was said there are approximately 1,500 motormen and switchmen employed altogether on the subway and elevated systems. Edward P. Lavin, chairman of the new union, said 579 workers have voted to strike.

The system carries an average of 2,400,000 passengers on the subway and 1,000,000 on the elevated lines per day.

Death of Advocate of Auto-Suggestion

Dr. Emile Coue, Whose Formula Included "Day by Day, in Every Way, I Get Better and Better."

NANCY, France, July 2.—(AP)—Dr. Emile Coue, the famous advocate of auto suggestion in the treatment of illnesses, died today.

Dr. Coue called himself a professor of applied psychology. His fame as an auto-suggestive healer came after the European war, when his oldest dwelling in the Rue Jeanne D'Arc was thronged daily with sufferers demanding his services. Soon he was called upon to lecture in France, England, Spain, Portugal and the United States.

Dr. Coue was president of the Lorraine Society of Applied Psychology, and author of a Brochure "Self Mastery by Conscious Auto-Suggesion" and other papers and magazine articles. He was 69 years of age.

After 30 years as a druggist in Troyesprofess, upon his marriage to the daughter of a noted horticulturist, made his home here. He was a modest, cheery little man and rapid speaker. Among his patients at one time was the late Marquis Curzon of Kedleston.

Professor Emile Coue for many years practiced his theories of auto suggestion as a more or less obscure physician in Nancy. He became known to the man in the street, however by the development of his formula "Day by day, in every way, I get better and better."

Dr Coue visited the United States in 1923 and became the center of much controversy among physicians as to the efficacy of the healing powers of auto suggestion. Although he announced that he had given up his "day by day" chant it spread throughout the country. Dr. Coue gave many demonstrations of his methods in American clinics.

He returned to Europe where he resumed his practice and then came back again to the United States in 1924 for a short lecture tour. Since then his life in Nancy has been rather quiet.

Dr. Coue was born in Troyes, France, and studied at the Lycee in Troyes. He spent 30 years as a pharmacist in Troyes and served as an interne in hospitals for two years. He never laid claims to being a scientist in the modern sense but was always a strong advocate of the system of auto-suggestion. His theory as translated from an article of his own, is enunciated in a book "Self Mastery by conscious auto-suggestion."

When Professor Coue arrived in New York in January 1923, he emphasized he was not a miracle man; that he did not want it believed that he claimed to be able to effect cures of diseases. He asked that he be not called doctor, and said that the real purpose of his trip was to spread the use of his methods in the United States.

Explaining his gospel to a selected group of women prominent in society in New York, he declared he did not chant his own phrase "Day by day in every way I am getting better and better" for the reason that he did not need to.

Professor Coue held a number of clinics in New York and other big cities of the east, and subsequently was listened to by large audiences in Chicago and Toledo. The proceeds of his trip were devoted to the foundation of a Coue clinic in Paris. He remained in the United States for a little more than a month.

The unknown articles that clamor for your attention in stores may be all their appearances profess, but why, if they are worthy, should some maker not be proud to advertise himself as their sponsor? In these days of easy introduction, when quality is the accepted standard of merit, unadvertised goods, like unidentified strangers, are likely to deserve all the suspicion they get.

In The Bulletin are to be found advertisements in which producers and sellers of integrity recommend worthy goods to your attention. These many advertisements are really letters of introduction written for your protection. Read The Bulletin's advertisements.

SUSPENSION OF THREE BANKS IN MIAMI

MIAMI, Fla., July 2.—(AP)—Three local banks suspended operations, a financial institution at Dania closed its doors and a Hollywood bank weathered a heavy withdrawal of funds today.

The bank of Cocoanut Grove, and the bank of Buena Vista failed to open for business and the bank of Little River closed after a run of an hour's duration. The bank of Dania, near Miami suffered a similar withdrawal of funds and ceased operations at noon. At the same time the bank of Hollywood, also near here, withstood a brief run.

The bank of Buena Vista and the bank of Cocoanut Grove, allied institutions, made the following separate announcements.

"The bank has decided to suspend operations for the present and will, therefore, not open for business today. It is actuated by a desire to conserve its resources and to protect its depositors to the fullest extent. Local citizens are now working on a plan and will announce the details in a few days to organize a locally controlled institution for speedy liquidation and to relieve the situation."

The bank of Buena Vista opened on October 19, 1920, with a capital stock of $15,000, which had been raised $50,000. Local officials declined to announce present deposits in either institution.

The bank of Cocoanut Grove opened in March 1920 with $15,000 capital. On March 10, the bank announced capitalization of $30,000 and deposits of $1,650,977.

The bank of Little River, through President B. C. Teed announced:

"We have in excess of $200,000 in cash in our vaults and a reserve greater than 40 per cent. I do not think the depositors will lose a dollar."

He intimated his intention of effecting an early reorganization.

President I. T. Parker, of the bank of Dania, announced immediately after closing that a readjustment would be made that would enable the bank to reopen shortly and meet all obligations.

The run on the bank of Hollywood was precipitated after receipts of funds from Miami banks. The run subsided shortly after noon when officers found funds sufficient to cover every deposit.

President George Romph of the Miami Clearing House association in commenting on the suspension of the suburban banks, declared that outside control and loans on outside paper solely were responsible for the embarrassment.

Wizard Ponzi Squirms In Self-Woven Web

HOUSTON, Texas, July 2.—(AP)—Declaring that his family is destitute, Charles Ponzi, convicted Boston swindler, today telegraphed Governor Alvin T. Fuller of Massachusetts a threat that he could commit suicide rather than go to prison.

Ponzi faced a seven to nine year sentence in Massachusetts as the result of his postal reply coupon scheme which collapsed several years ago, resulting in losses of millions of dollars to investors who were lured by the "financial wizard's" promise of huge profits.

The telegram to Governor Fuller read:

"Am stalling for time by fighting extradition merely to provide for my family, which is destitute. I cannot submit to service of sentence when same would mean distress and destruction of my wife and mother. If you are unable to extend me timely assistance I shall be compelled in my last resort to self-destruction so that my family may collect insurance. I have reached my limit and can go no further. Quick death is preferable to a slow one. Pardon this seemingly insane talk, but I have been given plenty of grounds to finally become desperate and insane. What can you offer me to make me desist from my determination? I trust you, and am ready to adjust myself to anything within reason.

"CHARLES PONZI,
"County Jail."

Houston Italians have offered to back his fight for freedom to the extent of $200,000, Ponzi asserted. A large delegation of his countrymen visited him in his cell. The prisoner said members of the Order of the Sons of Italy had cabled Premier Mussolini of Italy in his behalf. Ponzi yesterday appealed to Mussolini for aid but has received no reply.

In contrast to his suicide threat, the financier declared that Boston officers who are en route to Texas in an effort to extradite him "are coming on a fool's errand."

"They cannot possibly take me back before October, because if my habeas corpus proceedings are denied here I shall appeal the case and it will be October before the higher court can act," he said.

Hearing on Ponzi's application for release on a writ of habeas corpus is set for July 9.

MAY RESIGN AS DIRECTOR OF PROHIBITION ENFORCEMENT

His Legislative Program—Not Satisfied With Mere Ap- His Legislature Program—Not Satisfied With Mere Appropriation of Money, Andrews Demands Legislation to Change the Prohibition Structure and Put "Teeth" in the Volstead Act.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—(AP)—Discouraged over the failure of congress to enact his legislative program, Assistant Secretary Lincoln C. Andrews, in charge of prohibition enforcement, is considering resigning.

While the prohibition chief has not reached a decision he admitted today to friends he was giving it thought.

"If congress fails to act on the prohibition bill before adjournment," he said, "it will be a serious handicap in the campaign we have outlined for this year. Although congress has given me the money and men it is vital that we have the legislation if we are going to get at the real sources of liquor supplies."

Meanwhile, the assistant secretary is busy organizing the new forces authorized by congress for the fiscal year which began yesterday and to whip his organization into shape before he leaves next week for London.

General Andrews will head the American mission going to England at the invitation of that government in an effort to effect close cooperation between the countries in enforcement of the smuggling treaty. There also is a possibility he will visit other European capitals unofficially in that connection. He will not return until early August.

Should Mr. Andrews decide to retire it is not believed he would do so before Sept. 1. He does not want to quit until he is satisfied he has reorganized the prohibition forces on a working basis.

Another factor in the situation is the health of Mr. Andrews who has been considerably affected in recent months by the strain of his work.

Among the bills which General Andrews proposed to congress as "necessary to the proper enforcement of prohibition", were those providing for the creation of a separate prohibition and customs bureau, measures authorizing more strict provisions of alcohol and brewery permits, and another with several provisions proposing to put "teeth" in the Volstead act. The house approved the first of these, which is still before the senate, and the others have been favorably reported by committees in both the senate and the house but have not been brought to a vote.

In connection with his new organization, Mr. Andrews was forced today to find a new chief for the alcohol squad. John Foster resigned that office and Mr. Andrews named Frank Hale, connected with the New York prohibition office, as acting supervisor with headquarters here.

The secretary expressed satisfaction today over the prohibition situation in New York where he made an inspection visit yesterday. He describes the New York force, under the direction of Colonel John Mills, as "efficient and promising of future development."

Mr. Andrews expects to summon all of the prohibition administrators for a conference here in September, at which time he hopes to have this year's campaign in full swing.

ADJOURNMENT OF CONGRESS SCHEDULED FOR TODAY

WASHINGTON, July 2—(AP)—Unless there is an unexpected hitch in the plans of leaders, the first session of the Sixty-Ninth congress will end tomorrow.

A resolution providing for sine die adjournment at 3 p. m. was adopted today by the house and immediately transmitted to the senate. There, however, it was referred to the appropriations committee instead of being put to a vote, but leaders said this was simply a formality and that the proposal would receive senate approval well in advance of the hour fixed for the getaway.

The way for house action on the resolution was cleared when an agreement was reached on all points in the $50,000,000 finan deficiency bill which carries funds, among other things, for the start of construction this summer on a number of post offices and other government buildings.

Although the senate deferred action on the resolution, members of both houses took it for granted the session would close tomorrow and many, anxious to get home before the Fourth of July and to avoid the heat of Washington, had started on their way tonight. The house vote on adjournment showed scarcely a quorum on the floor, although leaders said a greater number would have responded to a roll call.

One of the reasons ascribed by leaders to the great number of absentees, particularly in the house, was that the wind-up of the session promises to be tame in comparison with some of the hectic finales of the past, when the fate of important legislation was in the balance up to the last minute.

In addition to completing action on the deficiency bill, by adopting the conference report, the house shelved until the December session the bill to increase the salaries of federal judges and approved a batch of "pet" measures of members, most of them of local or sectional interest.

The senate passed the Dill bill for control of radio by an independent commission as a substitute for the house proposal to vest such authority in the commerce department. This action threw the question into conference, with leaders doubtful whether an agreement could be reached before adjournment.

CAPTAIN LOST LIFE IN VAIN ATTEMPT TO SAVE SAILORS

HARPSWELL, Maine, July 2.—(AP)—A schooner captain lost his life in a vain attempt to save two of his crew from drowning early today, when his eight ton power sloop crashed into a rocky pinnacle in Casco Bay. The sole survivor, a 15 year old boy, swam for a mile in the darkness and fell exhausted on a ledge off Ragged Island after watching the captain and one of the other victims swept to their deaths.

The boy, John McKinnon of Yarmouth, was found this morning by a lobsterman who sighted his distress signals, and the bodies of Captain Russell Smith, Phillip Merrill and Philip Leighton, all of Yarmouth were picked up late today. First reports said that gasoline had exploded aboard the sloop, the Bradley A., but proved unfounded.

The rescued lad said that the boat was making a night run from the Sheepscot, river with sardines for the Royal River Sardine Packing company at Yarmouth. Leighton, a merchant marine member, was at the wheel. All went well until the sloop, running under her auxiliary power, came into waters unfamiliar to Leighton, a substitute for the regular helmsman, Robert Collins.

ANNA SCHMELETER IS BAD GIRL TO "GET FRESH" WITH

Miss Schmeleter, a 19 year old clerk, was waiting for an elevated train in Brooklyn when she told the police Alphonso Renna, tried to "get fresh" with her. She knocked the man horizontal and when he tried to rise she borrowed a few tricks from the practitioners of the French Savatte and laid him low. He atempted to crawl away and Miss Schmeleter accelerated his progress with her feet. He tried to run and Miss Schmeleter choked him till his tongue hung out.

Police arrived but Miss Schmeleter would not surrender her prize. She triumphantly led him to a police station with an honor escort of police and preferred a charge of disorderly conduct against him.

When Magistrate Lioie fixed bail at $1,000, he added: "If we had more women like you we would have fewer men like him."

MYSTERY IN MURDER OF GAMBLER AND GUNMAN

WATERBURY, July 2.—(AP)—Police here tonight are working on two clues which may lead to a solution of the murder of John Costanzo, gambler and alleged gunman, whose body was found early this morning beside his automobile in Orange. Threatened with death, together with his pal, a man identified only by the name Patsy, Costanzo drove to Walnut beach Thursday night and on the return trip to Waterbury, was slain.

Stories of a man with a scarred face, who accompanied Costanzo when he left the Palace garage in this city Thursday night, have started a search for the man. Police believe that another car either overtook the Costanzo car or that an occupant of the machine the victim was driving drew a gun on the gambler.

Costanzo appeared nervous and anxious when he visited a local barber shop Thursday afternoon. He constantly glanced toward the street, the barber who shaved him declared today. Twelve hours later he was shot.

PLENTY OF AMUSEMENT AT EPWORTH LEAGUE INSTITUTE

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC CAMP GROUND, July 3—The Norwich District Epworth League institute closes Saturday. Today the usual lessons were taught by the faculty during the six forenoon periods, preceded by morning watch, "setting up" exercises and breakfast. In the afternoon a variety of sports, such as tennis, soccer and volley ball, were enjoyed at the recreation ground, led by Rev. H. Chester Hoyt, director.

Thursday evening was "stunt night," and the largest crowd of the week nearly filled the tabernacle. There were eight stunts given by the groups of leaguers representing the eight tables in the dining room, and directed by the captain of each group.

Rev. Roger C. Stinson, of Danielson, carried out in creditable manner with his assistants "The League Before and After," showing the marked improvement in conducting of a league meeting after a week at the institute in contrast to one before. Stunt No. 1 received honorable mention from the judges. These were District Superintendent Center, Rev. E. J. Ayres, of Norwich and Mrs. B. E. Gardner, of New London.

Stunt 2 was given by a group under the leadership of Rev. N. B. Burton, Putnam, and was styled "Reading in 1846 of a newspaper of 1826." It contained interesting allusions to the faculty and members of this week's institute, and was prepared largely by Mr. Burton himself.

The third stunt was under the direction of Dr. Spaulding, and was called "The Peck Family." The several girls at his table all wore high, pointed paper caps, and gave amusing performances in recitations and songs.

Rev. Frank Gray had group four put on an interesting pantomime of "Pocahontas and Capt. John Smith."

Stephen Miller Russell Waitt's direction, a short and to the point. It was called "Dr. Quack." Into his office came a seven foot slim lady and a five foot fat one. One wished to be reduced, the other to be enlarged. Each took a draught of medicine from the doctor, which had immediate effect, like Stevenson's Jekyll-Hyde concoction. Wild screams and contortions each got back to "normalcy."

Mrs. Bidgood, dean of women, had her group put on a pantomime styled "The Midsummer," which was finely carried out. Mrs. Bitgood herself read into the play. This also received honorable mention by the judges.

No. 7, however, was considered by [illegible] as the winning group. Rev. [illegible] E. Mitchell was in charge. The [illegible] scene represented an old [illegible] in Lizzie carrying the dean to [illegible]. The different parts of [illegible], as well as the passengers were represented by individuals. Prof. Mitchell was chauffeur, and had the [illegible] of his life making the thing hitch [illegible] and sundry blowouts and blowups and crankings. H. Chester Hoyt led for stunt No. 8, a Shakesperian Epworth League of 400 years ago, with king and queen on a throne, with attendant fanners and aids, Mr. Hoyt himself personifying a clown.

Dean Spaulding then put on what he termed The Faculty Stunt. He called all the members, one by one to the platform, and placed them in various positions and poses. Then he turned to the audience and remarked with smiling gravity, as he pointed to his victims "The Gathering of the Nuts." Miss Marjorie Stephens, of Vernon, rendered piano solos, after which Caterer Meyerhardt served ice-cream to the "customers" in the rear of the tabernacle. It was a very enjoyable evening.

Red itching blisters on baby's face healed by Resinol

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 19:—"My baby had eczema for three months and nothing seemed to do him any good until I tried your products. His cheeks were red and covered with blisters, and the itching was so annoying that he could not sleep.

After reading your ad in the paper I purchased a jar of Resinol Ointment and a cake of Resinol Soap. Only a few applications stopped the itching entirely and within a week the redness was gone and his skin practically clear. Your ointment is really wonderful and I will praise it to everyone." BEFORE HER BABY CAME

Used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Adkins, Texas.—"Before my baby came I was so weak I had to stay in bed most of the time until I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. My mother-in-law, who is a midwife, told me it was all foolishness for me to stay in bed. She told me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it would help me. She handed me one of your little books and I read it and was interested in it. I went to a drug store that night and got a bottle of your wonderful medicine. I took it until the baby was born and was able to be up and do my work. Baby is 4½ months old now and weighs 14 pounds. I have plenty of milk for her and she gains steadily. I recommend it. I am willing to answer letters and will do anything I can for any woman, for I know how I suffered."—Mrs. A. H. Tschirhart, R. No. 2, Box 39, Adkins, Texas.

The SEALED pump is the dealer's guarantee to you of genuine high quality Tydol

HAVEN'T you sometimes wondered, as you watched gasoline being pumped into the tank of your car, whether you were getting the brand of gasoline you asked for?

There is, in fact, foundation for your doubts. In certain cities, notably New York, thousands of gallons of cheap, inferior gasolines have been sold through pumps which bear the trade-marks of well-known, high-quality gasolines.

That deplorable condition is not wide-spread. Yet Tide Water and the Tydol dealers of this locality want to make certain that inferior gasolines never can be substituted for Tydol. They want to safeguard Tydol's high quality, and make it possible for you to be sure that every drop of gasoline that comes from a Tydol pump is genuine Tydol.

Therefore, Tydol dealers have united in sealing every Tydol pump in this city and vicinity.

The sealed Tydol pump

On the intake pipe of every underground tank, which feeds a Tydol pump in this locality, Tide Water has affixed its seal. After the dealer's tank has been filled with Tydol, the intake pipe is re-sealed and remains sealed until the pump again needs Tydol.

Nothing but Tydol goes into the tank, nothing but Tydol can come from the pump.

This sealed pump is the final step in safeguarding the high quality of Tydol every minute from the time it leaves the refinery until it is in the tank of your car.

The Tydol dealer deserves your business

You will find that your Tydol dealer is proud of the sealed pump. It is his proof to you that he sells quality products, honestly represented. He is a good man for you and for your family to deal with. Patronize him regularly.

Fill up with Tydol

Stop at any Tydol pump. You will find it sealed. Have your tank filled with Tydol. Then notice the faster start, the instant pick-up, the rush of power, the smoother quieter motor.

The increased mileage and decreased carbon will leave no doubt in your mind as to why Tydol is called "the economy gasoline."

And you'll readily see why the Tydol dealers want to protect the high quality of this gasoline with the "Seal of Protection".

DANIELSON

DANIELSON BOY SCOUTS PRESENTED STORM FLAG

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, July 2—Boy Scouts—future defenders of all this nation stands for—foregathered with men who have done their bit, in G. A. R. hall Friday evening, and received from the W. R. C. a storm flag that will fly from Scout headquarters whenever the boys are in camp or out on special occasions. The gathering of the youthful Scouts and the venerable veterans of a great conflict was made the occasion for a social hour and a very happy one.

Proud in their possession of the flag, the Scouts will take it along with them when they leave here Sunday afternoon to hike to Old Killingly pond and establish camp there for the holiday period. It will be flown up there among the hills of the town for the first time at a Scout camp.

Scoutmaster Sidney P. Marland said Friday morning that Danielson's organization of Boy Scouts now numbers 48, and there is great enthusiasm among the troops. Encouraging, too, is the interest that a number of men have shown in the movement to make the Boy Scouts a real organization in this town.

There will be evidence of this Sunday when the boys start out for camp. They are going to make the several mile hike to Old Killingly pond in leisurely manner, stopping three times for half hour rest periods. Arrived at the beautiful pond, they will set up their tents and make camp for the night.

Some of the boys are rather clever as cooks and the feeds on the outing promise to be bountiful and very good. Scoutmaster Marland enumerated some of the substantial things the boys are to have for their meals when he was discussing the trip Friday.

The boys will break camp Monday afternoon and be at their homes here before dark.

Employes of the state highway department were engaged during Friday in putting in a considerable area of plastic paving material in Main street, at the railroad crossing, where some trolley rails have just been taken out in connection with the Connecticut company's removal of tracks in Furnace and Cottage streets. The paving job completed Friday has been done with care and is a very good one. Trimming of the rails and guard rails where the new paving has been done will make smoother going for traffic at that particular place.

Harry Raymond Boyd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel M. Boyd of the West Side, has this week entered the United States Military Academy at West Point to begin a four years course of study that will lead to his being commissioned as an officer of the United States regular army. The young man is a graduate of Killingly high school in the class of 1925. He has spent the past scholastic year studying at Northeastern university in Boston to especially fit himself for the intensive studying he will do at West Point.

The young man, who made an excellent record at Killingly high and was a fine athlete also, received his appointment to West Point through Congressman Richard P. Freeman of this district.

Out of some 75 cars that came over the Main street crossing within a few minutes just before midnight Thursday only one driver slowed down to ascertain whether a train was approaching. Many of these machines had just left the carnival grounds. A north-bound express was due at this time and there was no gatetender on duty. This happening is illustrative of how grade crossing accidents continue to happen. Many drivers continue to take for granted no train is approaching. On the other hand, the railroad takes a chance of leaving this crossing on a double trunk line highway through the late night season with no other protection than an automatic signal bell, and the rumbling of a heavy truck will drown out this warning to a driver of such a vehicle.

Where are the mail planes that are supposed to fly over Danielson twice daily on their route between Boston and New York? There's a question that has been asked by many people the past two days after they had watched in vain for them. There can be no adequate answer to that other than the planes are not flying on the exact route that it was figured they would travel in getting over this territory, though, it is said, there may be a variation in the route of a few miles one way or another on any given day. The planes will be seen here frequently from time to time.

In view of the fact that this year's observance of the Fourth will mark the 150th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence, patriotic organizations of Danielson are urging a widespread and liberal display of the national colors tomorrow and Monday. Having no official celebration of the holiday, it is felt that Danielson can make a splendid impression on all by showing a wealth of flags and bunting.

The Buddies are maintaining their place at the top of Danielson's six-team Twilight league and have yet to lose a game. Some of this team's strength will be lost the next two weeks because the Service battery will take players from the lineup in going to camp in Pennsylvania. Games scheduled for the coming week call for the Buddies to play Paco Tuesday evening, the Nail Drivers to play Connecticut Mills Wednesday and the Kiluwats to play the Cleavers on Thursday.

Miss Margaret J. Ray, 55, a native of Ireland, but for many years resident in this country, died Friday at the home of her brother in the Bush Hill district of the town of Brooklyn. PUTNAM

MRS. CHESTER M. ELLIOTT DIED AT HOME IN PUTNAM

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, July 2.—After a week's illness Mrs. Maude Joslin Elliott, wife of Chester M. Elliott, died late Thursday night at the home on South Main street. She would have been 56 years old on the ninth of this month. Her sudden death is due to an acute attack of high blood pressure.

Mrs. Elliott was born in Webster, July 9, 1870, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace I. Joslin. Her father for many years was the owned of the Joslin house, and it was there that she was born. After attending the public schools of Webster she went to the Normal school at Norwich and was graduated from there with honors.

Her husband, Chester M. Elliott, is a native of Thompson but was employed as foreman at a shoe factory in Webster at the time of their marriage on November 22, 1893. Five years later they removed to Brookfield, Mass., where he was employed in a retail shoe store. Then they came to Putnam and for 21 years he has conducted one of the leading retail shoe stores of the city.

Besides her husband, one son, Harold, and her mother, who is more than 91 years old, survives her.

Word of the death of John Winthrop Ballard at Davenport, Iowa has been received by his friends and relatives in this vicinity. Until the age of 18 he made his home here and after he went west to live he returned to Putnam frequently for visits and to attend the annual Ballard family reunions. Mr. Ballard has been a druggist at Davenport for many years. He was in his 79th year and since the death of his wife a year ago his health has been failing and for the past six months he has been confined to his bed.

Mr. Ballard was born in Thompson, March 1, 1847, a son of Winthrop H. and Salome Ballard. He attended the schools of Thompson, the Parker school for boys and the Putnam high school. Finishing his education, he taught for a year in a country school and then went to Davenport to work for his cousin, E. S. Ballard, who wanted an assistant for his drug store.

Before he left for the west Mr. Ballard joined the Baptist church. The immersion took place on a cold January day about 60 years ago and but few are now living who remember the occasion. Only one of the group that were baptized that cold January morning, James H. Converse of Quadic is now living. Ice was cut from the pond in the rear of Deacon Ballard's place and in the freezing waters of the pond Elder Mongeon immersed the following: John W. Ballard, James H. Converse, George F. Ballard, Horace F. Morse, Vernon Carpenter, Emma Bowen and Fannie Elliott.

Mr. Ballard returned to Thompson in 1872 to claim as his bride, Miss Martha A. Blackmar, his school day sweetheart. They were married on October 15 of that year and left immediately for Davenport where they spent their entire married life.

The following officers of the Men's club of the Congregational church have been elected for the coming year: President, Martin B. Robertson; vice president, Edward Scott Duffey; secretary and treasurer, Herbert C. Clark.

At a special meeting of the town school committee, the resignation of Miss Janet Height was accepted and Miss Nancy C. Judkins of Keyport, N. J., was elected to take her place as teacher of Latin and mathematics at the Putnam high school for the next year.

Miss Height has been the teacher here for the past two years and was elected for the coming year. Since then she has made plans for a trip abroad starting Saturday and on her return will teach nearer her home at Winthrop, Mass. Her home is at Manchester-by-the-Sea, Mass.

A. secretary from Tolland county is the director of the camp this year. Sixteen bunk houses and tents are occupied by the campers and a tent leader for each six boys. A new wharf and dock are the principal improvements that have been made for this year. All of the campers were given a physical examination by Dr. E. F. Perry of this city. The present period will last for two weeks, followed by another in which the enrollment will be much larger and there will be several more boys from Putnam.

MAKE IT SAFE AND SANE

One of the best reasons for a safe and sane Fourth lies in the knowledge of what has happened in the past and a real desire to prevent a repetition. The strenuous observance of the holiday with the use of cannon, dangerous crackers, revolvers and explosives has annually caused for many years the loss of many lives and the injury of a much greater number.

All this has been needless. It was recklessness rather than patriotism that produced such results. The day should be properly observed, but that does not call for a sacrifice of life and limb or the placing of a menace in the way of others. Those are in fact features which have marked the past but which should be fully eliminated henceforth.

It was for such a purpose that the safe and sane effort was undertaken. It was rather slow gathering support but the appreciation of the benefits accompanying it has steadily gained recognition and there has been as a result a marked falling off in the number of accidents, the cases of lost eyesight and the instances where hands and fingers have been blown off.

But there is still great need for the advocacy of the safe and sane observance as is shown by the fact that last year there were 711 deaths following the nation's birthday and of the 1050 others injured there were 146 who lost their sight. What a self imposed penalization and how unnecessary! Such not only meant sorrowful homes but the making of a large number of persons dependent for life, a burden upon others which could and should have been avoided.

All that is needed is a bit of reflection upon such conditions to get recognition of the merits of a safe and sane observance, a celebration which may carry far greater significance than the resort to the dangerous methods. No one would have the observance of the Fourth neglected, but when it comes to safety and sanity there should be no alternative in independence day and this applies to methods that will avoid fires as well as accidents.

DISREGARDING WARNINGS

Even at this period of the late season there are already many instances where persons have lost their lives by being unprepared to take care of themselves in the water, or, if prepared, taking chances which showed total disregard for personal safety.

Two girls were caught by the undertow and carried to their deaths at Long Island Beach. Three were rescued on the New Jersey shore while being carried out by the undertow.

Two boys in bathing at New York met their fates. One girl who had gone beyond her depth with two companions was going down for the third time when she was rescued. While there have been numerous cases of fatigue upsets, with loss of life and narrow escapes. In addition, even the early there have been those who have persisted in diving into shallow water and sacrificing their lives.

Every summer it is necessary to chronicle such deplorable affairs. The highly important precaution of learning how to swim doesn't always insure full protection, especially when conditions are deliberately invited which counteract such skill. Just because one knows how to swim under favorable conditions doesn't mean that he is fortified against a strong undertow, that he is able to dive into shallow water and avoid striking bottom, that he is immune against cramps, that he need pay no attention to a weak heart or that he is thoroughly prepared to meet any emergency that may arise and possess sufficient strength to overcome it.

These many instances where drownings have taken place, whether the persons were swimmers or not, the cases where swimmers have been powerless against undertows and unable to butt their heads against obstructions under water and escape are simply repetitions of what happened last summer and many summers before. They carry their own warnings and unless they are heeded it means that more lives are going to be sacrificed in like manner and some close calls may be expected. In the water as well as on the land self preservation is one of the first laws and it should be carefully respected at all times.

EVEN AS EXPECTED

From the tendency noted in Europe it has been felt for a long time that it was not a propitious time for the calling of a conference on disarmament. Whatever there was that lent encouragement to such a move following the Locarno conference was subsequently dissipated. Developments have taken place which made it clear that disarmament was about the last thing Europe could expect to endorse at this time.

Support of that view is furnished by the developments which have taken place at Geneva. There is a division of opinion among European nations, it is true, but that division is strongly against even any further steps along the line of the Washington treaty, which deals solely with naval matters. It would be even more so if land disarmament had been brought to the front.

The United States has not endeavored to tell the committee considering naval disarmament what to do. It has not undertaken to dictate to the conference, but it has urged the importance of getting somewhere by at least extending the good work that was accomplished when the five powers signed the naval agreement.

Even that view hasn't met with encouragement. There continue to be evidences of the old spirit of suspicion cropping out, the unwillingness to do anything whether the other fellow does so or not. It was hopeless to expect that the European countries would approve land disarmament as long as Russia is not a party to the conference and would not be bound thereby, but that has no bearing upon the effort to extend the naval understanding.

The hitch at present seems to be over the question of ratings but it might as well have been anything else. It is believed that it was bound to come, that there was no chance of getting anywhere until European sentiment undergoes a much greater change than has taken place. It is insisted that the present situation is not equivalent to a failure but it certainly portends nothing different and it will be most surprising if the outcome is anything else. It is running true to expectations.

THE NEW AIR MAIL ROUTE

It is by trial that we learn the possibilities of public demands and service. For a considerable time it has been shown that there is sufficient business to warrant the maintenance of airplane mail service across the continent. Through developments it has been shown that what at first seemed a failure is a decided success. Not only is much mail being handled through the air but it is being done with a high degree of safety to carriers as well as the mail matter.

It is therefore of no small significance that such mail service between New York and Boston with a stop at Hartford has been established. This will mean the quicker handling of important mail and it will no doubt awaken a wide response as it becomes a fixture.

This marks a decided advance over the methods employed 150 years ago when a decidedly forward step was taken by the 13 colonies. Interstate communication at that time was a tedious process. It has undergone remarkable changes in a century and a half but while there has been progress from one method to another the end has not been reached. For many years we have relied upon the railroads for the transportations of the mail and we considered it was done with dispatch. Today it can be done faster through the air and that method naturally presents itself for the test. Crossing New England with mail by airplane is a new experience but who will dare to say where this means of transportation is going to stop? Mail carrying is probably only preceding the handling of express and passengers over the same route by a short time.

ROADSIDE MARKETS

The roadside market always comes to attention during the season of farm products. There are instances where it has done well for the owner and others where the experience has not been as favorable. Conditions, products and locality have had much to do with it, but invariably the roadside market is a matter of hit or miss for the purchaser. He may be looking for one and he may stop simply because he has been impressed by the appearance of the goods offered. He may be a believer in signs and he may see so many that they mean nothing to him.

But the mere establishment of a roadside market is by no means all that the producer can do to sell his goods. This has been tried out in an interesting way by an Indiana raiser of strawberries. He had berries galore and he had a roadside market, but he didn't depend upon the chance appearance of those wanting such fruit. He recognized that if he could sell some berries to those who happened to drive past his place he could sell many more if he let those know who wanted fresh picked fruit. He did this. He advertised his goods and in one day sold 600 quarts. He didn't believe in hiding his light under a bushel or sitting under a shade tree by the roadside and trusting to luck. He got in touch with those who were interested in the logical way, and what he has been doing with strawberries others will see a chance to do in regard to other crops as they appear.

The roadside market, if there is no misrepresentation, is welcomed by many, but the volume of trade can be stimulated through advertising far beyond the bounds or the unadvertised chance contact, in other states as well as Indiana.

EDITORIAL NOTES

In preparing for the Fourth and its celebration it is well to let the guide be safety and sanity.

The man on the corner says: Rumor always seem to be able to make a successful flight.

Congress doesn't seem to appreciate the fact that nothing stands in the way of adjournment but itself.

The fellow who threw a lighted match into a window filled with fireworks re-proved that such a combination is a bad and costly one.

From those who go through one way streets and to the left of traffic signals it is difficult to understand what kind of regulations prevail in other cities and states.

What a lot of sympathy that college student is going to get from the credulous when he says he has never smoked, never taken a drink, never been to the movies, never had a "date" and never har been kissed.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

While so much is being said these days in a loose sort of way about youthful depravity, it is refreshing to find statistics that have something to say in favor of the young men and women of our day. The crepe-hanger belongs to no particular age. He has lived and functioned ever since the youthful Adam and Eve were at times a little off color. There is a certain type of mind that always finds the worst conditions and the worst people are not now perfect and never have been; but not all of them nor a majority are now and never have been doing discreditable things. Let us look at one phase of the matter: According to the census bulletin, crime among minors is not increasing. "The number of commitments of persons between 21-24 is still very large, but of persons between 18-17 has greatly decreased." For fraud, assault and vagrancy the decrease has been 50 per cent.

In the last half century there has been a most decided change of opinion in regard to the value of athletic sports, especially for college students. Fifty years ago university faculties accepted them with much reservation. They hardly ventured so far as to prohibit them altogether. The enthusiasm of youth was bound to find some outlet, and if not through athletics probably through other and far more objectionable ways. It soon became obvious that extra energy that was spent through physical games did not seek an outlet in pranks that got both the colleges and the town's people into trouble. But since those days what a change, yes, what a revolution has come! Now in many colleges athletics are a part of the general curriculum, and is it not a change for the better?

In recent years the Fouth of July has lost much of its earlier enthusiasm, and this is perfectly natural. It does not, however, indicate, that the people of today have lost their patriotism. This was seen in the late World war with the call to arms so generally responded to by our noble young men. Up to the Civil war the struggle of the original 13 colonies for independence was the one outstanding event in American history. There was nothing to rival it in its demand for proper recognition. It is not strange that Yorktown should grow a bit dim in the newer light of Appomattox. The observance of Memorial day since 1868, coming but a few months before the Fourth of July should somewhat interfere with the old-time enthusiasm for the latter. It is well then as we are now on the eve of a century and a half of independent national life that the Fouth of July should take on something of its former vigor.

Since tomorrow marks a century and a half since one of the three great state papers was published to the world, it naturally brings prominently again into the limelight the great career of Thomas Jefferson. Jefferso had more to do with the production of the Declaration of Independence than any other man. By nature and education he was the one man among the contemporaries to produce such a document. Few men have occupied the presidential chair in this country of such versatility as Jefferson. Had he not been one of the leading statesmen of the day he would easily have been noted for ability along other lines. He could easily have been one of the leading architects of the day. The splendid home he planned for himself at Monticello, and the University of Virginia buildings are in evidence of this.

This season of the year naturally brings to our notice some great perils that confront us as a nation and, notably that of law violation. I say this season simple because we are on the eve of another Fourth of July observance. As this date marks the birth of the nation the reason is clear that we should be keen to those things that threaten our national peace and harmony. The moral effect of law violation is disrespect for all law and those who succeed in escaping the penalty that is attached to the violation of any one law will not scruple to break all laws that interfere with their desires. This of course would mean anarchy and the step from the violation of one law to a general condition of anarchy is shorter than we think. There is the very strongest of reasons that obedience to the eighteenth amendment should be rigidly insisted upon if we are to preserve the other amendments and the Constitution itself.

A common language has much to do in unifying discordant national elements. What tended to the weakness of Austria more than anything else was the "babel of tongues" in her national assembly in the pre-war period. More than a score of dialects were used, and as each party understood only its own, one can understand this confusion. With the influx of foreigners many of our industrial cities have become polyglot. It would be harsh and unjust to forbid the use of any other tongue but English here in America, but it would be well to encourage all foreigners to conduct business in the English language, and also to cultivate its use in the home. The common school is the most potent factor in preserving the supremacy of the English tongue, and there is some reason for believing that one day it will be the spoken language of the world.

When the boy and girl take part in graduation exercises one is made to realize that in many instances it means sacrifice. I do not mean that speaking a piece or writing an essay means very much sacrifice—although in some cases it is hard to do. But I refer to the sacrifice that is often made to keep the children in school on the part of parents whose means are extremely limited, more so, of course when in the academy and college than in the public schools. It also means on the part of the student himself the practice of the most rigid self denial, which in itself is a fine discipline of character. When one sacrifices for the sake of character in the end he is not the loser. It is not strange that at times the young man who cannot see where the next dollar is coming from is peeved to see other young men throwing money right and left for unnecessary things. Is it strange if at times he feels the injustice of our social conditions? But the future years will clarify the horizon.

What are you going to do with that great strapping boy during the long summer vacation? Don't let all the time be given to play. On the other hand don't bone him down all the time to grinding toil. Insist that he shall work some of the time, and do it regularly. Let him have part of the day for play. It will not bring on physical collapse if he runs the lawn mower enough to make the grounds look respectable. Of course it will make him groan and sigh as though the end were near, but it will not give you much anxiety when you remember that he puts forth twice the exertion in baseball without any noticeable groaning and sighing. Let him save your weary legs even if it horrifies him to go on an errand when he hears some boy whistle.

Work of student plasters, bricklayers, plumbers, and steamfitters on the new $242,850 trade school building to be erected in Detroit, Mich., is expected to save $23,000 in construction costs.

HISTORY WRITTEN ON POSTAGE STAMPS.

The recent issue by the post office department of a sesqui-centennial postage stamp adds another stamp to the national historical collection depicting American history. The period covered by the stamps ranges from the landing of Columbus to the present hour. The "sesqui stamp," as it will undoubtedly be called, commemorates, as have all others, an outstanding event in the nation's life—this time the 150th anniversary of its birth.

The practice of the government in portraying the history of the nation by means of stamps is not old. It is well within the memory of the proverbial oldest inhabitant. It dates only from the year 1875—the anniversary, by the way, of the centennial of the nation's birth. The centennial stamp, therefore, has a birthday anniversary of its own at this time, if one chooses so to say.

In the above year the government at the Centennial exposition in Philadelphia, as a part of its post office department's exhibit, displayed a machine which manufactured stamped envelopes. To distinguish the envelopes from the regular issue a special stamp design was used. It consisted of a shield inclosing a mounted postboy, a train of cars, telegraph pole and wires as its principal figures.

The stamps were intended to be sold at the Philadelphia office only, but the demand for them in a short time became so general that they were offered for sale throughout the country. From this response, no doubt, the post office department took a cue. For when the Columbian Fair was held in Chicago in 1893 there was struck by the department a series of adhesive stamps commemorative of the discovery of America by Columbus. This marked the first commemorative series.

Adhesive stamps themselves are not descended from hoary antiquity though letters which they are designed to convey "poste haste" to the addressee, are the children of yellowing time. Even postal systems antedate stamps by several centuries. Irregular postal systems existed in ancient Persia, Rome and early France. Letters delivered by an organized postal system came into use in America in 1639.

The first adhesive stamps known to use appeared in England around 1840, under the direction of Sir Roland Hill, who fills the role of "Benjamin Franklin" for the "tight little island." In 1847 the adhesive stamp idea crossed the Atlantic and became, through the United States post office, part and parcel of American domestic and business life. In that year congress authorized an adhesive stamp. It was affered for sale in New York on July 1, after being tried out at a few smaller offices beforehand. A curious fact: registered about the stamps of 1847 is that they did not take so well. The first fiscal year of their existence shows only $60,350 stamps struck.

For something like two years before the "stamp act" of 1847 there were issued by individual post offices "postmasters" provisionals." These stamps were adhesive, local in character, and are today the rarest and most valuable stamps in all America.

Precious to the use of the adhesive stamp—and this with particular reference to America—letters for mailing were folded skillfully and sealed with a wax wafer. The address of the person for whom the letter was intended was written on the outer side of the folded letter. The letter paper used was often very tough quality, made necessary by the double duty it was compelled to do. Postage was collected from the sender or the recipient of the letter as the case might be, and was governed entirely by the number of sheets and the distance carried, or to be carried.

Many no doubt who read these lines have stored in some spot sacred to family memory, a bundle of faded yellow packets bearing dates a century gone by, mementoes of love and adventure from some one of the family circle gone to the "western country." Thick crinkling folds bear pale script in an even and firm hand, though the ardor that inspired it has long perished in the dust.

The adhesive stamp has another national value than that of an educational one—a patriotic one. Expression of this value is found in the personal stamp, the stamp bearing the likeness or the presidents. This practice of placing a national character upon the postage "square" seems to be as old as the adhesive stamp itself. The first stamps of England bore the imprint of Queen Victoria. Those of the United States bore the imprints of Washington and Franklin, respectively, as they are today.

That lessons in patriotism are inculcated by such a practice is not to be doubted. Children, and even grownups of alien birth, read in them the characters of the great men who laid the foundations of the republic. They soon learn to notice, associate with the country and revere the men whose likelinesses appear on the stamps. Washington unquestionably comes in for the greater part of that homage of these growing citizens. There is no a day that hundreds of thousands of letters and other articles of post do not go through the mails bearing his image.

Ben Franklin, whose homely philosophy is known to every schoolboy through "Poor Richard's Almanac," is scarcely one whit less a public character today than the Father of His Country. His likeness also appears on hundreds or thousands of pieces of mail a day, reminding the public constantly of his services to the nation and his character. The enumeration might go on indefinitely.

The stamps of the Columbian series (the first commemorative series) issued to commemorate the discovery of America by Columbus were in 16 denominations with the following subjects: 1-cent, Columbus in Sight of Land; 2-cent, Landing of Columbus; 3-cent, Flagship of Columbus; 4-cent, Fleet of Columbus; 5-cent, Columbus Soliciting Aid of Isabella; 6-cent, Columbus Welcomed at Barcelona; 8-cent, Columbus Restored to Favor; 10-cent, Columbus Presenting Natives; 15-cent, Columbus Announcing His Discovery; 30-cent, Columbus at La Rahida; 50-cent, Recall of Columbus; $1, Isabella Pledging Her Jewels; $2, Columbus in Chains; $3, Columbus Describing His Third Voyage; $4, Isabella-Columbus; $5 Columbus.

The next commemorative series of outstanding character, though not in chronological order, was the Louisiana Purchase Series of 1904. The series is reminiscent of the early days of the republic when the vast territory west of the Mississippi was the possession of France. Its historical significance is commensurate with the greatness of the nation today. The subjects selected for this series were: 1-cent, Robert R. Livingston, United States minister to France, conductor of the negotiations for the Louisiana purchase; 2-cent, Thomas Jefferson, president of the United States at the time of the purchase and the hero of it; James Monroe, special ambassador to France in the matter of the purchase and who, with Livingston, closed the negotiations; 5-cent, William McKinley, who, as president, approved the acts of congress officially connecting the government with the commemorative exposition, and, 10-cent, may showing territory of the Louisiana purchase.

In the history of the nation, a romance of unsurpassed grandeur, there is no more intriguing chapter than that of winning the west. Its popularity in picture and discourse is without depth, breadth or height. It is unmeasured and immeasurable. It is full of action, independence, meanness and littleness of character, grandeur and nobility of soul. It charms and fires the imagination. Indians race across the plains, cowboys sleep under the stars and awake with dawn to drive over the endless mesas their clove-hoofed charges, miners dig for gold and the husband sings between the plow handles and gazes steady, blue-eyed toward the cabin in the clearing from which curls a faint, wisp of smoke. In 1898 the post office department wrote this story on a series of stamps. There were nine in all and the pageant presented ran: 1-cent, Marquette on the Mississippi; 2-cent, Farming in the West; 4-cent, Indian Hunting Buffalo; 5-cent, Fremont on the Rocky Mountains; 8-cent, Troops Guarding Train; 10-cent, Hardships of Emigration; 50-cent, Western Mining Prospector; $1, Western Cattle in a Storm; $2, Mississippi River Bridge. The series was struck in honor of the Trans-Mississippi and Omaha Exposition held that year in Omaha.

The Pan-American series came in 1901, and in quick succession after the Purchase series (1904) came the Jamestown series, 1907; the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific 2-cent special of 1909 and the Hudson-Fulton special of the same denomination the same year; the Panama-Pacific series, 1912-1913; the Victory 2-cent stamp of 1919; the Pilgrim Tercentenary series of 1920; the Huguenot-Walloon Tercentenary series of 1924; the Lexington-Concord series of 1925, the Norse-American special for the same year and the Woodrow Wilson 17-cent special, also of this year. For the year 1926, to date, has been issued the John Ericsson Memorial 5-cent stamp and the Sesquicentennial stamp.

Out of this group the Lexington-Concord series is of especial interest as it commemorates the opening battle of the Revolution. It contains three denominations described as follows: One-cent, Washington at Cambridge, representing the general taking command of the Continental troops; 2-cent, the Birth or Liberty, representing the battle of Lexington and Concord; 5-cent, the Minute Man, Of deep interest, also, is the Woodrow Wilson stamp honoring the great war president.

The 13-cent stamp, which had for its subject the portrait of President Benjamin Harrison, and which was abandoned in 1931 following discontinuance of war-time postage, has been reissued to meet the demand for its use on parcel post packages under the 1926 postal rates. The first issue was placed on sale at Indianapolis, Ind.

The students of Shepherd College, Shepherdstown, W. Va., were responsible in part for the reissuance of this stamp, giving in their unique petition for its reinstatement in the postal cycle the following reasons:

1. America was discovered on the eve of the thirteenth of the month.

2. The original republic consisted of 13 colonies.

3. The first official flag had 13 stripes and 13 stars.

4. Our national emblem, the American eagle, requires thirteen letters to spell it; also our motto, E Pluribus Unum.

5. The first words to pass over the Atlantic cable were sent on the 13th day of the month.

6. Our silver quarter is written all over with 13, beneath the crown are 13 stars; the eagle displayed has a branch with 13 leaves in one claw and 13 thunderbolts in the other. On his breast is a shield bearing 13 bars and from his beak in a ribbon bearing a motto with 13 letters. Each wing has 13 feathers, and it takes 13 letters to spell "quarter dollar."

7. There are 13 letters in John Paul Jones' name.

8. There were 13 ships in the first American navy.

9. Perry's victory on Lake Erie was won on the 13th day of the month.

10. The Stars and Stripes were raised over Fort Sumter on the 13th day of the month.

11. Gen. Pershing reached France on June 13, 1917.

12. The thirteenth amendment to the Constitution freed the country of slavery.

13. It would not cost more to make a 13-cent stamp than any other one.

Old stamps have an intrinsic value and stamp collectors are as numerous as the sands of the sea. This value is heightened by the rarity of the stamps and their historical character.

Of all stamps sought by stamp collectors—and American stamps only are referred too—the "postmaster's provincials" are the rarest and the highest listed in the collector's catalogue. There is, for instance, the Boscawen, N. H., "provincial," of which it is a 5-cent stamp and listed at $12,-it is a 5-cent stamp and listed at $12,-000. Another rare one is the Brattleboro, Vt., "provincial," valued—or rather listed—in the neighborhood of $10,000. The Alexandria, Va., "provincial" is also a rare stamp. In regard to this stamp, only recently the newspapers carried an item of one being sold by a lady in Alexandria to a stamp collector for $5,000. The Alexandria stamp is a 5-cent one.

Old Stamps, not unlike goods sold, must be in fine condition to bring the best price. Torn, discolored, dirty or obliterated figures detract from the price of the rarities.

Sunday Morning Talk

WAYSIDE MINISTRIES

It was while Peter and John were on their way to the temple that they discovere the man lame from birth, and healed him in the name of Jesus Christ. It was while wearied by the roadside well in the course of his long journey to Galilee, that our Saviour found the opportunity of giving mankind the great lesson of spirituality of religion taught in the fourth chapter of the Gospel of John.

It was while on the way to Jericho that the good Samaritan in the parable found his opportunity, the Jew and all the world to add to his profession of Godliness, a Godlike charity and mercy.

Many or our best and most far-reaching opportunities are found, not by special journeys to holy places, but by "fastening the eyes" like Peter, at the Beautiful Gate on the opportunity right at our hands. How much depends upon "fastening the eyes" upon the wayside opportunity.

"Fastening eyes" is an intensive word, signifying tense attention, alertness, penetrating observation.

Wayside ministries are taught in nature, when we remember that the straw in which Thorwaldsen's statues were packed were brought from Rome to Copenhagen the seeds of Italian flowers.

A woman was seen putting her hand from the window of a train; ever and again she repeated it and men wondered. But another man saw beautiful flowers along the track, from the seeds scattered by the way. Wayside opportunities are plentiful, and like the wayside flowers they blossom long after the hands that sowed them are gone.

There are glimpses of Heaven granted us by every act or thought or word which raises us above ourselves, which makes us think less of ourselves and more of others, which has taught us of something higher and truer than we have in our own hearts.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Fiorello La Guardia, who has aroused the "drys" by his beer-making demonstrations in congress, has represented the Fourteenth New York district in the house for some years. Italy was the land of his birth. When his parents landed with him in New York as an infant they did not settle down, but proceeded west, first to South Dakota and then to Arizona. Thus the lad grew up on the virile, unconventional, typically American western country; and he became a loyalist of the most ardent type. Singularly gifted as a linguist, he easily found his way into the diplomatic service, and later into the consular service with a post at Fiume. Returning to New York, he joined the staff of one of the philanthropic societies and as a side issue studied law. In 1916 he ran for congress as a republican in a strong democratic district and surprised the politicians by his victory. During the war he served in the American Aviation corps.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Municipal Plant and One Satisfied Patron

Mr. Editor:—A satisfied patron's advice to put the shoe on the other foot, is all very good, but if the shoe blisters the right heel it is quite likely to blister the left one too.

He seems to think that the Gas and Electrical plant is a kind of city charitable institution like the Salvation Army, for helping the poor and being conducted on that plan and not on business principles. That is the complaint of Fair Play and is answered squarely explained in his letter.

Rome was rescued not by the quacking of a goose. What information in history, as well business economics may one where a closer view them a different opinion.

KANSAS AND MANDELL IN CHICAGO BOUT TODAY

CHICAGO, June 2.—(AP)—After a lapse of 25 years, legalized glove fighting returns to Chicago tomorrow, with Rocky Kansas of Buffalo, the veteran lightweight champion, defending his title against Sammy Mandell, youthful challenger of Rockford, Illinois, in a ten round contest to a referee's decision.

The contest, the first to be legally decided in Chicago since the memorable fake between Joe Gans and Terry McGovern in 1900, will be staged in the Chicago American league park, home of the White Sox, with the prospects of an attendance of 30,000 to 35,000, and gate receipts of $100,000 to $115,000.

The match will be for charity, promoted for the Loyal Order of Moose.

Since the notorious fiasco between Gans and McGovern, when the negro purposely laid down in the second round, Chicagoans interested in the sport, with one or two exceptions, have been forced to talk about boxing gloves in whispers. The sport was illega...

FITCHVILLE SCRIBE ANSWERS LETTER OF YANTIC FAN

Dear Mr. Editor: Friday morning's Bulletin contained an article in reply to Bon Jour's letter of Thursday, the Yantic enthusiast signing himself A Fan. According to Webster a fan is an instrument made use of to produce currents of air. Verily the Yantic writer selected a good name for himself for Yantic has been known for its production of hot air for several years. Fitchville compliments Yantic for going out of town for players otherwise the latter team would experience difficulty in winning any games. The five straight won by the Yantic A. A. is no guaranty of a good team, the only safe criterion being when real teams are played and defeated. Evidently the Yantic scribe is not familiar with baseball history in this parish, for Fitchville won both the 1924 and 1925 series money. Manager Sullivan has kissed his $50 bonus but only temporarily for on Sunday he will receive back his $50 and the Yantic $50 as well from Mr. Fields. Pilot Carden of Yantic knows full well that he will need more than a mere twilight league team for Sunday's game for Sullivan or Fitchville has signed up a team second to none in these parts. Now Mr. Editor Yantic can take its medicine for on Sunday the $50 will come to Fitchville and the Yantic A. A. will of necessity have to reverse the entry in its register. Yours for good sports.

The United States, England, France, New York city, China, London, and Germany.

These are the names or countries most commonly mentioned in the United States, according to tests reported in the yearbook of the department of superintendence, National Education association.

Surveys also have determined what, from the American point of view, are the mountains, cities and other geographic features most needful for a schoolchild to know, on the basis of the times he will encounter them in his newspaper and other reading, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the national geographic society.

"The Amazon still is the longest and largest of rivers, but the Rhine ranks first in geographical interest, according to one rating. And after the Rhine come the Nile, Danube, Mississippi, Hudson, Volga, Euphrates, Saar, Jordan and Thames. The mighty Amazon is fifteenth on this list.

"In pursuance of their effort to teach first the geographical matters of most common knowledge educational committees took widely read magazines, newspapers and books. They found that the ten most popular mountains of the earth, judging from times they were mentioned, are: Alps, Caucasus, Rocky, Ural, Carpathian, Andes, Everest, Appalachian, Himalayas, and Mt. Blanc.

"Greenland is the largest island but the Philippines rank first in American frequency of mention, one geography teacher investigator finds, and the six next in line are: West Indies, Hawaiian Islands, East Indian Islands, Porto Rico, Sicily, and Samoan Islands."

TO DELVE FOR REASON OF HIGH GASOLINE PRICES

HARTFORD, July 2—(AP)—Investigation to determine whether there is a "valid reason" for higher gasoline prices in Hartford than in surrounding towns and nearby cities will be instituted immediately by the Hartford Automobile club. Motorists in this city, it is claimed, are now paying 26 cents a gallon, while the price is as low as 21 cents in neighboring communities.

Authorized by the board of governors, at a meeting at the Heublein hotel tonight, President Howard P. Dunham appointed the following members to the investigation committee: F. C Smith, A. A. Jackson, F. H. Williams, Jr., Clifford D. Cheney and F. B. Fountain.

Shirring is being used this season for the first time in many moons. It is accomplished very flatly, however, and with no feeling of bulk or fullness.

MAKING GOOD PROGRESS ON TWO BIG ROADWORK CONTRACTS IN COUNTY

Two new concrete sections of state highways near this city are assuming shape and before a great while will open for travel. These are on the Norwich-Willimantic road and the Norwich-New London turnpike.

The latter mentioned section of concrete is southerly from the Norwich city line at Thamesville to a point part way up Mohegan hill. On this the concrete has been laid for the entire distance on the easterly side of the highway so that this side of the highway is now used for traffic. On the westerly side the concrete has been laid southerly from the city line to the top of Trading Cove hill. This side of the concrete is now covered with straw while it is drying out. The traffic that goes over the road is handled on the one-way plan by a telephone system between the Trading Cove corner and the foot of Mohegan hill.

The work on the Norwich-Willimantic road is in such a stage that persons going between these two cities would do well to go around by way of Lebanon in order to avoid about two miles of rough riding. Concrete has been laid on the westerly half of the highway from the Lebanon road corner southerly to below Franklin hill. For some of the distance traffic can use the new concrete that has been laid, but for a considerable distance there is one way traffic in the rough excavated section where concrete will later be laid. At a point from Smith's Corners northerly the road will leave the old highway and follow a new layout through the meadow on the Charles B. Davis farm.

Two other nearby pieces of highway work are now under way. These are at the submarine base, where the work has been begun in eliminating the S curve and at the Thames river bridge where the approach on the Groton side is being straightened out.

STATE HEALTH CONTEST FOR 4-H CLUB MEMBERS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, July 2—A state health contest for 4-H club members in which the winners will receive prizes from a Hartford paper will be a feature of the junior short course at Connecticut Agricultural college, which this year will be held July 21-29 inclusive. An opportunity to have a health examination will be offered to every 4-H club member attending the short course, and this is made possible through the courtesy and cooperation of the state board of health which will furnish the doctors who will conduct the examinations. The prizes are two scholarships to the 1927 junior short course. These have a cash value of $15 each, and will go to the boy and girl who are the healthiest 4-H club members in attendance at short course.

Close to 350 4-H club members from throughout the state are expected at Storrs, and inasmuch as all 4-H clubs in Connecticut are being asked to send their healthiest members, the contest at Storrs will in reality select the healthiest of the 4000 4-H club members in Connecticut.

As the first step in deciding who are the healthiest boy and girl members at short course, health champions for each of the county delegations will firm be selected. Then from the group of county champions will be selected the state champions: one for the boys and one for the girls. Dr. Millard Knowlton, will conduct the examinations for the girls. Both are from the state department of health.

CONTRACTS FOR $70,000 CONSTRUCTION AT MANSFIELD

Contracts for the construction of a dining hall and kitchen; a physicians cottage and addition to the storehouse at the Mansfield Training school and hospital were approved Thursday by the state board of control. The work will be done by the T. H. Purdy Construction company of Bridgeport at a total cost of approximately $70,000. The appropriation for the work was $74,000.

The board also approved revised plans for the construction of a dormitory at the Danbury Normal school, at a total cost of construction and equipment of $196,000 or $4,000 less than the appropriation. The matter has been before the board for some time due to a request from the board of education that the appropriation be increased to meet construction costs considered necessary. The request was denied and the original plans revised to come within the appropriation.

An addition of $5,000 was made to the appropriation of the highway department to meet compensation insurance obligations. Printing of the biennial reports of the board of education, the treasurer's department and the comptroller's were authorized.

Allis, of Norwich, from the state tuberculosis commission. "Labor has been a pioneer in this movement both morally and financially in Connecticut, and we feel that the request make for representation on the commission is justified.

"We are enclosing a copy of an address by our state president in Hartford, February 7, which is self explanatory."

The address alluded to in the letter to the governor is one delivered by Patrick F. O'Meara, president of the Connecticut Federation of Labor, to members of the labor unions of Hartford last February.

A large number attended the farewell party given this week in the Old Lyme parish house for the Rev. and Mrs. H. M. Wells. A spelling match, charade, contest and other games comprised the entertainment. A solid silver tea service on a large tray and $35 in gold were presented to them from their many friends in the church and community. Refreshments were served at the close. Mr. and Mrs. Wells left for their home in East Cleveland Thursday afternoon. They will be greatly missed in Old Lyme where they have resided for the past six years. Mr. Wells accepted the call to become pastor of the Congregational church there, January, 1920. They have the best wishes of the community in their new work in the parish of the First Presbyterian church in East Cleveland.

STATE CANNOT TAX ON POSSIBLE MUNICIPAL LEVY

The state has no right to levy a tax based on the amount that "might" be levied by a municipality, Attorney General Frank E. Healy has advised State Insurance Commissioner Howard P. Dunbar. The case in question was that of the Mechanics & Traders Insurance Co., of Louisiana, which has been taxed by the state on its net premiums in Hartford, New Haven and Waterbury to offset the tax levied by the city of New Orleans against Connecticut fire insurance companies.

Connecticut has no arbitrary tax law against foreign insurance companies doing business in this state. It does, however, have a retaliatory law, allowing the insurance commissioner to collect from companies in states which tax the Connecticut companies. Connecticut has for years maintained this retaliatory tax against Louisiana companies.

The city of New Orleans, however, a number of years ago, took advantage of a Louisiana statute allowing a municipality to tax companies doing business there. At that time former Insurance Commissioner Burton Mansfield of this state ruled that under the Connecticut retaliatory law this state was justified in taxing Louisiana companies through a "municipal" levy based on business done in cities equaling New Orleans in population. He estimated that the Hartford, New Haven and Waterbury business of the Louisiana companies would reach a total similar to that of the Connecticut companies in New Orleans.

The New Orleans tax, however, was levied by the municipality and the "municipal" tax there was levied by the state. Concerning this the attorney-general says: "There cannot be any confusion between the sovereign power known in our system of government as the 'state' and the creature of its power known as a 'municipality.' If it was the intention of the legislature to include municipalities within the provisions of these statutes, it has failed to accomplish that purpose."

At present only the Mechanics & Traders Insurance Co. is affected by the "municipal" tax, which applies in no other place than New Orleans. The amount collected from the company last year was $320.

WESTMINSTER FARMER DIES WHILE PLANTING CORN

(Special to the Bulletin)

WESTMINSTER, July 2—The sudden death of William J. Johnson of Westminster, occurred early this morning after eating a hearty breakfast. He was planting seed corn, his wife aiding hi mby dropping the seed, being not 20 feet from him, when he suddenly called out "Oh Jen" and dropped dead. As they lived alone his wife rushed to the house for a stimulant and forced it into her husband's mouth but without effect. She then rushed to a neighbor's for help and Fred LaChapelle and James Clinton came promptly, going for her relatives and spreading the sad news. The coroner pronounced the cause of death as heart disease. Mr. Johnson had never suffered from any previous heart trouble, but seemed to be in fine health up to this time.

Mr. Johnson was born in Yonkers, N. Y., as were his father and grandfather. He attended the public schools there and married at 20, the young couple living 15 years in New Rochelle. He was a landscape gardener and had charge of the Quaker Ridge development. Quiet recently he had charge of the Hilliard estate, Pike County, Pa. They have resided in Westminster since 1914. Mr. Johnson was a pleasant companion, a good husband and father. Besides his wife, who feels very keenly the shock of his death, Mr. Johnson leaves two married daughters, two granddaughters and two grandsons. Burial will be in Beechmont cemetery, New Rochelle, where his two other children are buried.

PUMP PUT IN WELL IS CAUSE FOR SUIT

With Judge Charles B. Waller on the bench, trial of the suit for $175 damages brought by Anistari Zagorski of Montville against Feilke Gutkofski, also of Montville, was begun Friday in the court of common pleas at New London. According to the complaint, Zagorski purchased a farm in Montville several years ago with a stipulation in his deed that Gutkofski should have the right to draw water from a well on the farm. The water was obtained by hand drawn buckets. Later the well failed to yield a sufficient supply of water and upon joint agreement of Gutkofski and Zagorski, the latter installed a hand pump at an expense of $210.20, of which the defendant agreed to pay half. This sum, the plaintiff alleges, has not been paid.

Attorney Perry J. Hollanderasky is counsel for the plaintiff, and Attorney Josiah Greenstein of Norwich represents Gutkofski.

After hearing the evidence and the arguments, Judge Waller reserved decision.

CONNECTICUT PREFERS ANTHRACITE TO SOFT COAL

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 2—(AP)—Connecticut prefers anthracite to the semi-bituminous coal from the southern mines and the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad is not anxious to act as an intermediary in transporting soft coal, F. H. Kinney, general freight agent of the company told the interstate commerce commission at the close of the hearing today.

His statement, in the face of the petition of the New England governors for commission for permanent rates from the southern fields on the basis of those temporarily ordered during the anthracite strike, came as a surprise.

Mr. Kinney took the same position as that of James T. Carbine, coal traffic manager of the Pennsylvania railroad earlier in the day when he declared that to haul coal from the southern districts over the long route was a waste of transportation and uneconomic, since an adequate supply may be obtained in the northern fields.

In opposing the fixing of all rail rates on the emergency basis he pointed ought that his chief objection was that there would not be enough money to go around, indicating that some of the connecting lines in the route between mines and market would be obliged to transport the coal at a loss.

Regarding the attitude of his railroad toward accepting this new line of business he was frank in stating that they did not want it and had more than enough to handle at the present time.

ANCIENT ATHENS TO YIELD SECRETS

American scientists have been invited to direct explorations of the Agora at Athens, probably the richest prize of archeology in the world today. The plan calls for an exped aside for the American scientists to replace the confiscated homes by dwellings in some other sector of the city.

Although England, France, Italy, Austria and Germany have had archeological "ambassadors" in Greece for years, they have all graciously stepped aside for the American scientists.

"The Agora was to Athens what the country crossroads general store, with its flour barrel rostrums and soap box philosophers is to Bird Center," says a bulletin from the National Geographic society from its headquarters in Washington, D. C. "The Agora is important because it is the most famous market forum in the world.

"When one thinks of Athens one thinks of the Acropolis. But the Acropolis on its nature-made 250-foot pedestal of limestone rock, was Athens' sanctuary, its church. A tourist in the days of Herodotus, the traveler, went to the Acropolis. But an Athenian went to the market place, the Agora, where he could buy flour, and olives, Hymettian honey in lieu of sugar, and currants from Corinth. Or he tarried and listened to homely snub-nosed Socrates standing in an arcade confusing an Athenian by a few cleverly selected questions.

"Athens today is estimated to have a population larger than it ever supported at the peak of its power. To the 293,000 residents of the Greek capital there can be added quite properly the 133,000 population of Piraeus, port of the city. Athens and Piraeus are less than five miels apart and therefore bear the same relation to each other as Los Angeles and San Pedro Harbor. Fortunately modern Athens has not bitten deeply into the sacred ground of old Athens.

"There will be much in the newspapers and magazines of the excavations in the Agora during the next fifty years. Imagine that one has climbed to the Acropolis and that one is sitting on the southwest corner of the Parthenon with feet dangling over a mellowed marble foundation block.

"Directly south will be Piraeus, on the Gulf of Aegina, and in the minds eye one may exchange the liners and sponge boats at anchor for Greek galleys. A straight, smooth, macadam road shoots north out of Piraeus but its destination is seen to be west of the Acropolis rock. There are a number of rocky hills between the road and the Acropolis and these the boulevard seeks to escape by veering toward the bed of the Cephissus. The rocky hills are littered with age-yellowed marble fragments and ruined walls. On those mounds was built most of ancient Athens.

"Directly west of the Parthenon gallery seat, about the distance of two city blocks is the Aeropagus or Mars Hill, second in height to the Acropolis. There the Athenian supreme court sat and there St. Paul revealed the Unknown God. Two blocks farther and a little more to the north is a lower hill crowned with the Theseum, said to be the most perfectly preserved Greek temple in existence today.

"Crowding up in the north flanks of these three hills, Theseum, Mars and the Acropolis, is modern Athens. The closest quarter is a hodge podge of dwellings and bazaars. It is the old Agora, and a market today just as it was in Athen's youth. But the stores today sell with antiques, apurious and real, and millinery, instead of flour, olives and honey.

"Sprouting among churches, dwellings and store, one can see a few remnants of ruins that have been unearthed already. By agreement all the modern stores and homes must go. The archeologists will peel back the new to discover the ancient. Present occupants must take new homes or stores in modern Athens.

"Continuing the panorama to the north one sees this modern city occupying the whole cup of the plain encircled by the Acropolis, Mt. Lycabettus. Up the valley of the Cephissus it is swiftly spreading toward the famous plain of Marathon, which can easily be seen from the lofty vantage point. If the Athenians had had good telescopes the Marathon need never have been run.

"Excavation of the site of an American crossroads store 2,000 years from now would not reveal much. Although the Agora is by comparison also a market and a political storm center it was somewhat different. In its exterior design an Athenian general store, called a 'stoa,' resembled a modern bank; a row of substantial marble pillars and the store counters themselves. And at the rear of the stores were inclosed warehouses in which goods was locked at night. The front arcade was a social center. If an Athenian had a little time to loaf he didn't take a bath like a Roman or play a round of golf like an American. He found a shady store front and talked politics. Everything was made convenient for loafing. Benches were placed about. Incomparable statues of bronze and of Parian marble looked down upon the groups. The gods, the famous kings, heroes, poets, philosophers, orators, and playwrights were represented in these market halls of fame. Some of these statues archeologists hope to find.

"Free entertainment awaited the idler in the Agora arcades. Acrobats performed. Magicians swallowed swords. One such building had a restaurant where the 30 city councilors were given a free meal every day by the government. But above all there was talk, and discussion and speeches. And out of this idler's paradise came the first and freshest school of philosophy the world has ever known. In the Agora, Solon posted his laws which earned the perpetuation of his name in our word 'solon' for lawmaker. Here Demosthenes delivered the famous orations against Philip of Macedonia and gave us the word 'philippic.'"

BOROTRA BEATS KINSEY IN FINALS BUT AMERICAN WOMEN TAKE DOUBLES TITLE

WIMBLEDON, England, July 2.—(AP)—One of the Wimbledon championships—the women's doubles—went America's way this afternoon, but the end of the really big event of the tournament, the finals of the men's singles, found the French tri-color waving triumphantly over the stars and stripes.

Howard Kinsey, the tennis star from California, who up to today had not lost a single tennis battle on British soil, waged a plucky combat for final honors against Jean Borotra, but found the game put up by the dashing wily basque too much for him. He succumbed in straight sets, in only the first of which was the fight really tense. The score was 8-6, 6-1, 6-2.

Miss Elizabeth Ryan and Miss Mary K. Browne had little difficulty in seizing victory from Mrs. L. A. Godfree, formerly Miss Kitty McKane, and Miss Evelyn Colyer, of England, for the women's doubles title. They won 6-1, 6-1.

The sterling American team repeated their victory over the same pair in the Whightman cup matches several weeks ago, but it was even more emphatic. They crashed through their opponent's defense almost at will, and in less than half an hour the championship was theirs.

Miss Ryan and Miss Browne were at all times in perfect accord, giving a notable exhibition of effective team play, while the English women seemed uncertain of each other's intentions and offered frequent openings, which were quickly snapped up by the overseas players.

The other event of the day in which Americans were concerned was the mixed doubles semi-finals. Vincent Richards and Miss Ryan being eliminated by Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Godfree. It was a close two-set match, the British couple winning 7-5, 6-4.

Thus Miss Ryan on one day found herself retaining hold on a doubles title which she won with Suzanne Langlen, but on the losing side of another battle, the winning of which would have given her a share in another doubles championship. This defeat, however, does not mean there is no chance for an American victory in the mixed event, as Miss Browne and Kinsey are already finalists and will meet Mr. and Mrs. Godfree in the finals tomorrow.

It was as big a crowd as the Wimbledon stadium could hold that saw the main event of the day between Borotra and Kinsey. It included English nobility and a particularly strong diplomatic contingent. Alanson B. Houghton, the American ambassador, was among the spectators.

The scene was an unusually colorful one as the contestants started play in this championship final. Borotra began serving and took Kinsey to 40-love on his powerful service backed by his smashing volleys at the net. Then the American pulled up his drop shot mortar and got the range on Borotra's corners to win the next six points for the game. This rear attack changed the whole course of Borotra's game, and never thereafter did the Frenchman leave the baseline for more than a few seconds. He beat Kinsey with long hard drives, despite the American's vicious slicing.

In the opinion of the spectators that first game clearly demonstrated that Kinsey "is the only man who can lob Borotra away from the net."

In the second game the Frenchman crashed through Kinsey's service with baseline drives, equalizing the score. Brilliant service gave Borotra the third and the fifth games.

It was freely remarked no one ever saw Borotra put over such smashing service in any match. Twice in the fifth he aced the Californian. He won the seventh game at Love, the score at this point being 4-3 in favor of the Frenchman.

Kinsey's fast top-spin won him the eighth game to tie the score at 4 all. Borotra and Kinsey each won their own service in the ninth and tenth respectively, and then the basque broke through Kinsey's service in the eleventh and again in the twelfth the score was evened when Kinsey won. The last two games and the set went to Borotra with little difficulty, for Kinsey only took one point in each game.

The second and third sets were somewhat colorless, the American being clearly outclassed by Borotra's hard accurate driving from the baseline, coupled with expert volleying which often won placement points. When the third set began, Kinsey, although he was down 2, made a brave effort to turn the tide. He made a few excellent shots, but they availed him nothing against the clever placements of his opponent.

The Wimbledon fireworks will end tomorrow with the finals in the women's singles between Mrs. Godfree and the Spanish champion, Senorita Lilli De Alvarez, and the men's and mixed doubles. In the men's doubles it will be a French pair opposing Richards and Kinsey, as Cochet and Brugnon beat Van Lennep of Holland and Baron Von Kehrling, Hungary, in the semi-finals today.

VELVETMEN TO PLAY NEW HAVEN Y. Y. CLUB SUNDAY

J. B. Martin meets one of the strongest opponents yet to appear on the schedule when the Y. Y. club of New Haven will oppose the Velvetmen at the J. B. Martin grounds on Sunday. The Y. Y. club is one of the fastest semi-pro teams in the state and the lineup includes some of the most prominent players in semi-pro ball. They have defeated some of the best clubs in the state including Bradford club of the Middlesex county league, Deep River Town team, Highwood A. C., Riversides of Derby, Kensington, Mohawks of Meriden and also Norwich State Hospital last season.

Manager Murphy of the Y. Y. club is bringing his strongest team to the J. B. Martin grounds, Sunday. Included in the lineup of the New Haven club are "Tabby" Ryan and Joe Pickett, Holy Cross stars, O'Brien of Springfield college, and "Happy" Lynch, who at the present time is leading the New Haven Industrial league in batting. The remainder of the team is made up of New Haven industrial league players which is enough to say that they are top notch ball players, for the New Haven league is one of the fastest semi-pro circuits operating in Connecticut this year.

The manager of the J. B. Martin club is relying on the team that he has used all season and one of the best games of the season is expected. The lineup: J. Murphy c, Pepin or Lemieux p, J. Joubert 1b, F. Murphy 2b, F. Gley b, DeCelles ss. The outfield will be picked from W. Gley, E. Joubert, E. Murphy and C. Krauss. Utility: Pepin, F. Smith, Simcox and Roy will officiate.

Game Called Off

Neither the Bearcats or Centennials had a full nine to play out their game in the Jr. Twi league at the Academy campus so there was no contest. Interest in this league seems to be slowly eboing away and a meeting to decide whether this league shall continue its present schedule will be held at the Academy campus on Tuesday evening before the scheduled game. All teams are requested to have representative at this meeting to be present at 6:15 p. m. sharp.

RIVERVIEW CLASHES WITH NEWPORT SERVICE TEAM TODAY

Riverview tackles one of the fastest of the service teams on the Atlantic coast this afternoon at the State Hospital diamond when the Newport Training station team will clash with Riverview. Newport always has a fast club and for several years past has been the championship service team will clash with Riverview. Newport always has a fast club and for several years past has been the championship service team of the Atlantic coast stations. The team is going along at a fast clip and has beaten some of the fastest of the semi-pro team is going along at a fast clip and has beaten some of the fastest of the semi-pro teams in Massachusetts and Rhode Island and holds a decision over the Submarine Base club, a bitter rival of the Riverview team.

Manager Zemke of the Riverview club is undecided as to whom he will pitch against the sailors but as he is well fortified in the pitching department he feels little anxiety. With a game Sunday and two games on Monday, Riverview has a tough schedule for the holiday week-end. In all probability either Lefty Dugas or Gibbons will go against the sailors as West will probably pitch Sunday's game against the New Departure team at Bristol. Both Gibons and Dugas should be able to hold the seamen. Dugas has a decision over West as the result of a twilight league game and should be in good condition if he is used today. Lefty Harrell will play the initial sack with Webb, another Sub Base player at the Keystone position. Joe Belair will catch.

The lineups for two teams are as follows:

TAFTVILLE A. A. WILL SEEK REVENGE ON BRISTOL TODAY

With one overwhelming defeat chalked up against them the members of the Taftville A. A. club will be out in force this afternoon to even up matters with the New Departure club of Bristol. Last Sunday Bristol took the measure of the Taftville team without difficulty and the Taftville boys having been mulling this defeat over during the week and now are determined that Bristol shall be shown that the local team is no mean aggregation of ball tossers.

Manager Troland in an effort to turn back the New Departure club, a club that boasts of beating the Pittsburgh Pirates in an exhibition game, has secured a pitcher that has a reputation of keeping his club at the head of a minor league. This pitcher is Charlie Smith, former college hurler who is now in organized baseball. Smith was one of the leading college pitchers of the east a year or so back and came under the eyes of big league scouts but has been sent to a minor league for seasoning. Manager Troland has seen him work several times and considers he is superior to either Brooks or Thorp who will pitch for the visitors. With Smith in the box, Taftville feels confident that they can even up the series.

The Bristol team is reputed to be the best in the state and has been swinging along through the season with plenty of victories against some of the fastest clubs in New England. The lineups:

Casey Goes Back To Harvard

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., July 2.—(AP)—Eddie Casey, for the last three years head football coach at Tufts college, has been appointed coach of the Harvard freshman eleven, it was announced today. He played on the varsity at Harvard and was selected for the "All-American" team of 1919.

Bearcats Want Game

The Taftville Bearcats would like a game for Sunday with any fast club in the eastern part of the state. Call the Ponemah Wheel club this afternoon between 2 and 4 o'clock.

"Too old at 40" is a phrase that means nothing in the young life of C. H. Hart, one of England's famous long-distance runners. Now turned 62, Mr. Hart has recently been giving exhibitions of his speed and endurance by running against two horses for 12 hours each day.

BOBBY JONES IS GIVEN ROYAL WELCOME BY METROPOLITAN CROWDS

The rejuvenated Bon Tons won an exciting game from Yantic Friday evening by the score of 6 to 5. The Bon Tons had several new faces in their lineup, and the result was a far better team than had represented them in their previous games. The Bon Tons as now formed will give the best of them plenty of trouble and can be depended on to give a good exhibition of baseball in the future.

Bland and Robertson both pitched good ball for the Bon Tons, Yantic gathering but eight hits off their combined offerings. Gil Jones pitching for Yantic experienced one bad inning, the fourth, when the Bon Tons landed on him for 5 hits and as many runs. Outside of this inning Gil was invincible, holding his opponents to one lone hit in the other four.

After a scoreless first inning, the game nearly came to an abrupt end in the second. The play that threatened to put an end to hostilities was as follows: After Jones had gone out on a fly to center in Yantic's turn at bat, Jerry Lamphere singled to left and stole second. McCall singled and Lamphere took third. McCall attempted to steal second, and when Sheldon's throw to catch him went wild, Lamphere scored, and McCall was safe. After Paul struck out, Charlie was hit by a pitched ball, and was given a runner.

Instead of going down to first for Charlie, Gibbs, the substitute runner, took first directly. He tried to steal second with the pitcher holding the ball and was trapped between first and second. While he was being run down, McCall scored and when the Bon Tons mussed up the play on Gibbs, the latter was also safe. The Bon Tons then contended that Gibbs did not go from home to first, when he relieved Charlie and was therefore out. After a heated argument which nearly resulted in the game being called, play resumed, Umpire Morin's final decision being that Gibbs was out and that the McCall's run did not score.

There was no more scoring until the fourth when the Bon Tons launched a heavy batting onslaught on Jones and scored five runs, on an error by Jerry Lamphere and four successive singles by Fulford, Sheldon, M. Brown and DeBarros and a double by Whitford.

In the fifth, Yantic scored a run, a single by Marchand and a wild pitch, and two sacrifice flies, while the Bon Tons came back with a run to match in their half when Fulford doubled, took third on a balk and stole home.

Fulford in center field for the Bon Tons was the outstanding star of the game, making a double and single out of three times at bat, while his two putouts in the field were sensational.

The score:

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

A lodge of Good Templars was instituted in Norwich just 50 years ago this week, George W. Price being elected and installed as the presiding officer. The same week Park church was planning a centennial service to be held on July 4th of that year and the Catholic residents of the city were planning a large parade for the holiday. Interesting extracts taken from the files of The Bulletin of 1876 are as follows.

Monday, June 26, 1876—A new lodge of Good Templars will be instituted here Wednesday in the Grand Army hall under the name of Victor lodge. The work will be performed by delegations from the New London lodge No. 130, Albion lodge No. 177 of Versailles and Yantic lodge No. 43 of this city.

The National band of this city will furnish the music for the New London celebration on the Fourth of July, the Third Regiment band being engaged to play at Colchester.

The first picnic of the season was held by the Sunday school of the Norwich Town Congregational church at Thames grove Saturday. About 250 were on the grounds, most of them going down in the morning on special cars and returning early in the evening. A melodeon was carried to the grove and there was special singing during the day.

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY

The Light That Did Not Fail

To the sound of the wave's low moaning
And the wind's high pitched song,
Above the wounded's groaning
All through the dark night long,
From the masthead like a star
It gleamed across the fretted sea
Its rays stretching out afar
To windward and to lee.

When broadsides shook the timbers
And silvered the standing spars,
The Light above bent its beams,
It needed not such jars.
And when the battle was ended
And the victory nobly won,
It shone forth in ecstacy
Over work that had been well done.

Then came a day when "Ironsides"
Must needs be put ship shape
For though she was the victor.
The cannister and grape
Had shattered her rigging
And riddled her canvass, too.
Repaired, she looked like a maiden,
All dressed in garments new.

But on the shore behind her,
As the proud ship outward sailed,
Among her cast-off garments
Was a light that never failed.
A young volunteer whose duty
It was as battery clerk,
To carefully scan the battlefield,
Was attending to his work.
When a ray of light, like a finger,
Directed him to the spot
Where amid the Old Ship's wreckage
Shone the light that faileth not.

Its brass that had been gleaming
Was dull and lifeless now
And its globe once so spotless,
Had fallen in the slough
But still in light reflected
And thus it was saved from destruction
By a sailor on that day.

A treasure rare he held it
From the proudest ship that sail
And to his bride he bore it.
The light that had not failed.
Obsolete though it may be,
Filled with oil from a whale,
Though others may shine brighter
And we trust will never fail.
Once from a masthead gleaming
Midst storm and calm and strife,
Though humble its beginning
Should have an honored life

So let's rebuild the Old Ship
Restore each spar and sail
And from its masthead hang once more
The light that did not fail.

The Collier's Dying Child

The cottage was a thatched one, its outside old and mean:
Yet everything within the cot was wondrous neat and clean:
The night was dark and stormy—the wind was blowing wild:
A patient mother sat beside the death bed of her child—
A little worn-out creature—his once bright eyes grown dim:
He was a collier's only child—they called him "Little Jim."
And, oft to see the briny tears fast flowing down her cheek.
As she offered up a prayer in thought; —she was afraid to speak.
Lest she might waken one she loved far dearer than her life:
For she had all a mother's heart that wretched collier's wife.
With hands uplifted, see, she kneels beside the sufferer's bed.
And prays that God would spare her boy, and take herself instead:
She gets her answer from the child —soft fall these words from him
Mother the angels do so smile, and beckon Little Jim:

I have no pain, dear mother, now; but O, I am so dry:
Just moisten poor Jim's lips once more, and mother, do not cry!"
With gentle, trembling she held a cup to his lips—
He seemed to thank her—then he took three tiny sips.
Tell father, when he comes from work, I said "good night!" to him:
And mother now I go to sleep." Alas! poor Little Jim!
She saw what he was dying! The child she loved so dear,

When He Cometh

It may be in the evening
When the work of the day is done
And you have time to sit in the twilight,
And watch the sinking sun,
While the long bright day dies cloudy
Over the sea,
And the hour grows calm and holy
With thought of me.
When you hear the village children
Passing along the street,
Among those thronging footsteps
May come the sound of My feet,
Therefore, I tell you, Watch!
By the light of the evening star,
When the room is growing dusky
As clouds afar.
Let the door be on the latch in your house
For it may be in the gloaming
That I will come.

It may be when the midnight
Is heavy upon the land
And the black waves lying humbly along the sand.
When the moonless night draws close
And the lights are out in the house
And the fires burn low and red.
And the watch is ticking loudly beside the bed
Though you sleep tired out on your couch
Still your heart must wake watch in the dark room
For it may be that at midnight I will come.

It may be at the cockcrow,
When the night is dying slowly in the sky.
And the sea looks calm and holy
Waiting for the dawn of the golden sun,
Which draweth nigh.

When the mists are on the valleys shading
The river chill
And the morning star is fading over the hill.
Behold I say unto you Watch
Let the door be on the latch in your home
In the chill before the dawning
Between the night and morning I may come
It may be in the morning

When the sun is bright and strong
And the dew is glittering sharply
Over the little lawn.
When the waves are laughing loudly
Along the shore, and the little birds are singing sweetly
About the door
With the long day's work before you,
You rise up with the sun
And the neighbors come in to talk a little
Of all that must be done
But remember that I may be the next,
To come in at the door
To call you from your busy work forevermore.
As you work your heart must watch
Let the door be on the latch in your home,
And it may be in the morning that I will come.
So He passed down the cottage garden,
By the path that leads to the sea
Till He came to the turn of the little road,
Where the birch and labninum tree,
Lean over and arch the way
There I saw Him a moment stay
And turn once more to me.

As I wept at the cottage door
And lift up His hands in blessing.
Then I saw His face no more.
But still while I stood in the doorway
Leaning against the wall
Not heeding the fair white roses
Though I crushed them and let them fall
But looking down the pathway
And looking toward the sea.
And wondering and wondering.
When He would come back to me
Till it was aware of an angel,
Who was going swiftly by
With the gladness of one who goeth
In the light of God most high
And he passed before my cottage
Beyond the gate.
I suppose that he was come down
At the setting of the sun.

To comfort some one in the village
Whose dwelling was desolate
And he passed beside the doorway face.
before my place.
And the likeness of a smile was on his face.
And he saith to me, "Weep not, for unto you is given
To watch for the coming of His feet
Who is the glory of our blessed heaven.
The work and watching will be very sweet.
Even in an earthly home.
And in such an hour as ye think not
He will come.
So I am watching quietly every day
Whenever the sun shines brightly

I rise and say
Surely it is the shining of His face.
And look unto the gate of His high place,
Beyond the sea.
For I know that He is coming shortly
To summons me
And when a shadow falls across the window of the room
When I am working at my appointed task,
I lift my head to ask
If He is come
And the angel answers sweetly in my home
"Only a few more shadows" and He will come.

Living Flowers

"I'm never alone in the garden" he said,
I'm never alone with the flowers,
It seems that I'm meeting the wonderful dead
Out here with these blossoms of ours,
And there's never a bush or a plant,
or a tree,
But somebody loved it of old.
And the souls of the angels come talking to me
Through the petals of crimson and gold.

The lilacs in spring bring the mother once more
And she lives in the mid-summer rose
She smiles in the peony clump at the door,
And sings when the four o'clocks close.
She loved every blossom God gave us to own,
And daily she gave it her care.
So never I walk in the garden alone
But I feel that the mother's still there.

Here still is the phlox she planted with care
The years have been long since her laughter I've missed.
So spicy with fragrance, and fair,
But her spirit is hovering there.
The roses that ramble and twine on the wall
Were planted by one that was kind.
And I'm sure as I stand and gaze on them all.
That the soul has still lingered behind.

"I'm never alone in the garden," he said
I have many to talk with and see
For never a flower comes to bloom in its bed
But it brings back a loved one to me
And I fancy whenever I'm bending above
These blossoms of crimson and gold
That I'm seeing and hearing the ones that I love
Who lived in the glad days of old.

HELPUL AND ECONOMIC

Dear Corner Sisters: Along with the others I feel I'd like to submit several hints I've found helpful. I have two babies and did not want to buy two high chairs so I bought four door stops and screwed them into the legs of a kitchen chair. This made the chair two inches highr, which was just right for the two-year-old and also made a chair high enough for me to sit in to iron or do other kitchen work and yet the chair did not take up any extra room.

I also find manila envelopes with a clasp such a help. I keep them in my desk and write on the outside the name of contents.

They are especially nice for keeping paper patterns and they come in handy for mailing small articles.

New clothes pins break easily so I tried boiling them in salt water. This made them tough and I have not had to buy new ones for two years.

I bought six orange boxes for five cents each from my grocer and put one on top of the other in my attic. This serves the purpose of a chiffonier for storing things away.

The coming of the warmer weather will be welcomed and ought to spur on the club picnics of which there have been none this season.

RECIPES, TO TRY

Dear Social Corner: Those who are making clippings for their cook books may like these recipes:

Peach Pudding: 1 cup peaches, 2 tablespoons melted butter, 2 eggs, 1 cup milk, 2 1-2 cups bread flour, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 5 teaspoons baking powder.

Beat whites of eggs until stiff and then add yolks and beat again. Add 1 cup of milk to the egg, sift flour, baking powder and salt 3 times. Work butter in flour until like meal, then pour eggs and milk over flour and stir all together, put a layer of batter in pan then a layer of peaches until pudding dish is filled. Steam 2 1-2 hours. Serve with whipped cream.

Boston Peach Pie: 2 1-2 cups of peaches (canned or fresh) 1 1-2 cups seeded raisins, 1 1-4 cup sugar, 2 tablespoon grated lemon rind, 2 tablespoons of arrow root.

Cook raisins in syrup from peaches (if canned) 5 minutes (if there should be 1 1-2 cups in all. Add a little water if not syrup enough. add sugar and arrow root and cook until thick. Remove from fire pour over the peaches, lemon juice and lemon rind. Bake between two crusts.

Cucumber and Radish Salad: Peel cucumbers, let stand in salted ice water about 30 minutes. Just before serving, cut radishes in slices(but do not peel), slice cucumber about 1-2 inch but not way down through about 1-2 inch apart, rinse off and dry, insert the radish in the cut places. Serve on lettuce hearts with mayonnaise.

Tea Bars: Mix and sift together two cups of flour, four teaspoons of baking powder, one teaspoon of salt, and one tablespoon of sugar. Work in 3 tablespoons sugar and 2 tablespoons butter with the tips of the fingers. Add three fourths cup of milk slowly, toss on a well floured board and roll into an oblong sheet about one quarter inch thick. Spread one half of the oblong with two tablespoons of butter, sprinkle with one fourth cup of finely-chopped dates and fold over the other half of the dough. Cut into strips with a sharp, well-floured knife. Place in a greased pan and brush the top over with a little milk. Bake 15 minutes at 450 F.

A YOUNG CHILDREN'S PARTY

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: Many are puzzled to know how to arrange a birthday party for young children. This is the way I have done.

First of all secure your crepe paper tablecloth and napkins. The color scheme can be pink and blue. It is babyish and girlish. I had for design on tablecloth, pink and various shades apple blossoms budding forth from little brown twigs and branches. Intermingled was baby blue ribbon with a border of deeper shade ribbon draped as it would fall from table and caught at angles with bow knots. (Does this read clear?) This pattern is standard, so hope you will be able to procure it. Little boys (perhaps little brothers) top, might be present, as a toy for each must be bought. Ten cents will cover the cost of each toy. I had building blocks, horses, cows, tools, fire apparatus, etc. These were a delight to the little men. For the little women dolls, dolls' trunks, colored picture books, stuffed kittens and puppies and miniature doll houses. These all proved the right thing for their tender minds and ages. Also for each one include paper or grass baskets filled with pure candies and very small in size. These too can be carried out in pink and blue.

It is not necessary for the room to be decorated other than with a vase of pink carnations. These can be placed at a window and another bunch for center of table. Birthday cake (oval or round) is buried in a covering of white frosting proudly supporting two little blue candles in pink holders. Baskets or dishes of fruit, other sliced cake, cookies, candies, (mints are nice and come in various colors), etc., help to delight the little eyes. The fruit is rolled in pink and blue tissue paper and the paper napkins are used over all the plates, with the exception of those that contain ice cream. Baked apple with thin cream, followed by strawberry and vanilla ice cream, cookies, cake, milk or cocoa, constitutes a digestible, nourishing and pleasing meal or lunch. There really isn't much. I find that a 7-year-old can do in the line of entertaining other than dancing and chirping, so a music box can come in handy. You're welcome. Their little spirits are alone enjoyment and pleasure for me. Hope you will enjoy these hints.

FROM KITTY LOU'S COOK BOOK

Dear Corner: I am sending recipes from my cook book:

Mahogony Cake: 1-4 pint of cocoa 1-2 cup sugar, 1-3 cup milk, 1 egg beaten.

Part 2—1 cup sugar, 1-4 pint of butter, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 2 eggs, 1-2 cup milk, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 pint flour, 2 cups, 1 teaspoon soda.

Method: Part 1—Mix cocoa and sugar together add milk to beaten egg, mix all together cook in double boiler and let cool.

Part 2—Cream butter, sift salt, sugar, flour, soda, sugar 3 times add this to the butter. Beat eggs separately and add yolks to the butter flour etc. Then stir these in all together, beat whites stiff, stir those in, mix thoroughly with part one.

Caramel icing for Mahogany cake: 2 cups brown sugar, 3-4 cup cream, butter 1 tablespoon, 1-8 teaspoon salt.

Boil all together until it forms a soft ball in cold water, stir constantly spread over cake. The above cake helped to pay a girl's way through college.

Ye Old Tyme Raised Cake: This recipe is over 200 years old. 6 cups of flour, 4 cups sugar, 3 cups butter, 1 quart butter, 1 quart milk, 2 teaspoons each of ground nutmeg and mace, 1 pound raisins, 1-4 pound citron, 1 yeast cake, 1 teaspoon salt. Sift ingredients together thoroughly in this manner.

Dissolve yeast cake in one half pint of warm milk. Heat remainder of milk quite hot. Work Crisco and salt into flour, with hands until thoroughly blended. Add milk as hot as can be handled. Mix thoroughly then add yeast. Mix together thoroughly. Keep warm until risen, warm sugar and work unbeaten egg whites into it together with spices. Work it all into dough and let it rise second time. Work in raisins and citron shaved fine. Put into pans and let rise. When light put in hot oven, reducing heat after 25 minutes. This recipe makes four loaves.

GREETINGS AND RECIPES

Dear Corner Sisters: A few words of greetings and a few recipes:

Health Macaroons: Two tablespoons butter or other fat, one-half cup sugar, two eggs, one-quarter cup coconut, three-quarter cup rolled oats, 4 cups breakfast bran. Cream fat and sugar, and add beaten eggs and remaining ingredients. Drop by spoons on greased baking-sheet, bake 15 minutes in quick oven (400 degrees to 450 degrees F.) Let stand a few moments to harden before removing.

Hot Ham and Egg Sandwich: Spread slices of bread with mustard butter (make mustard butter by creaming together butter and dry mustard or mustard sauce.) Place a thin slice or hot broiled ham on each piece of bread and top it with either a fried or a poached egg. Serve at once. If desired this sandwich may be covered with a cream sauce to which mushrooms have been added.

Peach Celestial: Make a pint of corn-starch pudding, substituting one cup of peach-juice flavored with a little lemon and orange juice and a bit of the grated rind for one cup of milk. Pour this into a shallow glass dish and cover the top with a layer of halves of canned peaches. Chill and serve with whipped cream. This may be varied by pouring a layer of the corn-starch into individual glass dessert dishes, and putting one-half a peach on each. These may be sprinkled with grated coconut just before serving. Marshmallows cut in half and folded into the whipped cream not only add to the appearance but serve to make cream stand up better. Cherries or halves of canned apricots may be substituted for the peaches.

TEACH CHILDREN TO SAVE

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: I enjoy the Corner so much I wish to give my opinion on the saving habit or children. By all means inculcate the saving habit in the little child but draw the line when it verges on hoarding. If you give your child an allowance and then insist that he put every penny in the bank, the object lesson is lost. He knows no more about the value of money than he would had he no allowance. Let your child feel free and unhampered about the use of his allowance, but impress on the little mind that a certain portion should be saved.

Study the child's disposition; if he tends to hoarding encourage free spending. Miserliness is closely allied to misery, both in spelling and meaning, that the slightest disposition that way should be counteracted.

Teach the child that all old toys should not be hoarded, but they should be passed on to less fortunate children. A certain child has a closet full of toys hoarded together for a number of years. The mother points to it with pride. "He is so careful of his toys." Every plaything he ever had is as good as new. I like to see a child take care of his things and save them." Did this mother but know it, she is laying the foundation of a life filled with selfishness. This child has the saving habit developed to the point where it verges perilously close to hoarding, and unless he is taught that judicious spending and giving is necessary, he is apt to grow up to a miserly manhood.

It is some time since I have sent a letter to the Corner but my interest is as keen as ever. Best wishes.

LAND AND DAYS OF MANY

Dear Social Corner Friends: We are living in a land of many changes. This is the month of June the prettiest month in the whole year in New England and it is supposed to be warm with bright sunshine and flowers but it has seemed more like the month of September with its cool nights with light frost. June is the month of weddings and happiness for many. It also is the month of sadness for those who were out for a days auto pleasure and were smashed up by the reckless driver who was full or "booze" and the happy party were separated some taken to the hospital and others to the undertaker's parlor. Time changes people on the road and there are many times the cause in the bottle in the hip pocket.

Time changes many people of today. They do not seem like they used to and are striving for the almighty dollar more than they do for friends. Every one is on the rush to beat the other fellow and when they succeed they are called mighty smart men who know how to do business. It is well we do not all look on the side of life that way. There are quite a few left yet who are willing to live and let others live.

The Social Corner devotes quite a space for poems; some of them are very good. Have just received a fine booklet from Maine and read with pleasure of the great fishing pools for trout and many other points of interest. If Balsam Fir sent it we will say thanks and if it not to the one who did send it.

It has been some time since I have written to the Corner but not for a day have I ever forgotten the Bulletin Social Corner Page, for I was married to the Corner many moons ago and long may it live and make merry as it has done ever since I got into the family.

Young writers keep up your courage for there is lots of fun just a little ahead. With all kinds of good wishes to all young and old I remain the same as days gone by.

ANTICIPATING BEACH PARTY

Dear Social Corner Editor and Friends: To Nancy Peck, Cosmos, and Lady Lou, I extend thanks for remembering me on my birthday. I too, like Lucille Drew had my kit packed and hat and coat on even if it did rain and was all ready to start for our last Social Corner meeting in Westerly, when it thundered and that settled it for Rebecca. Am looking forward with pleasure to our next gathering at the beach. If all is well, think there will be a good delegation from this corner of the Corner.

Yours for Atlantic Beach.

REBECCA.

ANOTHER CORNER MEMBER

Dear Social Corner Editor: I have been to quite a few of the meetings of the Social Corner and I think I would like to join. I would like a pin if you will please send me one. Thank you.

O. D.: I hear you and Lady Lou have been to see your mother.

Francis L: I hope you are better.

E. L. M.: I hope to see you sometimes. So I will know who you are.

For my pen name I will take

BETH C.

SUGGESTIONS ABOUT STRAWBERRIES

Social Corner Editor and Sisters: I have attended a Social Corner gathering and would like to become a member if there is room for another.

As strawberries are in season I will make two suggestions which are helpful to me.

For mashing strawberries I use a wire potato masher to good advantage. For making strawberry ice cream putting the berries through the potato ricer will avoid those undesirable lumps you are apt to have if crushed.

Will take for my pen name, if no one has it.

KATRINKA.

CLUB 5 WILL PICNIC AT ALLYN'S POINT

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Do not forget our Club 5's picnic July 7 at Mrs. Fred Harvey's Allyn's Point. Be sure to bring something to eat, plate knife, fork, spoon and cup. All are welcome.

ALTA.

REMEMBER THE FOURTH

Dear Editor and Corner Sisters: Well, "what is so rare as a day in June" has been well demonstrated this week. We certainly have been having rare days the last week.

And the farmers will be glad for they are busy making hay while the sun shines.

The sun has been hot but we have lovely cooling breezes and goodness knows we needed the warm weather after all the cold we have had recently.

But Cloud Digger says look out for frosts in July and August, so we had better not put our blankets in storage at all at that rate.

Aunty No. 1 and Uncle: I see your garden is quite in the lime light. Glad to hear that everything is coming along so wonderfully.

Every Saturday when I read the Corner page I think I will if Kitty Lou, Ethelyn, Guess Who, Imogene Graef and Majestic were to stop writing we would not have many letters on the Corner page.

How we would miss the Corner page in The Bulletin. It seems that is the first thing most people look for on Saturday. I know I for one would miss it very much.

Well next Sunday and Monday we will all help our dear Uncle Sam to celebrate his 150th birthday. I hope all will celebrate in a safe and sane way. We have had altogether too many accidents in the past to care to duplicate them again this year.

When we unfurl our Stars and Stripes and watch them floating in the breeze how happy we are to think that we live in the land of the free and the home of the brave and how thankful to be able to say that is my flag and this glorious old U. S. A. is my country for I am an American. We should thank God that He made us Americans.

Happy birthday Uncle Sam and many happy returns.

BLACK EYED SUSIE.

CLUB 6 MEETS ON THE 20TH

Dear Social Corner Sisters: It is late and time little folks were in bed, but I feel I must write a few lines of again be called a slacker.

I think those who attended the meeting of Club No. 6 were well repaid as we certainly had a fine time. We were all glad to welcome the sisters from other clubs and hope they will come again and bring others. Am very sorry Lucille Drew and Rebecca were kept at home by the rain. Just have a little more courage sisters, which with an umbrella will help out wonderfully.

Nancy Peck: We heard you were sick but hope you are fully recovered and will be able to attend our next meeting.

Interested Reader: I am going your way again soon and I may get letter again. If so, I shall not feel so very badly about it because—well, I certainly do like warm biscuit.

I was glad to meet Nemo (?) at a recent gathering. Hope to see her again on the 20th. As our next meeting is to be at Atlantic Beach we will all have to remember and take along our dishes, as there will be no friendly cupboards to fall back upon. How about taking our bathing suits?

Shall we venture? To be sure there is a little more cloth in some of them that is required at the present time, as most of those worn now are sort of coming out gowns.

Let us try and go anyway and plan for the best time ever.

DOROTHY BRADFORD.

GREETINGS FROM PEGGY ALDER

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: I think it is about time I wrote a Social Corner letter. I attended the picnics of Club No. 4 at Putnam and Danielson, had a splendid time at both places and was very glad to add the new names to my Social Corner book.

We are glad Bittersweet, Hollyhock and Pippin have joined us. Perhaps Bittersweet and Hollyhock will send in their pickle recipes, and Pippin makes nice sugar cookies.

1492: It is always serious when Master Peggy has to walk? We have given the shovel another ride. I had to sit side of it this time.

Mary Gusta: I hope you are feeling much better now. I didn't see you for several mornings after the picnic and thought you must be worse.

Anne D: That cup has two cracks in it. Think the trip was too much for it, but if it will possibly hold together it is going to the next picnic with me.

Votami: Did you, or did you not? Well, I shall soon know any way. Some task you have ahead or you, and buckleberry time is just around the Corner. I have located the flash light and if you are not able to find the marbles I think B. will help you.

Best wishes to all.

PEGGY ALDER. (Club No 4.)

SAVING THE RUG

Dear Social Corner Friends: I am sure there are a number of members whose homes are laid out similar to mine, and it is quite likely they will find the following suggestion useful:

I have to cross my dining room to reach the bedrooms and bathroom, also the front door, and I found that along the strip of rug from the kitchen to bedroom etc., was constantly dirty, to say nothing of the wear on the rug. I purchased a strip (3 1-2 yards long) of unbleached linen crash, costing about $1 and laid it on the floor between the two doors, and in the short time I have had this it is surprising the dirt that has been kept off the rug. This is much more convenient than a strip of carpet, as it is easily laundered and looks clean, and can be picked up in the evening when housework is finished or if unexpected callers arrive in the day time.

Yours for the Corner.

FRED'S WIFE.

A BUSY AND ANXIOUS SPRING

Dear Social Corner: Here it is nearly midsummer and we hardly realize it the weather has been so cool. I have had a very busy spring as well as lots of sick folk to worry about. Nine weeks of anxiety nearly upset my nerves for sure, when I have been so miserable myself. People say "cheer up." That was beyond me this season. I have tried that idea too many years. I sit down on it for once. Am longing to meet the sisters when they have another meeting if I have to take a chance by airplane. We will all visit hard, I bet. Will write a longer note next time. Best wishes to everybody.

DEARIE.

FORGOT TO SEND NAME

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: I am sending a poem by E. A. G. which speaks the true sentiments of my heart almost daily.

I would like to become a member of the Corner and take for my penname

ANN TENNA.

(You have neglected to send in your correct name. When that is done you can be admitted as a Corner member.—Social Corner Editor.)

GRATEFUL APPRECIATION

Dear Social Corner Sisters: It is with grateful appreciation that I acknowledge your kind sympathy for letters, cards and phone messages that come to me at the time of my beloved father's passing on to the Great Beyond.

July 7—Club No. 5 has picnic at Mrs. Fred Harvey's, Allyn's Point.

Farmer Brown's Boy Discovers Bluffer

There's nothing like a little bluff
To make some people think you're tough.

—Bluffer the Adder.

Bluffer ought to know. Bluffing is a part of his stock in trade. He says that if you make people think you're dangerous they will leave you alone. So they will unless they happen to know that you are only Bluffing.

On his way home from handing the young Duck Hawks Farmer Brown's Boy was moving along rather carelessly. He wasn't watching where he put his feet. So it was that just as he reached the foot of the ledges he was startled by a sharp buzzing rattle. "Buzztail the Rattlesnake!" cried Farmer Brown's Boy, jumping to one side. Then he looked over to the flat rock he had been about to step on. Sure enough, there was Buzztail the Rattlesnake with the rattle on his tail being shaken for all it was worth. Farmer Brown's Boy looked at him and grinned.

"I suppose," said Farmer Brown's Boy, "that I ought to kill you because you are dangerous. But I hate to kill an honest snake and certainly you are an honest snake. You always give fair warning if it is a possible thing. All you ask is to be left alone. If other folk will leave you alone, you will leave them alone. Nobody is likely to come up this way again this year anyway."

Buzztail looked almost as if he understood what Farmer Brown's Boy was saying. He looked what he was—a dangerous snake. But he also showed very plainly that his intentions were perfectly good. So Farmer Brown's Boy left him alone.

It was when he was almost home and still thinking about the Duck Hawks he had handed, and so still heedless of where he was going, that a sudden hiss, as if some one had put a piece of redhot iron in water, made him jump again. He looked down. There in front of him, partly coiled, was another snake and beside this one Buzztail the Rattler looked gentle. This one was largely black with broad markings of red. His tail was tightly coiled. His head and neck were as flat as if they had been through a clotheswringer. His mouth was wide open, and when Farmer Brown's Boy moved the snake hissed again. He certainly was a dangerous-looking snake.

Farmer Brown's Boy laughed aloud. "Hello, Bluffer!" he called. "You can't scare me. You would scare any one who didn't know you. You look about twice as dangerous as old Buzztail back there on the mountain. But you're not scaring me one bit. It's all bluff and you know it. Old Mother Nature certainly did a good job when she undertook to make you look so dangerous that people would leave you alone. I don't believe that in all the Great World there is an uglier appearing snake than you, and certainly there isn't one more harmless. You couldn't bite it if you wanted to."

He reached down with a little stick and Bluffer struck at it, but he didn't bite it. He was satisfied just to strike it. The tip of his nose was turned up. Farmer Brown's Boy reached over quickly and picked him up. Finding himself a captive, Bluffer stopped struggling. In a moment such a change came over him. His neck was no longer flat. It had resumed its proper shape. He knew that it was no longer any use to pretend and so he was himself once more—a perfectly harmless member of the snake family, whose chief joy in life was a toad. He was Bluffer the Adder, the Hog-nosed Snake, sometimes called the Blow Adder and the Blow Snake.

"Live and let live," said Farmer Brown's Boy, and gently put Bluffer on the ground. Slowly Bluffer glided away. Instead of being dangerous, he was in reality one of the most timid of his family. All that hissing and striking and flattening of his head and neck had been because of fear. You will find it that way all through life. Fear often makes people appear very much worse than they really are.

Higher Than the Woolworth Tower

If all the bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound sold in 1925 could be place end to end, they would make a column as high as the Woolworth Building. And there would be enough left over to extend from Lynn, Massachusetts to Cleveland, Ohio.

In every little village as in every thriving city among the rosie there are enthusiastic women who are glad to tell others how much Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped them.

WESTERLY

LIQUOR LAW VIOLATORS GIVE NOTICE OF APPEALS

(Special to the Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., July 2.— Judge Oliver H. Williams held regular session of third district court on Friday morning at 9 o'clock in the district court rooms on Union street, when one new writ was entered when jury trial claimed. Cases heard included:

State vs. Daniel E. Sullivan, 15 High street, Pawtucket, R. I. Sullivan was charged with the operating on May 29th of a motorcycle on the Nooseneck Hill road without first procuring a license from the Rhode Island state board of public roads. The defendant appeared in court in a state guard uniform. The state police reported him as picked up at 2:15 p. m., he having turned and gone in the opposite direction when he saw the state trooper. The accused said that he was going back to Baltimore where he was employed in a hospital. Judge Williams remarked that it did not look well for a man in uniform to be accused of the violation of the law. The state trooper told the court that up to June 16th the accused had not applied for a license. On his plea of guilty, Judge Williams sentenced him to pay a fine of $25 and costs.

State vs. Louis O. Littleton of Fall River, Mass. The accused was claimed to have operated an automobile on Broad street, Ashaway greater than 45 miles per hour. In pleading guilty, Mr. Littleton said that he had been operating an automobile for 12 years practically every state in the Union for a total of more than 50,000 miles and had never been caught speeding. He said that without knowing the exact location of the "speed trap" he could not swear as to what his speed was. Solicitor Ferguson said that the timed distance was from the intersection of the Bradford road with the state cement highway to a distance 1,600 feet to the south on the state cement road. Judge Williams found him guilty and sentenced him to pay a fine of $40 and costs.

State vs. George C. Harris. The accused was said to have operated an automobile on Canal street June 17th at a rate of speed greater than reasonable and proper. Solicitor Ferguson stated to the court that a truck was struck and a boy injured slightly, that he was taken to a doctor's office the accident happening opposite Armogan's about 4:30 p. m. The defendant said that he had operated automobiles for five years and that he was coming from Stillmanville and the truck struck by him was going in that direction and that there were many people on the highway at the time. Being found guilty he was sentenced to pay a fine of $50 and costs.

State vs. James Salemano. Liquors and vessels seized in a raid on June 16th, there being no appearance for the same were adjudged forfeited to the state and a warrant was directed to issue for the destruction of liquors and vessels.

State vs. Thomas DiPaolo. Solicitor Ferguson asked Attorney Dunn who represented the defendant if he would agree that if Rhode Island State Police Inspector Kessel were to testify that the liquors contained more than one half of one per cent of alcohol by volume it would be agreed.

Attorney Paterson for Mr. Kessel stated that on June 16th, accompanied by constable Alexander Mitchell, he visited the DiPaolo place, 35 Canal street and found 24 bottles of ale, 2 pint bottles of Green River whiskey, two labelled, one pint of gin, one quart of gin, one quart of whiskey and one quart bottle partly full of whiskey. Examined by Attorney Dunn, Officer Kessel stated that the premises were visited at 7 p. m. the day was fair and that the place was like a variety store with tobacco and candy and at the rear of the one story building was a table with chairs and a round table.

Chief of Police Brown testified that the liquors turned over to him by Officer Kessel were taken to State Examiner Potter at the Turks Head building in Providence on last Monday.

Attorney Dunn claimed that the state had not shown that the liquors were used for beverage purposes while Solicitor Ferguson claimed that from their name they were fit for beverage purposes which would not have been the case if the denatured wood alcohol suggested by Mr. Dunn. Judge Williams found the defendant guilty on a second offense the first hearing when liquors were taken from the automobile of the respondent some time ago and sentenced him to pay a fine of $500 and costs. On application Dimmick Dimitrio became surety on the sum of $500 for the accused's appearance in the September term of Washington county superior court.

State vs. Lorenzo Liotta of the Liotta Coffee House. Mr. Liotta, pleading his own case, said to the court, "I want a grand jury hearing." Judge Williams told him that he was doubtful if it would but that the petit jury would hear his case if he was convicted in the district court and an appeal taken. "Anything you say," replied Mr. Liotta, to which Judge Williams responded, "I am not advising you."

After some delay and further talk Mr. Liotta proceeded with the trial of his case.

Police Patrolman Michael Curtin testified that a complaint by Constable James Monroe he had visited the premises of the Liotta Coffee House, 67 Pleasant street. Searching the store in front and the living room in found 25 bottles of beer in the ice box on ice, one gallon jug of gin, one gallon jug of whiskey and one gallon jug partly filled with wine. He turned these liquors over to Chief Brown.

Chief Brown testified that he took the liquors to Inspector Penner in Providence last Monday and presented the chemist's report to court. To all of this Liotta said that he had nothing to say. Judge Williams found him guilty and sentenced him to pay a fine of $40 and costs.

July 1. Robert W. Perkins of Norwich as ancillary receiver of the Shore Line Electric railway, to Stanton S. Thompson, two tracts of land in the former right of way of the abandoned electric road, the first a certain tract on the west side of the Watch Hill road, Mastuxet estate; the second, a certain tract on the west side of the Watch Hill road, for 270 feet with a depth of 11 feet, near former "Turnout No. 2," near Mastuxet brook.

JEWETT CITY, July 2—Mrs. Christina Knight, 91, widow of Ezra Briggs, died at her home in Voluntown Friday, death resulting from the infirmities of old age. Finn's tonight. Anita Stewart and Bert Lytell in Never the Twain Shall Meet. Added attraction 1925 July 4th parade reel.—adv.

Just one year ago today Jewett City celebrated its grandest and greatest day. Enthusiasm and interest, comparable with that evidenced in the great 4th of July celebration of 1925, has never been seen here before nor since. The grand float parade at 3 p. m., was a wonderful display. It included municipal, civic, manufacturing, trade and personal features, all formed into one magnificent pageant, that served to delight the eye and excite the wonder of close to 10,000 spectators who thronged the line of march.

There were 44 floats in line, and from the financial standpoint it was conservatively estimated that to build them and mount them on auto trucks ready for the parade cost not a penny less than $5,000. One alone was completed at the price of $400 with plenty a little above or close to $100.

The last four meetings initiated over 100. Members included in this last class was the newly elected mayor of New Britain and other city officials. He also told of the wonderful work being done by the order, especially in presenting flags to the different towns throughout the state.

The state secretary gave an interesting talk about the work being done by the junior order. In South and North Carolina towards their orphans home they have purchased 300 acres in selected location and are building some up to date and beautiful homes for the children of the order in the south. EAGLES

The state convention of the Fraternal Order of Eagles was held in the city of Stamford Sunday and Monday, June 27th and 28th.

While the business of the state was to be transacted Monday, to encourage the delegates to arrive early and become better acquainted with one another the officers of Stamford aerie arranged a competition of ritual work amongst the degree teams of the subordinate aeries throughout the state.

Sunday afternoon these various teams competed for prizes, Naugatuck aerie taking first, Waterbury second, and Winsted, third. In addition to winning first prize the Naugatuck degree team was given the honor of conferring the degree on sixty-five candidates for Stamford on Sunday evening. Charles E. Guenther, grand worthy president, addressed this meeting.

When the delegates arrived at the convention hall Monday morning they found Mayor J. E. Keating awaiting them who welcomed them in behalf of the people of Stamford and presented State President Foley the key of his city at the same time saying that he hoped that the officers and delegates of the state aerie would enjoy the hospitality that was to be extended to them during their convention that they would be ever ready to return to Stamford for another convention in the near future.

The morning session was devoted to the regular routine of business to be followed by discussion of ways and means in handling the old age pension problem in which the Fraternal Order of Eagles is so deeply interested throughout the country.

Judge O'Donnell of Kansas City, Mo., gave a very interesting talk on old age pension and how it became a reality in the several states of the Union which at the present time have old age pension laws on their statute books. Among the states mentioned by Judge O'Donnell were Pennsylvania, Wisconsin, Nevada and Alaska territory.

James Tevlin, a past worthy president of New London aerie, now connected with the organization department, in his talk to the members recalled to their memories that the Fraternal Order of Eagles being founded on the principles of American manhood that it was the duty of every Eagle to show his patriotic spirit this week when the entire nation was celebrating the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence. Recess was taken and delegates were invited to a banquet by the officers and members of Stamford aerie.

In the afternoon the principal business to be transacted was the nomination and election of officers for the ensuing year. What should be of interest to Norwich Eagles especially was the election of one of the most faithful workers of Norwich aerie to the office of state treasurer for the third consecutive term, namely W. R. Hastedt, who is also past worthy president of Norwich aerie.

Another delegate from the eastern part of the state to be elected to office was John E. McGarry of Putnam aerie who was elected a trustee.

The officers elected were installed by James E. Tevlin.

The selection of the city for the convention to be held in 1927 was postponed until the first quarterly meeting of the state aerie.

On account of Independence day being celebrated Monday the regular meeting of Norwich aerie will be held Tuesday evening.

PAPERS IN DR. LENA-SHALLER CASE, NEW LONDON, WERE SERVED ON FRIDAY

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 3—Deputy Sheriff Manuel J. Martin this afternoon served papers on Dr. Hugh F. Lena in an action brought by Leopold Schaler against the physician and surgeon, the suit being to recover $13,000 and accrued interest for $2,000 for alleged violation of the physician's agreement to sell his interest in the Harris building State street business and residential block. The papers of the attachment were also filed with City Clerk Julia D. Moran. The suit is returnable before the next term of the superior court.

The instrument recites that on or about June 10 last, the plaintiff agreed to purchase and the trustees of the Harris building agreed to the proposed sale, as evidenced of a bond filed by Schaller with the clerk of the superior court, of the Lena interest. On or about June 29 last, and within the time limit for said agreement for the purchase by the plaintiff of the said premises, said plaintiff sold and assigned all the right, title and interest he had in and to said agreement to purchase said property, to said defendant for $13,000. Subsequently said defendant purchased said premises from said trustees of the Harris building for $15,-000. Schaller was formerly proprietor of Lena's Realty company, having an office in the Harris building, and he was forced from occupancy of the building by its owners.

Beatrice Lee, with a record in the police court was fined $50 this morning for keeping a place which was reported to be and which in fact was a house of ill fame. Beatrice had a companion with her, a girl who said she came from Hartford yesterday and who had "picked up" a couple of sailors and taken them to the Lee home. The girl sported the name of Jacqueline Boyd, a name the police declared she found in a novel that was supposed to be a love story and attached to herself. Her companions were very much disappointed when the police raided the Lee house. The sailors are white and they are attached to the U. S. ship Neale. They got into the Lee house about midnight and were followed soon after by the police. Beatrice could not pay her fine so she went to jail. Jacqueline was ordered to get out of town without any delay. A colored friend was at the station with an auto to take her to the state capital as soon as she was released. The sailors were turned over to their ships with a warning that if they came into court again charged with being frequenters of a disreputable house that they would get their meals at the county jail for a while.

James Dalton and Carl Ericsson, coast guard sailors, partially loaded with liquor, took it into their heads that they would make use of an auto they found parked in front of the Capitol theatre. Officer Murphy found them in the car and questioned them, but they could not convince him that they were in the car lawfully so he arrested them. Their only explanation of their conduct was that they had been drinking intoxicating liquor. They were fined $5 each and paid.

William Miller, claiming to be a painter—a house painter, not a nose decorator—was fined $5 for intoxication. He claimed he came here looking for work, but said he could not find employment. He is at the jail now where there is work to be done that a painter would ordinarily be hired to do.

Benjamin Vanderkeft, a sailor broke friendship with Mary Lee with whom he has been rooming on Hill street during the three years just passed and then according to Mary he struck her, charging that she was on too intimate terms with "white trash." Mary was very antagonistic to Benjamin last night when he was taken into custody on her complaint, but she had changed her attitude when Benjamin was arraigned in court and she was inclined not to give testimony that would convict him. Under the circumstances the court decided to continue the case till next December to put the parties concerned on their good behavior.

Tony Mugovero, while operating an automobile ran down a youth on Williams street who was riding a bicycle. Mugovero then disappeared and thus rendered himself amenable to the motor vehicle law which provides that no driver concerned in an accident shall escape responsibility. The youth is now in the hospital and will not be able to appear in court for a fortnight. So the case was continued till the 15th.

Peter Jardino, the proprietor of a little store on Golden street is alleged to have sold booze to a couple of agents of the police who were sent there to buy. Jardino has been in court before and has denied that he sold the intoxicants as alleged. He then declared that he had witnesses to prove that he was not in the store at the time it is claimed the sale was made, but was at Ocean Beach. The state was not prepared with witnesses to go on with the case today as it was continued till tomorrow morning.

John Gentile is to come to court next Wednesday to answer to a complaint against him for a breach of the peace in conduct that was offensive at Ocean Beach. That case was put over this morning because of the absence of witnesses and Gentile was held in a bond.

James T. Matthews, charged with a violation of the parking ordinance will also be called on to show that he did not violate the city's law. He was to have been in court today, but failed to be there.

Paul Lindquist, patrol boat, 134, state pier; Mrs. Louis Bronstein, 208 Montauk avenue; Mrs. Lena Siegal and son; Edward, 132 Barber street, Hartford; Mrs. Evelyn Brown, 61 Vauxhall street; Miss Virginia Battell, Niantic; Mrs. John LaVigne, Montville, and Joseph Guinan, Niantic, patients at Lawrence hospital, were discharged today.

William H. Redden and others have sold a building lot on Colman street to Clyde B. Getchell.

The funeral of Mrs. Caroline M. Huxford, widow of Capt. James B. Huxford, was held this afternoon at 4 o'clock at 48 Shapley street, the services being conducted by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First Church of Christ. The body was forwarded to Edgartown, Mass., where the burial was to take place.

SONS OF DANIEL C. WETMORE ARE CONTESTING HIS WILL

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 3—A hearing took place in the probate court this afternoon for the admission of the will of Daniel C. Wetmore, late of 9 Park avenue, Ocean Beach, and a former city sheriff. The will, which was filed a few days following the death of Mr. Wetmore two weeks ago, bequeaths all of his property to his third wife, Emma Wetmore, giving to his widow the life use of his realty and the privilege to sell the principal from time to time, as she deems proper. The will is being contested by the testator's two sons, Herbert and Ralph Wetmore, both of this city. At the end of the examination of numerous witnesses, Judge Arthur B. Calkins reserved decision.

COURT HAD 180 CASES TO TRY DURING PAST WEEK

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 3—The police court of New London did a record business the present week for with the conclusion of tomorrow's session of the court, approximately 150 cases will have been disposed of in a single week and as a result of the great number of cases and the heavy fines imposed in the cases where violation of the liquor law and conducting a house of ill fame was charged, the city treasury has been greatly enriched. Up to tonight there had been 130 cases presented before the court since last Saturday morning and tomorow there will be at least 12 other cases to be tried. Some of these cases, however, are continued cases. The continued cases are those of Alphonzo Onofrio, 542 Washington street, New Haven; George Wrigh, 183 Putnam street, New Haven; Edward Miller, 635 Washington street, New Haven; and James Ferry, 248 Columbus avenue, New Haven, charged with the theft of an automobile. The quartette of youths were arrested the 25th inst. by Patrolman John Sullivan following their stealing an automobile owned by Samuel Friedman, Colchester. When the gang was presented in court the following day their cases were continued until Saturday morning. Another continued case is that of James T. Mathews, 439 Montauk avenue, who was ordered into court the 30th inst. by Traffic Officer Frank Linehan charged with violation of the traffic laws. Mathews failed to appear, so Acting Prosecuting Attorney Perry J. Hollandersky issued a warrant for his arrest. Still another case is that of Alvin Mellow, a sailor aboard the United States Coast Guard destroyer Cassin. He was arrested last night when he was taken from a Chinese restaurant intoxicated. At his request his case was continued until Saturday morning.

Fred Draper, Fern Crest, Eastern Point, Groton, and E. L. Burman, 126 Riverview avenue, will be presented before Judge Victor Prince on charges of violation of the traffic law. The former was ordered into court by Traffic Officer Clyde Murphy this morning for parking his automobile overtime on State street. Burman parked his automobile on restricted area on Pearl street and was ordered into court by Patrolman David Nagle. Another case, one of intoxication, will be presented in James Hayden, a stranger, who was arrested this evening at the Union station by Sergeant Martin Kane, special agent of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad police.

POLICE EXPECT HEAVY LIQUOR LAW VIOLATIONS

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 3—With Fourth of July approaching and with sailors from the United States Coast Guard paid off yesterday and sailors from the submarine base to be paid off tomorrow, it is anticipated that the New London police will be kept busy over the holiday. Already coast guard sailors started to celebrate this evening and two sailors were arrested on Huntington street by Patrolmen Patrick Sheehan and Frank Philopena charged with intoxication. The police also received a complaint from Mrs. Joseph Silva, 145 Green street that a sailor, one of three, was on Green street about 7:30 o'clock discharging a revolver. Officers made a search for the gun toter, but were not successful in locating him.

An automobile driven by Cleopas Cook, colored, of 15 Stony Hill, in passing through John street this evening collided with an automobile that was parked alongside the curb, the latter car being damaged. ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

Pat O'Malley, husband and father of three interesting children, recently gave his views on the attitude of husband and wife toward the home. O'Malley's ideas were brought forth by the role he appears in "Watch Your Wife," Universal-Jewel, coming to the Broadway theatre commencing Sunday. O'Malley is co-starring with Virginia Valli.

"The woman," says Pat, "makes of home something spiritual. She fills it with high ideals, and makes of it a bulwark against the worries and troubles of the outside world. To most men home is merely a shelter—a place to protect him from the rains, the wind and the cold.

"Watch Your Wife," is a domestic comedy drama containing a new idea. It is filled with rich humor, and is somewhat of a satire on the modern divorce problem. "Watch Your Wife," is beautifully staged, two striking scenes being those in a restaurant and in a roof garden.

Among the players are Nat Carr in a most congenial role; Helen Lee Worthing, as the rented wife; Al Conti, Argyle Bruce, and Nora Hayden.

Great interest centers around the attraction at the Broadway theatre Sunday when Jack Dempsey and Estelle Taylor (Mr. and Mrs. Jack Dempsey), will make their bow as costars in the new Encore picture, "Manhattan Madness." The production is a novelty comedy drama introducing the heavyweight champion as a young westerner, on his first trip to New York, who becomes involved in a weird plot when he leaves the placid surroundings of his ranch and starts in to play the gallant, eager and ready to leap in and fight when a fair maiden is in distress.

A new Kinogram closes the bill.

Bread Theater

Shore Leave, the First National attraction which comes to the Breed theater Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, is the comedy hit of Richard Barthelmess' career.

The story was adapted from the David Belasco success by Hubert Osborne, in which Frances Starr appeared several seasons ago. Barthelmess plays the role created on the stage by James Rennie of the tough gob so successfully wooed by the little New England dressmaker.

The picture, which was adapted by John S. Robertson, is an amusing comedy of the navy. Many of the scenes were taken with the cooperation of the United States navy board of the Arkansas at Hampton Roads.

The story tells of Bliss Smith, who, on a visit to shore, meets Connie Martin, the dressmaker in a fishing village. Connie immediately falls in love with the "gob" and, plans to trap the unwary sailor whose intentions are far from being serious. For Connie has been born with a love of the sea, inherited from her father, who was a sea captain.

When the gob mentions a passing ambition to be the captain of a freighter, Connie sets about salvaging her father's ship, which has foundered in a river in India. Bilge, the gob, returns after a long cruise to find Connie and her ship waiting. But to her sorrow she finds that the sailor not only never has given her a thought but doesn't recognize her when he sees her.

The working out of this unusual romance is played with rare comedy by Barthelmess and his leading woman, Dorothy Mackaill. In fact, Barthelmess is said to register one of the comedy hits of the year.

This showing will include the following: The Bethlehem scenes connected with the birth of Christ; the visit of the Magi; the flight into Egypt and the return to Judea; Jesus with the doctors in the temple and other events in the boyhood of Jesus; John the Baptist; choosing of the disciples; the marriage in Galilee, the raising of the widow's son, the healing of the man sick of the palsy, the raising of Lazarus and Jesus walking on the water.

These pictures are based on the gospel story of the master and much careful attention was given to the selection of the personalities taking part in the production. The photography is attractive and the scenes true to the time and place of the wonderlife of the Nazarene. The music on this occasion will be furnished by Miss Marcia Zabriskie, pianist, and E. C. Zabriskie, baritone, soloist.

Both men and women are cordially invited to this service and boys and girls 14 and over will be admitted.

MODERN WOODMEN OF AMERICA.

Addressed to All who are interested in saving money!
TAKE the question of coal. When a great industry, such as the Ford Motor Co. or a railroad buy coal, they don't order so many tons of such-and-such a size. They buy so many units of heat. They are interested in heat, not coal. Most coal produces heat, but different coal produces different quantities of heat.
Take building materials; doors for instance. There is a greater difference in doors than there is in coal. Many doors are not built right and warp or twist. Or perhaps they are not made of properly seasoned wood. Then they shrink or swell. Some doors take a coat of paint well and look beautiful when finished. Other doors never will look right.
Our policy is to study and consider carefully all of these details before we offer a product for sale.
Often our prices may seem high, but they are prices that save you money. Because always—since 1837—when we sell lumber or coal to produce a certain result, you can absolutely count on that result, or we stand ready to make good.

BUYING FEATURED MARKET

NEW YORK, July 2.—(AP)—Undeterred by the usual pre-holiday realizing and readjustment of speculative accounts, the stock market continued to forge ahead today. Trading was featured by another spirited buying movement in U. S. Steel which stretched forward into new high ground for all time at 144 1-2 and the sustained strength of other representative industrials and rail shares.

Under the cover of these advances, however, various lines of stocks were unloaded by professionals for the three day recess, although a more important market factor was the tendency of short interests to cover their commitments for the same period.

The extreme gain of more than 2 points in Steel common was based on revised estimates that second quarter earnings would exceed those of the first three months and that the unfilled tonnage statement, due next week, would make a favorable showing. Some selling was occasioned by the statement of George F. Baker, a director, discrediting reports that the stock would soon be split up and placed on a $4 or $5 annual dividend basis, but the closing price of 143 7-8 still left a gain of 1 5-8 points for the day.

Independent steels followed the upturn in the leader of this group, with strength influenced by much the same favorable outstanding strength were shown by Republic, Inland and Union Alloy issues, which advanced 1 to 2 points.

Motor and chemical shares also gave good exhibitions of group strength. General Motors at one time repeated its 1926 high price of 149 1-4 although it heavily three quarters of a point higher at 147 1-2. Additional buying was stimulated by the announcement of the company's expansion plans. Hudson, Nash, Packard and Chrysler were bid up in aggressive fashion.

Apparently in anticipation of favorable capital changes, Allied Chemical moved up about 4 points and other independent strong spots were Texas Gulf Sulphur, which reached a new high mark for the year, American Tobacco, Consolidated Gas, Brooklyn Union Gas, Western Union and Cast Iron Pipe, in which the advances ranged from 1 to 3 points.

Renewed accumulation of the Erie railroad issues was predicted on the belief that the company's income position would be more secure under the revised nickel plate merger plan which the Van Sweringens are preparing to place before the interstate commerce commission. Directors of the Erie are understood to have approved the new program. Chesapeake and Ohio was moderately higher and Union Pacific established a new top price for the year, but other rails made little headway.

A break of $1.50 to $3 a bale in cotton prices following the publication of the government crop report, featured the commodity markets. Reductions took place before the close, prices ranging from 13 to 23 points net lower. Wheat prices were sharply lower.

Pronounced weakness of French and Belgian francs, which collapsed to new low records for all time at 3.49 and 2.60 1-2 cents, respectively, confirmed the foreign exchange market. Growing distrust in the financial stabilization plans of these governments accounted for the heavy selling of the currencies. Demand sterling eased to 4.86.

Call money ruled at 4 1-2 per cent all day, while time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, July 2.—(AP)—The bond market today eased off into its three day holiday strikingly dull and inactive.

Rather brisk trading in United States government issues was the sole feature of the session and even their activity was marked by no material change in prices. The widest variance was in the first 4 1-4s which rose 5-32 of a point. Up to yesterday a principal amount of $50,000 in any of the government securities was exempt from the federal surtax, but today the amount was reduced to $5,000 except for the liberty 3 1-2s. This loss of exemption is reported to have resulted in some selling, but offerings were well absorbed and the day closed without a definite showing of either strength or weakness. A return of cheaper money was held partly accountable for the support of the government issues.

There was fair buying in the foreign list. Hungarian municipal 7 1-2s going to a new high at 94 1-2. Rheinelbe Union 7s were in demand and advanced fractionally as did Saxon Public Works 7s. Belgian issues were rather freely bought, the 6 1-2s advancing seven eighths while the others remained stationary. Norway 5 1-2s sold in fair quantity at the year's highest and Austrian 7s went up fractionally. French 7s and Italian 7s were under pressure and sold slighly off.

Brooklyn Union Gas 5 1-2s spurted up to 153, a new high, under the impetus of heavy buying.

Activity of several rail issues which followed the stock market gave a speculative tinge to the day's trading. Notable among these were St. Louis-San Francisco Income 6s, which set a new high at 94. They tapered off later, however, for a net decline of one eighth for the day.

Averages for the day showed a very slight gain for secondary rails with equal losses for the first grade rails, utilities and industrials.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, July 2.—(AP)—Wheat slipped downward in price today owing a good deal to rains over the spring crop belt and to enlarged offerings of winter wheat southwest. The wheat market closed easy, 1-2 to 1 1-3c net lower, with corn at 1-8 decline to 1-4c advance, oats a shade to 3-4c up, and provisions varying from 10c drop to 30c gain.

The market effects of the rainfall in the northwest was tempered by talk which was current that moisture had come too late throughout much of the territory and that the amount as a rule had been insufficient.

Showers and higher temperatures in parts of the corn belt made the corn market easy. Adverse crop reports strengthened oats.

Prospects of a light movement of hogs to market next week incited provisions to average higher.

LITTLE GIRL KILLED AT COVENTRY BY ACCIDENTAL DISCHARGE OF SHOT GUN

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, July 3.—Alice, the 3 years old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Terlecki of 55 Hudson street, Hartford, was instantly killed at the home of her grandmother, Mrs. Sabina Terlecki on the back road from the Hartford Highway to Babcock Hill in the town of Coventry about 1:30 o'clock this afternoon when the charge of a shot-gun discharged by her playmate Freddy Twardy, aged 4, tore through her breast. The child's mother was occupied caring for a three days old baby and the children were playing in the rear room of the house. Suddenly there came the roar of a shot. Rushing into the room, Mrs. Terlecki came upon the appaling tragedy. The Twardy boy, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Twardy, relatives who reside three houses north on the road was standing terror-stricken in the middle of the room. Lying on the floor a few feet away was the little girl. Death was instantaneous and she lay in the pool of blood. The shot, a number 12 gauge, had been fired from a single barrel shot-gun and had torn a hole in the child's breast and pierced the right shoulder.

The parents asserted that the fire-arm had not been loaded previously and in their opinion the boy had found the cartridge in a drawer and had loaded the gun. Dr. Fred M. Smith of this city was called and he in turn notified Medical Examiner Dr. W. L. Higgins of South Coventry. After viewing the body permission was given for its removal.

As she grieved over the loss of the little girl the mother was under surveillance of friends for fear that her sorrow and weakness from recent childbirth would result seriously.

Besides her parents the deceased child leaves three sisters, Violet, aged 5, Isabelle aged 2, and the new baby. Mr. and Mrs. Terlecki formerly resided in the house which was the scene of the shooting and is now occupied by Mr. Terlecki's mother. She had come there for a few weeks' vacation.

LUTHERANS TO OBSERVE SESQUI OF FAMOUS DEEDS

In Lutheran pulpits throughout the entire land, special observance will be made Sunday, July 4th, of the Sesqui-Centennial of the signing of the Declaration of Independence, and the sesqui-centennial of active Lutheran participation in the stirring events of Revolutionary war days.

At the morning services at the First Evangelical Lutheran church on Franklin street, where Rev. H. Hunsinger is pastor, the congregation will recognize the patriotic loyalty of their own Lutheran forbears at a time when traitors grow on every bush and none knew whom to trust."

Special attention will be directed to the dramatic occasion at Emmanuel Lutheran church, Woodstock, Virginia, in January, 1776, when the pastor, Rev. John Peter Gabriel Muhlenberg, preached his farewell sermon to his little flock. At the close of the sermon the pastor descended from his pulpit, flung aside his ministerial robe in the now historic gesture and strode to the church yard in the full uniform of an officer of the Continental army, recruiting nearly 300 volunteers for service under him.

The records indicate that Muhlenberg's farewell sermon closed with the statement in the language of holy Writ, "there is a time for all things—a time to preach and a time to pray —but those times have passed." And then, in a voice that echoed like a trumphet blast through the church, he declared that "there is a time to fight, and that time has now come."

Before the close of the war Pastor Muhlenberg rose to the rank of major-general under George Washington, commander-in-chief of the [illegible] miles, and his activity and success in many campaigns was so striking as to be remarked by every historian writing of the period.

Gen. Peter Muhlenberg's brother, Rev. Frederick A. Muhlenberg, also laid aside the cloth to answer the call of patriotism. An understanding of law and the principles of democracy, learned through active participation in the sessions of the Lutheran Ministerium of Pennsylvania, served him in good stead when he was made a member of the Continental Congress, and later as president of the Pennsylvania legislature, president of the state convention ratifying the Federal Constitution, and as first speaker of the national house of representatives.

The father of these two illustrious brothers was the Rev. Henry Melchior Muhlenberg, pastor, missionary, and "patriarch of the Lutheran church in the American Colonies," who is credited with having laid the foundations of the present strength and greatness of the demonstration in the United States and Canada.

An investigation by the Iowa State College having shown that 10 cents a mile pays all the cost of operation of the average car, it has unofficially estimated that some $65,000,000 was spent for the operation of motor vehicles in Connecticut last year.

Gasoline tax returns, considered together with the average motor efficiency, have indicated that motor vehicles were driven about 650,000,000 miles in this state last year. The Iowa institution's research has brought out that to operate the average car one mile there is an expense of 1.61 cents for gasoline, .31 of a cent for oil, .93 of a cent for tires, 1.24 cents for maintenance, 3.16 cents for depreciation, 1.24 cents for interest, .31 of a cent for insurance, .31 of a cent for garage costs, and .59 of a cent for license charges.

The costs vary according to the size of different cars. One car was found, a light four cylinder touring model, which can be operated for 7.05 cents a mile, which is the minimum shown by this survey. The maximum cost is 13.15 cents a mile, for the operation of a big four-cylinder touring car, which takes nearly 2 cents worth of gas for every mile traveled and depreciates at the rate of 4 cents a mile. Thirty per cent. of the operation cost for a composite car is for depreciation. No car was found which took less than a cent's worth of gas for each mile traveled.

GIVEN SURPRISE FOR HER 89TH BIRTHDAY

The Ladies' Aid society of the Franklin church has had for several years the use of an unoccupied school house in the town to which they have given the name of The Community house, and where they have met fortnightly to work for missions or for parish requirements. One of their oldest and most active workers is Mrs. O. L. Johnson, called by all who know her "Aunt Kate." On Thursday, July 1st, her 89th birthday, a surprise party was given in her honor at the Poritpaug school house. With very few exceptions, the entire membership of the combined societies, the Ladies' Aid and the Missionary society, were there to greet and congratulate her. For more than 20 years Mrs. Johnson has had as helpers on the work committee, of which she has been president, Mrs. Fred Race and Mrs. Herman Gager, and these ladies were the hostesses for the day. At one o'clock a delicious and bountiful lunch was served to about 40 guests. After lunch the party assembled on the lawn, and following the example of the children on Memorial day, Mrs. Sadie Ladd, Mrs. Fred Bliss and others gave recitations and ice cream and cake were served. Mrs. Johnson was the recipient of several beautiful gifts. The weather was perfect and the day was one to be long remembered.

JUDGE HEARD EVIDENCE ON BREACH OF CONTRACT

Hearing of evidence in the $400 damage suit brought by John Szzilewski of Crystal avenue, against Felix Sawicky and others, all of New London was concluded in the court of common pleas at New London Friday before Judge Charles B. Waller, who took the papers and reserved decision.

The plaintiff claims that he performed certain work in building for the defendant between Feb. 6 and 27, last, under a written contract and payment for his work has not been made. Sawicky alleges that prior to making the written contract, Szzilewski agreed to do certain building work under a verbal agreement, and counterclaims $2,000 damages as the result of Szzilewski's failure to complete his work under the terms of the verbal contract. Attorney Perry J. Hollandersky is counsel for Szzilewski and Attorneys Harry C. Brogan and Clayton B. Smith represented Sawicky.

E. S. HARKNESS RECEIVES DEGREE IN LONDON

Word has been received of the award to Edward S. Harkness of New York and Waterford by St. Andrews university, London, of the honorary degree of doctor laws. Mr. Harkness, a Yale graduate in the class of 1897, accompanied by Mrs. Harkness, left several weeks ago for a tour of Europe.

He has been one of the most liberal contributors to Yale university and with his mother, the late Mrs. Stephen V. Harkness, has donated millions of dollars to charitable and educational institutions in this country. Block Island fishermen report that mackerel and cod catches have been remarkably good this year, but only two swordfish have been brought to the island so far this year. Last year the fishermen cleared over $1,000 per share on their swordfish catches up to June 15.

MASSAPEAG HOUSE 125 YEARS OLD IS TOTAL LOSS BY FIRE FRIDAY

Fire which started at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon completely destroyed the two and a half story frame house owned by a Mr. Sodenberg and located near the railroad station at Massapeag.

The house, which is of the old colonial type, stood on the so-called Capt. Jerome Williams farm and at one time was owned by the late United States Senator Frank B. Brandegee of New London. The house is alleged to be about 125 years old and was only recently purchased by Mr. Sodenberg.

Due to the quick work of neighbors the furniture was saved. The replacement value of the building is said to be well over $10,000.

INDICATIONS ARE THAT BIG FIGHT WILL BE IN JERSEY

NEW YORK, July 2.—(AP)—The suggestion that Tex Rickard, despite the state athletic commission's opposition had not altogether given up hope of promoting the Dempsey-Tunney heavyweight title match at the Yankee stadium was advanced today in well-informed boxing circles at the same time that reports were circulated claiming the fight for Jersey and Chicago.

Just what procedure would enable Rickard to stage the fight in New York, in the face of its being officially outlawed by the commission was not disclosed but it was suggested a resignation of one of the members of the commission would pave the way.

James A. Farley, chairman of the boxing board, and George Brower formed the combination which turned down the Dempsey-Tunney bout here but neither has given any indication of relinquishing his position.

Rickard is apparently pulling strings to enable him to shift the match either to Chicago or Jersey City if his final efforts at promotion here are balked.

The Newark Evening News printed a story that the champion, through his trainer, Gus Wilson, was negotiating for quarters at Bernardsville, near Newark. Freddy Welsh, former lightweight champion, now proprietor of a health resort at Summit, N. J., was quoted as saying Dempsey soon would visit his place which also is near Berndsville, for a week's stay.

POETRY

The Oriole

One of the ones that Midas touched,
Who failed to touch us all,
Was that confiding prodigal,
The blissful oriole.

So drunk, he disavows it
With bandinage divine;
So dazzling, we mistake him
For an alighting mine.

A pleader, a dissembler,
An epicure, a thief—
Betimes an oratorio,
An ecstasy in chief;

The Jesuit of orchards,
He cheats as he enchants
Of an entire attar
For his decamping wants.

The splendor of a Burmah,
The meteor of birds,
Departing like a pageant
Of ballads and of bards.

I never thought that Jason sought
For any golden fleece;
But then I am a rural man,
With thoughts that make for peace.

But if there were a Jason,
Tradition suffer me
Behold this lost emolument
Upon the apple-tree.

—Emily Dickinson.

South-Wind

Soft-throated South, breathing of summer's ease
(Sweet breath, whereof the violet's life is made!)
Through lips moist-warm, as thou hadst lately stayed
'Mong rosebuds, wooing to the cheeks of these
Both blushes faint and maidenly—thy breeze,
Still doth thy honeyed blowing bring a shade
Of sad foreboding. In thy hand is laid
The power to build or blight the fruit of trees,
The deep, cool grass, and field of thick-combed grain.
Even so my Love my bring me joy or woe,
Both treasureless, but either counted gain,
Since given by her. For pain and pleasure flow
Like tides upon us from the self-same sea;
Tears are the gems of joy and misery.

—George Parsons Lathrop.

Corkscrew: Well, you'll have to admit I've gotten you out of many a tight place.—Good Hardware.

With a comfortable home at New Bremen, N. Y., wired for electric lights, Mr. and Mrs. J. Henry Sollman, who observed their 62d wedding anniversary recently, still use the old-fashioned kerosene lamps such as they used in the first year of their marriage. They dislike to quit using them.

The real merits, if any, of voodooism as practiced in Africa may be brought to light by a piece of research in progress at the University of Witwatersrand, says a Science Service note from Johannesburg. Professor J. M. Watt, of the department of pharmacology, has undertaken to find out the actual medicinal value of all the herbs, plants and other charms used in the semi-barbaric religious rites of the natives. He has sent out several thousand questionnaires to all parts of the continent, asking all who are interested to send in material. The response has exceeded every expectation, and specimens have poured in from all over Africa, over a thousand coming from North Rhodesia alone. It will probably take years to go over the vast amount of material accumulated, but it is hoped that when results of the investigation are eventually published some drugs may be found whose virtues are at present unknown to the medical profession.

NORWAY PROHIBITION NOT REAL PROHIBITION

Prohibition in Norway is not real prohibition. Only the sale of beverages containing more than 40 per cent of alcohol is prohibited. All sorts of wine and ale are to be had and the Norwegian people drink just as much now as they drank before the regulation law was introduced.

Anti-prohibitionists maintain that the consumption of alcohol is even more than before. Official statistics just published show that the importation of wines in 1925 increased 50 per cent over 1924 and nearly 150 per cent as compared with 1923. Thus far in 1926 several ships have unloaded their cargoes from the wine-producing countries. One ship unloaded 10,000,000 quarts of port-wine. Norway's population, including women and small children, is about 2,750,000. Norway is the greatest consumer of port wine in Europe in proportion to the number of inhabitants.

"But," the report concluded, "if the necessary measures are faced courageously and unfalteringly without deviation from the programme of hard economy and rigid self-denial, the period of readjustment will be reasonably short, and the return to economic prosperity, real and not chimerical, will become a fact."

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., July 4—(AP)—W. K. Hale, so-called "King of the Osage Hills" tonight faced a federal charge of murder for the death of one of the victims of the "wholesale murder plot" which, it is charged, was perpetrated against wealthy Osage Indians in Oklahoma.

The federal government obtained custody of Hale and John Ramsey an alleged accomplice, late last night when Federal Judge Cotteral at Guthrie granted a writ of habeas corpus which effected the transfer of the men from state jurisdiction. Hale and Ramsey have been held in the Osage county jail at Pawhuska, awaiting trial in state district court for the killing of W. E. Smith, a rancher.

They were removed to the Oklahoma county jail here, from where they will be taken to Guthrie Tuesday for arraignment on a federal warrant charging them with the murder of Henry Roan, Osage Indian. It was announced by O. R. Luhring, assistant United States attorney general.

ANOTHER ATTEMPT TO RAISE S-51 TUESDAY

NEW LONDON, Conn., July 4—(AP)—The navy's salvage fleet today was under orders to stand by for another attempt to raise the S-51.

Calm seas, a vital factor in the attempt, were forecast for tomorrow by officers in charge of the work. The submarine S-50, sister ship of the ocean submersible and S-3 were ready to take up their positions beside the Falcon, salvage ship, at midnight.

Other vessels were standing by the spot where the S-51 went down last September 26 when she was rammed by the Savannah line steamer of Rome.

Officers said it was likely the attempt to raise the S-51 would not be made until Tuesday morning, but if all was favorable and weather conditions were right the attempt might be made sooner.

"THE ETERNAL FLAME" LIGHTED AT PARIS

PARIS, July 4—(AP)—The most touching Independence day event in Paris was the lighting of "The Eternal Flame" at the tomb of the Unknown Soldier at the Arc de Triomphe by a delegation of the American Legion at six o'clock this evening. The American colony generally observed the day fittingly by special church services in the American Cathedral church, where Bishop Brent spoke and at the American church in the Due de Berri, where Pastor Cochran delivered the sermon.

Sons of the American Revolution and a color guard from the Paris post of the American Legion took part in a ceremony at the tomb of the Lafayette in Picpus cemetery this morning and American volunteers and a contingent from the French army decorated the Alan Seeger monument in the Place Des Etas Unis, dedicated to the American volunteers, who gave their lives before the United States entered the war.

Tomorrow will be observed as a holiday by all American institutions in Paris. A feature of the day will be the usual reception by the American ambassador at the new embassy from four to six o'clock in the afternoon.

GREENWICH, July 4—(AP)—Frank McGrath of Gregory street, Stamford, was fatally hurt on Put's hill early today in the overturning of an automobile, and Henry Howard, the driver, and Donald Studley, both of Stamford, were taken to the Greenwich hospital. Howard's condition was regarded as serious tonight.

The three young men were coming in an easterly direction on the hill with a number of cars in line moving in the opposite direction. A car in the line tried to cut in on the others and in doing so, headed for the car Howard was driving. He turned to the right to avoid it, his car went over the shoulder of the road and turned over. All three were pinned under it. McGrath died soon after reaching the hospital.

Aguilera appealed for executive clemency after the supreme court upheld the sentence of death by the Santiago court, but the secretary of justice last night ordered the transfer of the executioner, Francisco Paula Romero, a long term convict, and the garrote to Santiago. Although the date of the execution has not been set, Paula Romero and the garrote were placed on the Santiago train late last night under guard.

NEW YORK TIMES EDITOR ADDRESSED HARTFORD CROWD

HARTFORD, July 4.—(AP)—An earnest plea for "an all-men unity under the common thatch of all the lines of latitude and longitude," was the Independence day message of Dr. John Huston Finley, editor of the New York Times, delivered by him before more than 4,000 men, women and children this afternoon in Bushnell park.

America's part in the establishment of such a unity was clearly designated by Dr. Finley, who said: "Our destiny is interwoven with the need of the rest of the world, just as we are mineralogically interdependent. Our salvation is entangled with that of all flesh, not merely as the samaritan on the road to Jericho, but as a brother to all humanity. We of America may be pioneers in this new age as Thomas Hooker was in his."

Nationalistic and internationalistic thinking were hailed as great but insufficient advances by Dr. Finley. "The spiritual goal," he said, "is thinking planetarily."

"Thinking planetarily," the speaker observed, "is something more than merely thinking, internationally for this latter thought has to do with the relations of governments. Thinking planetarily delives more deeply than that in its contemplation of the relationship of individual human beings held together by understanding and sympathy on this whirling sphere out in the immensity of the universe."

Jeremiah Smith who recently refused $100,000 for his successful repairing of broken affairs of Hungary, was hailed by the speaker as one of America's real frontiersmen, one of America's "planetary precursors."

GIRL MOTHER AND MAN HELD ON SERIOUS CHARGE

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, July 4.—Miss Agnes Pytka, 17, of Wilsonville, town of Thompson, is held at the Day Kimball hospital and Raymond Wetherbee, 25, of North Grosvenordale is held without bail, while officers investigate to determine their connection with the finding, Saturday afternoon, of the body of a new born and well formed baby girl in one of the coves in the river near Wilsonville. There was a rope tied around the baby's waist and a heavy stone was attached.

The body was recovered only after long and persistent search and information which Miss Pytka is believed to have given to officers. Miss Pytka was in a critical condition when she was brought to the hospital after having given birth to the child and the exposure which she suffered incident to disposal of the body. Wetherbee denied all knowledge of the affair. It was stated Sunday that Miss Pytka's condition is improved and that her recovery is expected.

N. Y. SOCIALISTS NAME PANKIN FOR GOVENOR

NEW YORK, July 4.—(AP) — Judge Jacob Pankin, of the municipal court, was unanimously named today by the preliminary socialist convention as its choice for the party's candidate for governor.

He will be recommended to the official convention of the party in October, Louis Waldman, former socialist assemblyman, who nominated Judge Panken, praised him as "a hard fighter who will do credit to the name of socialism as governor."

The Rev. Norman Thomas declined to run for governor again. In a letter read to the convention he wrote: "I don't want to be a perpetual candidate."

After a heated debate, the delegates defeated a proposed tentative platform plank favoring the sale of light wines and beer under government supervision, but attacking the "efforts of the old political parties to magnify the issue as overshadowing all others."

The executive committee was then instructed to draft a new tentative plank denouncing both major parties for "corruption and hypocrisy" regarding the prohibition issue.

RAIN CUTS VOTE ON MEXICAN ELECTION

MEXICO CITY, July 4.—(AP)—Mexicans went to the polls today to elect senators and congressmen.

This election is unique, for regardless of who wins the result cannot affect the existing Calles government.

The Mexican government has been made careful preparations to insure fair as well as bloodless elections.

The dominant parties contesting are the labor, socialist and agrarian.

The socialists are socialists only by name. They support the government and have no socialist programme. The agrarians and laborites, too, favor the government.

Another important group is the "coalition of regional parties" under which name all independents are combined. The independents also are friendly toward the Calles regime.

Rain cut down the number of voters. Strict regulations permitted only police and soldiers to carry weapons. As a further precaution General Serrano, governor of the federal district, had ordered all drinking places closed from early Saturday night until Monday morning.

FREEDOM'S NATAL DAY

Make the day right glorious that saw the nation born;
Born to a life supernal, like the bird of storied fame—
From the ashes of dead empires springs her altar's sacred flame.

How bright the skies above her; how fair her broad domains!
How rich the warm life-current that courses through her veins!
Her young brow fronts the nations with a promise half divine,
From the frozen hills of Norway to the land of oil and wine;
And Teuton, Celt and Saxon, cowed down with toil and care,
With longing eyes look westward, and bless her unaware.

From her mountains and her cities, and her ships upon her seas,
And wreathe her shrine with garlands, and crown her brow with bay;
'Tis the nation's celebration—'tis Freedom's natal day!

—Elizabeth M. Griswold.

BRONZE MEMORIAL TO SIGNERS OF DECLARATION

PHILADELPHIA, July 4.—(AP)—A bronze memorial to seven signers of the Declaration of Independence whose graves are in the burial ground of old Christ church, was unveiled today by six young women, descendants of the signers. This was one of the features of Philadelphia's observation of Independence day.

After the unveiling the annual outdoor ceremony was held in Independence square, on the spot where 150 years ago the great document was promulgated. Especially notable were the exercises this year because of the presence of the Marquis De Dampierre, grand nephew of the Marquis De Lafayette, friend and aide of General Washington.

Meeting in Old Christ church in the morning, prominent officials and clergymen of all denominations, with members of the Society of Descendents of the Signers of the Declaration of Independence, the Colonial Dames and other patriotic organizations, participated in the unveiling and religious ceremony.

Tribute to the man who guided the destinies of the nation in its infant days was paid by Carl M. Kneass, president of the descendents society.

The policy of France during the American revolution was defended by Marquis De Dampierre, who spoke at Independence square. The marquis recalled the idealism of the second half of the eighteenth ontury "shared by Frenchmen and Englishmen alike" and deplored "a spirit of cynicism that would make of French intervention in the American war for independence, a mere gesture of political hate against England."

A wreath was placed on the Liberty Bell by Mayor Kendrick and the Declaration of Independence read by a high school boy during the ceremony.

The seven signers of the declaration buried at Christ church were Robert Morris, James Wilson, Benjamin Franklin, Benjamin Rush, Francis Hopkinton, George Ross and Joseph Hewes.

FIVE HURT WHEN AUTO WAS FORCED FROM ROAD

NEW BRITAIN, July 4—(AP)—Five persons are in the hospital here and one man is under arrest as a result of auto mobile accidents today. Angelo Monaco, his wife, Jennie, and their two daughters, Margaret, 2 and Gloria 3 months, of Brooklyn, N. Y., were taken to the New Britain General hospital following a crash after being forced off the road by a "hit and run" driver. The other victim, Joseph Lavalle, 28, of New Britain is in the same institution in a serious condition.

Lavalle was driving a truck in this city when he was struck head-on by a touring car driven by John Fitz-Harris of New Britain. The latter was arrested on a charge of driving a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor. The victim was in a semi-conscious condition.

The Monaco family were driving in Berlin when their machine was forced from the road and crashed into a telephone pole. Mrs. Monaco received a fractured collarbone and severe body bruises. DEFENDS ACCEPTANCE OF FEES BY CONGRESSMEN

Congressman Upshaw Says it is Ridiculous to Expect "Overworked and Under-Paid" Congressmen and Senators To Invest Time and Vitality Without Compensation—Says Senator Reed is Last Man Who Should Point Finger of Indictment Against Any Other Member of Congress—Claims Latter Received $25,000 Fee For Defending a Notorious Criminal Official.

ATLANTA, Ga., July 4. —(AP)—Answering charges brought out in the investigation by the senate campaign funds committee of "honorariums" paid prominent prohibition speakers, Congressman William D. Upshaw, of the Fifth Georgia district last night defended the right of "overworked and under-paid" congressmen and senators to receive money for "outside work."

A portion of the statement issued by the congressman referred to Senator James A. Reed, chairman of the campaign funds committee.

"As for Senator Reed, he is the last man who should point the finger on indictment against any other member of congress," Upshaw declared.

"I have a telegram from Boston declaring that he received a fee of $25,000 since he has been a United States senator for defending a notorious criminal whose office had become a rendezvous of thieves and a nest of crime and who was barred from practice of law because of his shocking crime.

Mr. Upshaw said he would name the "notorious criminal official when the time is ripe."

"When I have finished my business here, which involves the burying of a couple of opponents, I shall be ready to meet Senator Reed on any stump in the United States and battle the question to a finish," the congressman declared. The congressman is a candidate for re-election from his district.

"It is simply ridiculous," Mr. Upshaw said, "to expect a congressman to go out virtually every Sunday and have been going for the past seven years, and invest time and vitality absolutely free. Doctors don't do it. If it be answered by our critics that a congressman's salary does cover all his activities I remind you that congress does not pay its members to work on Sunday for the good of humanity and congress therefore has absolutely nothing to do with what I do with my time on the Sabbath.

WILL RESUME CAMPAIGN FUND INQUIRY TOMORROW

WASHINGTON, July 4—(AP)—Congress has gone home for a five months vacation, but it has left several committees behind to carry on investigations which many members expect, to furnish some sensational sensations.

The senate campaign funds committee is to resume its inquiry into the Pennsylvania primary next Tuesday and later will go into Illinois and probably several other western states for investigators of primary contests.

Also on Tuesday the special committee named yesterday by the senate to inquire into the alien property custodian's office will hold its preliminary meeting and map out a program.

A third senate inquisitorial body is a sub-committee of the foreign relations committee, which is to look into charges made by Senator King, democrat, Utah, that American citizens in Cuba have been deprived of their property and that Ambassador Crowder at Havana has failed to protect American interests.

The Utah senator not only initiated the inquiries which Senator Borah is to conduct, but also is a member of the campaign funds committee and is acting chairman of that body in the absence of Senator Reed, democrat, Missouri, who has returned to Kansas City.

Another inquiry sponsored by the senate is to be conducted this summer and fall by the shipping board and the department of commerce to report on a policy that will assure an adequate and permanent, merchant marine. Chairman Jones, of the commerce committee, was the author of the resolution directing the investigation.

Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, sought in the closing hours of the senate to get action on his resolution to direct the federal trade commission to investigate and report on combinations in business. This measure remains before the interstate commerce committee.

The house authorized no vacation-time inquiries by its committees, but its managers appointed to prosecute the impeachment trial of Federal Judge George W. English, of the Eastern Illinois district, will hold sessions from time to time to prepare for the trial before the senate.

BETTING SHEDS CLOSED AT CHICAGO TRACK

CHICAGO, July 4.—(AP)—Officials at the new Washington Park race track and State's Attorney Crowe tonight marshalled their forces for a renewal of the clash in which the Cook county prosecutor drew first blood yesterday when aides carried out his threat and stopped betting on inaugural day races.

Although forced to concede defeat in the opening skirmish, after they thought the state's attorney was blocked by a court order, Illinois Jockey club officials announced tonight that Monday's programme would be run as scheduled. The feature of the card is the $10,000 Washington Park handicap, with Captain Hal a leading entry.

The state's attorney's office responded with an assurance that Crowe's assistants and special deputies would be at the course prepared to renew their activity if attempts be made to reopen the mutuel windows.

"We were restrained from interfering with racing but we do not believe we were restrained from interfering with what we believed was a wide open system of race track gambling," Assistant State's Attorney Gorman declared in announcing his intended revisit to the track.

President of the Illinois Jockey club declared it was "up to the court to see that its order is respected" and asserted Crowe's forces were in contempt of court when, in the face of an order enjoining them from interference, they raided the track, arrested five mutuel clerks, and closed the betting sheds.

The injunction, obtained by court officers shortly before the start of the first race ever run at the plant was granted pending a hearing on the matter on its merits next Tuesday.

The plea for which officials sought court protection consisted in the issuance of "special receipts" for "subscription to the purse fund of the Illinois Jockey club," patrons cashing the cardboards after the race. The petitioners maintain the system is not in violation of the Illinois anti-race track betting statues.

BOSTON, July 4.—(AP)—Observance of the sesquicentennial of American Independence today was of especial significance to two Massachusetts communities—Salem and Weymouth. An appropriate program today culminated in a huge bonfire on historic Gallow's Hill at midnight. The programe will continue throughout the week.

MRS. A. W. G. NYE AND SON DIE AFTER AUTO ACCIDENT

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, July 4—Raymond A. Nye, 20 died almost instantly and his mother, Mrs. Jessie M. Nye, of 80 Windham street, this city, died four hours later, as the result of an automobile accident about 4:10 o'clock Saturday afternoon, in front of the Alice Dry home, 343 Jackson street, some two hundred feet south of the intersection of Ash street.

Raymond Nye was driving a 1925 oldsmobile touring car, seated in the front seat with him was his mother. In the rear seat were his father, Arthur W. G. Nye, a foreman of the state highway department, and his sister, Grace Edna Nye, 18. The car was headed north on Jackson street and was apparently going at a moderate rate of speed. Coming in the same direction was a five-ton GMC truck owned by the Willard H. Smith Fruit company, 29 North street, and operated by Ward Rosebrooks, 29 and married, of 151 Pleasant street. As the truck was passing the touring car the right front end of the bumper of the truck struck the rear left fender of the smaller machine, then swerved into the lighter car, pushing it from the left side and ramming it with terrific force into a maple tree at the edge of the gutter on the right side of the road. The truck partly mounted the wreck and toppled over on its left side. It is estimated that the first blow in the collision came when the machines were about 25 feet from the tree. Mr. Nye and his daughter were thrown from the back seat and clear of the wreck. They escaped with a severe shaking-up. Raymond Nye and his mother were pinned in the wreckage and both were horribly mangled. The elder Nye with assistance extricated Mrs. Nye and she was rushed to St. Joseph's hospital where she expired about 8:20 o'clock. The boy lay in a tangle of metal from which he was released with considerable difficulty. He died a few minutes later as he lay in his father's arms. Ward Rosebrooks, the truck driver had crawled to safety through the open windshield of the truck. Raymond Nye had been a close friend and pal and it added his sorrow to the grief of the two surviving members of the family.

At police headquarters later, Rosebrooks was notified that he was under a technical charge of manslaughter and a bond of $5,000 was furnished by his employer. Coroner Arthur G. Bill of Danielson who had been summoned gave notice that he would hold his inquest Thursday morning at 9 o'clock standard time. Besides the parties interested and Traffic Officers Grant Sombria and Arthur Hurley who investigated the accident two others are to be heard. Gunnar Nelson, 20, of 18 Carey street who was almost an eyewitness to the accident and Howard Keegan, 17, who will give his estimate of the speed of the truck prior to the collision. Rosebrooks was on his way to the Brown ice houses for a load of ice. He said he believed that the right front wheel of the truck came in contact with some obstruction in the road or that the steering apparatus had become suddenly defective as he was about to pass the touring car. Other than a damaged right front fender and bent frame the truck was but little damaged.

On orders from Coroner Bill, Medical Examiner Dr. Louis I. Mason of this city performed autopsies Sunday morning. In the death of Raymond A. Nye he gave as the primary cause of death a rupture of the heart and liver, fracture of the skull and sternum or chestbone. Secondary causes are the severance of the right arm and fracture of the left wrist.

The report on the death of Mrs. Nye establishes fractures of the skull and left hip as the primary cause and secondary fracture of both arms, numerous lacerations and contusions.

Raymond A. Nye, a graduate of Windham high school last year was born February 17, 1906 in South Coventry the son of Arthur G. W. and Jessie M. Nye Nye.

Mrs Nye was born May 17, 1856, in Leonum the daughter of Tyler G. and Emma Palmer Nye. Mrs Nye and daughter Grace Edna Nye are the only survivors

The tabernacle was filled Friday evening with pleased listeners, at an excellent musicale carried out under the direction of Chorister Russell E. Waitt, who had assembled a large chorus of men and women, filling the platform. Miss Marjorie Stephens, of Vernon, accompanied on the piano with much skill. Mrs. Robert A. T. Bitgood, of New London gave pleasing readings, and her talented daughter Roberta charmed the audience with her violin, evincing her possession of splendid tone quality and technique. In the earlier part, where the congregation joined with the chorus singing hymns, Clayton Richard, of Vernon, assisted with trumpet. The program opened with "The Angels' Serenade" sung by the chorus. Miss Stephens accompanying on the piano and Miss Bitgood playing the violin obligato. Then followed readings by Mrs. Bitgood: "The House by the Side of the Road" by Sam Walter Foss, and, as encore, "Soap;" violin solo with encore. Miss Bitgood; "Forget-me-Not," chorus; duet, Revs. Russell Waitt and J. Homer Sluiz. The last named was formerly second tenor in the famous McWaters' quartette, which sang its way round the world; violin solo and encore. Miss Roberta Bitgood. The chorus sang with much effect "Beauteous Night" from "Tales of Hoffman." accompanied by Misses Stephens and Bitgood. An amusing reading, "He is Never Late," was given by Mrs. Bitgood, her encore being "The Friendship Door." A fine number was then given by the chorus, in which the women's voices gave one piece, while the men chimed in harmoniously with "America." Chorus and congregation joined in the inspiring hymn, "America the Beautiful."

Mr. Waitt, the singers, and the players upon instruments won many compliments for the successful program presented in such an excellent manner.

Chorister Waitt was congratulated on securing such fine talent, and in drilling the singers at comparatively short notice. He makes a very efficient leader.

The occupants of the different tables have occasionally come into the dining hall with fancy costumes. Table 1, with R. C. Stimson leader, were clad as wild roses. F. W. Gray's table came in to breakfast Saturday having red caps and sashes and with horns. Mr. Gray beating the drum.

Mr and Mrs. Albert Dansereau, of Hopedale, Mass., and Mrs. Chas. Clark, of Eastford were callers at "Hate-to-quit-it," the cottage at 32 Wesley circle, occupied by Mrs. John Miller.

The lively crowd at the tables aid their digestion by vigorous singing of more or less impromptu songs, both humorous and serious. "America," for example emphasizes their approval of the various dishes before them, by being supplied with words like these. "We like these good baked beans," or "nice ice cream," or "fine roast beef," or "strawberries."

When going in an easterly direction their sedan was struck by a New York automobile driven by Abraham S. Handleman, the latter swerving off and striking a third auto driven by James H. Fitzpatrick of Providence. The Pawcatuck auto was thrown into a telephone pole and its top ripped off. Mr. and Mrs. Riding were taken into the home of Harry H. Thompson, 197 Potter avenue, and attended by Dr. M. J. O'Neil, before being taken to the hospital. Capt. Francis J. Carney of Providence, precinct, No. 5, placed Handleman under arrest, charged with reckless driving. At a special hearing Saturday night, Handleman was released in $2,000 bail for trial July 16.

Sunday morning, an automobile driven down High street, on the new cement state road dashed off the road and on to a stone wall near the Westerly athletic field. Motorcycle Patrolman George L. Madison was sent to investigate, the report having been that no one was injured and minor damages sustained by the automobile.

Automobile traffic Saturday in West Broad street, Pawcatuck and through Dixon Square and Broad St., Westerly, was the heaviest this year. Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown stopped autos on the radiator caps of which appeared flag clusters and warned the operators that the use of the same in that position was tabooed by state island authorities. The operators pulled to the curb line generally, and removed the flags. Two patrolmen assisted in the movement of autos on Broad street. Registrations showed license plates from New Jersey, Pennsylvania, New York and many other states to the south and the west, mostly bound to beach resorts.

Interest is being shown in the establishment of a fund for the support of a free bed in the Westerly hospital, in a recent letter from the secretary of the Ocean View Union, W. C. T. U. or Haversham, R. I., addressed to Dr J. Gordon Anderson, surgeon at the Westerly hospital, and an early contributor to the fund, it was stated that the members thought when the hospital was started provision was made for such beds. The Union voted a contribution of fifty dollars for this purpose. The letter was turned over by Dr. Anderson to Treasurer John O. Mills of the hospital.

The beaches of Westerly, Watch Hill, Pleasant View, Atlantic Beach and Weekapaug were all in readiness the past week end to receive summer visitors to hotels and cottage colonies. All that was needed for the finishing touch was pleasant weather. The beaches Saturday attracted many bathers, although the water reported cold. The bathing beach at Watch Hill was well patronized both morning and afternoon. In the morning the orchestra of the new Kenneth Ridge club played on the veranda of the private bath houses and will appear again this week.

In the first of the season's races for boats of the Herscloff one-design class, sailed in Little Narragansett Bay, the Alert, sailed and owned by Daniel F. Larkin, finished first. The Thistle of Robert Barrie, winner of last season's cup came in second and the Pixie, William Everdell, Jr., and Lewis Harder finished third.

Saturday and Sunday many automobiles visited the beaches at Pleasant View, Atlantic beach and Weekapaug for the day. Saturday afternoon intermittent fogs, caused the fog horn at Watch Hill point to be put in operation. Soon after 5 p. m. the fog rolled in heavy and in a short time the beach could not be seen from the highway and a short time later the highway became invisible from the beach. A change of wind during the night sent the fog out and Sunday morning there was clear sunlight.

State Trooper Arthur Whitmarsh of Groton barracks has given him a summons to appear on a speeding complaint. The farmhouse, with thirty-five acres of the Daniel Brown farm on the Westerly-Stonington highway was sold by Charles Richmond to John H. Murray, Jr., of Providence, the deed having been filed for record in the office of the Stonington town clerk Saturday afternoon. It is understood that John Finney, of Providence, former proprietor of the General Stanton Inn in Charleston, R. I., on the Boston post road, fourteen miles east of Westerly, has leased the premises and will operate the place. The place has already been repainted and the grounds about the inn greatly improved. It is understood that the Stanton Inn will not be opened during the present season.

BLACK COFFEE HOUSE RAID YIELDS STUFF LIKE GIN

(Special to the Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., July 4. — The Black Coffee house, Edward and Concetta Liotta proprietors, 65 Pleasant street, was again raided by Westerly police Sunday afternoon. Patrolmen Michael Curtin and Fred Ferraro visited the premises, armed with a search warrant sworn out by Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown. These premises were raided on the evening of June 18th, previous to the arrival of Christy Brothers' circus, which exhibited in Westerly on the following day. In the regular session of third district court last Friday when Edward Liotta was presented on a complain, charging possession of 25 bottles of beer found on ice in the icebox; one gallon jug of gin; one gallon jug of whiskey and one gallon jug, partly full of wine, seized in the pre-circus raid, Liotta told Judge Williams that he wanted a grand jury hearing. Conducting his own case, Liotta was found guilty and fined $100 and costs. He took an appeal to the September term of superior court for Washington county.

The officers arrived at the side door of the coffee house at 2:45 o'clock and finding the shades drawn, Officer Ferraro remained there while Officer Curtin went around to the front door. Unable to gain admission he kicked down the door, when three men left the premises, passing out of the front door. Going to the back room, Officer Curtin found two men seated at a table and two empty glasses in front of them, the contents of one smelling like gin. In the sink room he found Mrs. Concetta Liotta breaking bottles and a broken glass jug was in the sink from which he salvaged a half pint of stuff that looked and smelled like gin. Procuring an empty jug he poured the salvaged hooch into it and as he held the jug and the broken glass jug in one hand, while searching in a closet, Mrs. Liotta threw a half pint bottle and broke the jug with the salvaged liquor, exclaiming, "There! You have no evidence on me now!" Previous to this she had thrown a half pint bottle out the bedroom window, saying, "Look out for this, Christy." When Officer Curtin found two quart bottles in the sink which Mrs. Liotta had been filling with water he seized them. Just as she set the dog on him. The officer had to kick the animal to keep him off. Mrs. Liotta also kicked the officer on the right knee as he started for the bedroom.

Edward Liotta entered the house and after talking with his wife in Italian, said to the officers in English, "If I was here you would not have come in." The evidence, broken glass jugs, together with salvaged liquor said to be gin, was taken to the police station, to await the return of the search warrent at the third district court session Friday next.

He is a World War veteran, a thirty-second degree Mason, having joined during the war in Norwich and later transferred to Providence and is at the present time eminent commander of Narragansett commandery, No. 37, Knights Templar of Westerly.

GEO. E. KYLE, NORWICH HAD DEFECTIVE LIGHTS

(Special to the Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., July 4—At a special session of Third District court Sunday morning George E. Kyle, 25 Main street, Norwich, was charged with the operation of an automobile not equipped with proper lights. On his plea of guilty he was fined $10 and costs, which he paid.

Saturday night about 9 o'clock in Dixon Square, Westerly, Patrolman George H. Champlin stopped the auto driven by Kyle when one of the headlights was not working. The officer warned the driver to have the light fixed. About a half hour after the machine was stopped the report came that there had been a collision about a half mile west of the Haversham Inn, on the post road. Officer Champlin went to the place and found that one of the cars which had figured in the accident was the truck operated by Kyle. The other machine was operated by Corydon C. Wells of 112 High street, Westerly. Wells claimed that he was crowded off the road, Kyle asserted that the Ford touring car struck his truck.

Kyle was brought to the Westerly police station by Officer Robert Kessel. Kyle claimed that the headlight was working after he stopped in Dixon Square, but it went out at intervals, the reason being that the connection was broken by the jolts caused by the rough roads.

There were a number of men with Kyle in the truck who belonged to an orchestra, scheduled to furnish music for a dance in Quonochontaug. Kyle got an early start for Norwich Sunday morning after paying his fine.

Atwood of the Danielson Rod and Gun club, covered every section of the lake, examining the shores and getting a general line on the body of water as to its possibilities for feeding grounds and general adaptibility for stocking operations with certain kinds of fish. No statement was given out as to what the commissioner intends to do to make the lake better fishing water.

ALBERT WEBB, OF BROOKLYN INJURED BY FALL IN BARN

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, July 4—Albert Webb, one of Brooklyn's best known citizens, a former selectman of the town and a former representative in the legislature, was injured Saturday afternoon when he fell in the barn at his home in the Allen hill section of Brooklyn while engaged in getting in hay. Mr. Webb injured his side and his hand. On Sunday he was resting quite comfortably.

At his home in the Moosup Valley section of the town of Foster Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock funeral services for Oscar Dwight Jencks, 67, were conducted by Rev. A. O. Mowry of Oneco and burial was in the Jencks cemetery. Frank Fuller, James Turner, Arthur D. Johnson, John Griffiths were bearers. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Mr. Jencks was born in the house where he died and had always lived there. He is survived by his wife.

Troops of Boy Scouts, inspired by the anniversary of independence and happy in the thought that they were bound out for a wonderful holiday, left here Sunday afternoon under the command of Scoutmaster Sidney P. Marland to spend the night and all of today (Monday) in camp at Old Killingly pond. They made the journey to the pond by easy stages, stopping at intervals for rest and on their arrival started to erect tents and for such other work as was required to make everything snug and tight for the night. Today the boys have a program of sports to carry out, will go in bathing and otherwise enjoy themselves, returning before nightfall tonight. It is the first such outing that the newly organized troops have arranged.

There was a jam of traffic at Goodyear Saturday night when the annual community light before the Fourth display of fireworks was staged. Hundreds of cars jammed every highway and by-road within seeing distance of the field where the fireworks display was staged, and woe be to the driver who tried to move his machine from any place he might temporarily have been forced to place it. It was not that the policing was not efficient—it was because the roads were not numerous enough nor wide enough to hold all the cars that came from miles around to see a real fine show. It was a great display, Goodyear really did itself proud, and the great throng who came are appreciative that Goodyear does things proper and has an eye to having a real impressive observance of the eve of the Fourth.

Tuesday morning, officers and enlisted men of the Service battery will go away from Danielson for a period of 22 days. The battery will report to different officers and in sections and at different times at the armory. Under Camp Order No. 1-B some of the men will report to Capt. F. O. Armington at the armory Tuesday morning before 5:30. This group will take their morning meal before reporting and take lunch, as no meals will be served en route with the truck convoy at noon.

Another section of the battery will will report to Lieut. W. E. Bitgood at 10 a. m. armed and equipped for 22 days' field service. Today, at any time before noon, the men of this section can report at the armory and get any equipment ready for the tour of duty.

Cotton uniforms will be worn by the men, destined for their annual period of field service at Tobbyhanna, Pa.

It is within the bounds of safety to state this morning that the traffic of Saturday and Sunday through Danielson has never been surpassed in density. Motor vehicles were as numerous as to indicate they were selling two for a dime. There were thousands of them and an observer might have noted that at least 20 of the states of the union were represented by registrations on the machines. To the credit of the drivers held down by close observance of state and local police goes the credit of driving with real good judgment and conservativeness. This applies generally. There were the usual few fool operators who took chances and forced other drivers into bad predicaments, but up to late Sunday afternoon there had been only minor car crashes and not a serious accident in this immediate vicinity. That may be regarded as a great record for a triple holiday period and was largely due to the care of the average driver and the close supervision of police officers.

Wednesday of this week County Agent Frank L. Davis of Putnam, is to be at the Charles P. Breen place in Scotland at the noon hour and may be reached there by anyone interested in getting in touch with him about farm problems.

Intense patriotism and 100 per cent Americanism was displayed by vandals who smeared with oil or tore up over the week end roadside streamers announcing an event by St. James' parish that fundamentally was planned as a great get-together party to recognize the glory of the United States and the great privilege of living under the protection of its government.

Chief John McFarland had additional officers on duty Sunday night to see that proper decorum was observed and that violations of the regulations as to observing the Fourth were kept at a minimum. Chief McFarland Sunday expressed his appreciation of the manner in which restraint was observed in the use of explosives prior to 4 o'clock this (Monday) morning. The record made by the community was splendid. There will be liberty, but not license, for those who wish to celebrate today—and may everyone be happy and no one injured.

Oneco had special reason to be joyous on the Fourth—it was enjoying the convenience of electric lighting service for the first time in its history. Last fall the Danielson and Plainfield Gas and Electric company, a really efficient and progressive organization, began the job of building a connecting line from its service into Moosup out through the country that leads over Sterling hill and into Oneco. Cold weather interrupted the work, which was resumed in the spring and resulted in Oneco being able to press the button on the Fourth and have such lights as it never had before. It is hardly necessary to relate that Oneco is appreciative. Numbers of farm places along the route between Sterling and Oneco now have the opportunity to use electric service and the Cloud Digger will shine forth with even greater brilliance and erudition than ever in the past, under a halo of light such as Oneco has not heretofore known.

Foreman Frederick Shippee with a crew of workers was engaged Saturday in patching bad places in various streets of the borough. This was a bit of work being done by the town, and it was well done. Motorists will find many bad places in the street eliminated and they without doubt will allow the Bulletin to extend a vote of thanks in their behalf to Selectman J. A. Gilbert and the force that operates under his direction.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Comiskey and Miss Nellie Sullivan of Hartford are holiday guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Kennedy.

Dance this afternoon and tonight at Kum-Along-Inn, West Side—adv.

J. C. Witter was at Pascoag, Saturday afternoon, to act as starter at the horse races scheduled for the park over there.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Head and members of their family from Winsted are spending the holiday with Michael Head and family of Academy street.

Additional standard sidewalk flags were put in place in Main street at the week end and are a joy today to those who love a lavish display of national colors.

Today (Thursday) the post office will close at 10 a. m. for the day and the usual delivery services will be suspended, or greatly curtailed. The lobby will be open all day and mail will be despatched this evening.

At 12:15 this (Monday) morning a dance orchestra began to play in the pavilion at Alexander's lake and many were the dancers who found diversion there until 4 a. m.

Two Ohio youths who yelled an insulting remark at the occupant of a car they happened to be passing on the Wauregan road were about the most abashed youngsters one may hope to see when they were called to account for what they had said by the state officer that they happened, unknowingly to pick out for abuse. And they were from Cleveland, named after a founder who went forth from the neighboring town of Br

RIVERVIEW LOSES GAME TO NEWPORT BUT WINS FROM BRISTOL NEW DEPARTURE

Riverview split even in their week-end program losing a tight game to the Newport station team 3 to 2 at Riverview, Saturday afternoon and winning from the New Departure team at Bristol on Sunday 5 to 3.

Saturday's game was a pretty a game of baseball as one would care to see and was more or less of a pitching battle between Lefty Dugas, pitching his first game in a Riverview uniform, and Crawford the big right handed sailor. Each had two innings where successive hits meant runs. For five innings there was little difference in the pitching and it looked like an extra inning game. Riverview hit the ball freely and hard but not safely, as the eleven putouts by the outfielders show. Another curious fact is that every man on the Newport team was credited with at least one putout.

Dugas allowed but six hits one being a home run and another a triple which accounted for the scoring of the sailors. All the runs scored in the game were earned runs, coming on hits.

With one out in the sixth inning Dugas walked Pederson who stole second. Tague hit to Normandin and Pederson was run down between second and third, Liberty making the putout. With Tague on first Mulkey drove a triple to deep right center scoring Tague. Mulkey scored a minute later when Murray dropped a Texas leaguer over second. Pelton was an easy out. Newport's other run came in the eighth inning when with one out Pederson hit one to deep center and the ball became lost in the grass and the hitter circled the bases. Moore, playing center field went back for the ball and just as he turned to make the catch he tripped and he lost sight of the ball as it fell into the weeds.

Riverview's first run came in the sixth inning when with one down Burns was walked. Mills hit for two bases and Burns pulled up at third scoring when Hamel drove a long fly to left field. Liberty flied out to right leaving Mills stranded on the third sack. The other run came in the ninth inning. Liberty and Harrell the first two batters in this inning popped out to Murray. West was sent in to bat for Moore and drove one through second base for two bases. Joe Belair, making his third hit of the game, scored West with a short hit to right field. Belair was left on the bags when Lefty Dugas poled a long fly to Pederson in left field.

The Newport team had a nice outfield and many balls that were labeled for extra bases were hauled down by this fleet-footed combination. Joe Belair led the hitting for Riverview with three hits in four times up.

Sunday's Game

Sunday's game was a good game but was not as close as the Saturday contest, although Riverview was better satisfied with the result. Both teams scored in the opening frame and Riverview held the lead throughout the entire nine innings. Mondi Normandin opened the game with a single. Webb sacrificed but Thorp infielding the ball threw wild to right field and Normandin went all the way round and Webb held up at third. Mills was an infield out and Webb scored when Hamel drove out a long sacrifice fly.

Bristol tallied one in their half of the inning when West passed Scott the first man to face him. Christie doubled scoring Scott but the Bristol second sacker was left on the bag when the next three men were out in order.

In the eighth Riverview drove three runs across the plate on bunched hits. Webb the first man up was an easy out. Mills followed with a single and he in turn followed by Hamel with another single. Liberty scored Mills with the third single. Harrell doubled scoring Hamel but Liberty was held at third. Dugas pinch-hitting for Moore singled and Harrell scored. This ended the scoring for Riverview.

In their half of the eighth inning, Bristol made one run when Christie singled and went to third on Goodrich's single. A long fly to the outfield was caught and on the throw in Belair dropped the ball and Christie slid safely over the plate.

The final run of the game came in the ninth inning when Malcolm singled and was advanced by a pass on balls scoring from second on Scotts single. This ended the scoring as the next two men were easy outs.

CHAMPIONSHIP CROWN MANDELL $14,000 TO ANNEX

CHICAGO, July 4.—(AP)—The world's lightweight boxing crown which the veteran Rocky Kansas yesterday exchanged for $50,000 in a rain-swept ring at Comiskey park is in the hands of a boxer.

Sammy Mandell, clever, agile, a hard fighter, knows how to use his hands and thereby tops his class at the age of 21, but he is not a mauling fighter. There have been few knockouts among his numerous victories.

It wasn't punishment that took the championship from Kansas. For ten rounds Mandell wove about, showering the champion with gloves, chiefly stinging lefts to the face, and at the end Referee Phil Collins transferred to him on points the title which Kansas had acquired by winning from Jimmy Goodrich in Buffalo last winter.

Kansas took several stiff punches, but finished the fight unmarked. Probably the most damaging blow of the bout was a right, also in the second, which the veteran sent to Mandell's body to make him wince. The punch landed on the left rib the challenger had injured in a coast engagement a few weeks ago, and physicians indicated a probable fracture. There were no knockdowns.

Referee Collins gave Mandell eight rounds, Kansas the second and called the ninth even. His decision was announced promptly and was generally popular with the crowd.

Kansas and his manager, Dan Rogers, maintained the decision was unfair.

Winning the championship, it was found today, resulted in a personal cost of approximately $14,000 to Mandell and his manager, Eddie Kane. They posted the $50,000 Kansas received and after the park rental, the state tax and a benefit share to the Loyal Order of Moose were deducted their percentage left them that amount short of the guarantee.

Plans were announced today to have Mandell meet Billy Petrolle of Fargo N. D., at an early date, probably here. Promotor Jim Mullen, who managed yesterday's show, today set July 24 as a tentative date for a title bout here between Charlie (Phil) Rosenberg, bantamweight champion, and Bud Taylor of Terre Haute, Ind.

The lightweight champion went home to Rockford, Ill., for a royal welcome today. The object of Mandell's visit was his finanese, Miss Elizabeth Hemming. They agreed before the title contest to marry this week.

HAGEN DENIES STATEMENT OF ENGLISH NEWSPAPER

NEW YORK, July 4.—(AP)—Walter Hagen, American professional golf champion in a statement issued branded as false an interview appearing recently in the London Evening News quoting him as having said that British golfers needed pep and fight while the younger ones were "too goshdarned lazy."

Hagen asserted he had never enjoyed a golfing campaign, more than his recent visit to England, that he had made six trips there and looked forward to returning. The champion declared that the story in the London papers was garbled in sensational fashion and chided American editorial writers for failing to discern that "gosh darn" was not an expression used by Americans except on the stage. His statement in part follows:

"I arrived in Great Britain June 3 and played golf practically every day until the Aquitania sailed June 26. The only interview I had with newspaper correspondents was immediately following the championship, in the Majestic hotel, at St. Annes.

"I did not volunteer any information and merely answered questions which were asked me. The British writers have always given the Americans the finest sort of treatment.

"I was asked why the British players had not done better, and what effect I thought seven Americans finishing in the first ten in the British open would have on international golf?

"I replied that I thought that Americans saved more shots than the British players when within pitching distance of the cup and especially on the greens where the Americans were always giving the ball a rap for the hole hoping for a birdie.

"I said I thought American amateurs worked harder at their game than British amateurs and played more golf with professionals than the British, and that this helped to improve their game.

"In regard to seven Americans in the first ten I said: That this was an unfortunate outcome for international golf and that the British should by all means send 15 or 20 of their best professionals to America next year to compete in the American open championship."

GIARD BEATS SHAUTE IN PITCHING BATTLE

CLEVELAND, July 4.—(AP)—Giard had a trifle the better of a southpaw's pitching battle with Shaute today and St. Louis defeated Cleveland 2 to 1. Giard held Cleveland to five hits, the only run being scored in the first inning on a pass to Speaker and Burn's thirty fifth two base hit of the season. Shaute, a puzzle for five innings, weakend slightly in the sixth and eighth, allowed enough runs to win.

RACE DRIVER KILLED AS CAR CRASHES INTO RAIL

SALEM, N. H., July 4.—(AP)—Jack Foley, 25 year old automobile race driver, of Billerica, Mass., was killed on the Rockingham speedway today during elimination trails for tomorrow's 200 mile race when his machine, traveling 128 miles an hour, skidded on the upper turn, ripped away several feet of iron guard rail and rolled down the bowl, a crumpled mass of twisted metal. Foley was crushed in the wreckage.

A throng of 10,000 spectators, in which Foley's wife was included, saw the smash and began a rush for the infield before state troopers restored order. The accident was the first serious one in the history of the track, which opened last fall, and marred the last day of elimination trials for tomorrow's race.

Foley was on his fourth lap, running eight miles an hour above required average of 120 miles an hour to qualify, when his racer suddenly shot up the 45-degree board bank and struck the guard rail. The rail was all that prevented the crumpled machine from hurtling over the bank in a 70 foot drop to the ground outside.

Foley, apparently was crushed to death in his seat and then hurled free of the wreckage to roll down the turn into the infield. The wrecked car followed him down the bank.

Track officials were not sure of the cause of the accident, but it was believed the car threw a front wheel going into the turn.

WARRIORS WIN UPHILL GAME AT WAUREGAN

Coming from behind to score five runs in the eighth inning and send one pitcher from the mound the Warriors defeated the Wauregan Grays at Wauregan Sunday by the score of 12 to 6. The local club staged a fine uphill battle after getting off to a poor start.

Lefty Pavlak pitched good ball for the winners after the second inning. In these two innings the losers scored all of their runs before the local hurler had settled down. However, from the second inning on he was invincible, striking out 11 men and being nicked for 8 hits by the opposition.

Kampf, Marchand and Hamil led in the hitting for the local team while Dessert and Lambert featured at bat for the losers. The score:

OUR SESQUICENTENNIAL

We celebrate today because it is the anniversary of the Declaration of Independence, and as we count back we realize that it is 150 years since those who determined upon that famous step got together and put their signatures to the document.

That was a bold move but it was undertaken with confidence and courage. It was action into which our forefathers were forced. They had reached the point where further toleration of conditions were impossible and they were ready to make such sacrifices are necessary in order to obtain the freedom that was so much desired and to give this new country a chance.

This 150th anniversary of the nation comes at a time when some communities, like Salem, Mass., are celebrating their 300th anniversary. But think what the second 150 years have been in this country as marked by such communities as compared to the first 150!

Independence day has never passed without observation and there is not the slightest chance that it ever will. There has been somewhat of a change in the method but only in the interest of safety and sanity. The patriotism has never wavered among those who have worked for the replacement of danger and madness with safety and sanity.

As we look back over the 150 years we cannot fail to pay tribute to the wisdom which guided the course of the signers, the sacrifices which they made and the hardships which they faced. They builded better than they knew and while the country has undergone decidedly varied experiences since that time, periods of strife and others of glorious peace and progress they laid the foundation for what has come to be, in the 150 years, the nation to which the rest of the world looks for inspiration.

This of course is true on any anniversary but it comes impressively to the front as we come to the celebration of the sesquicentennial of the United States of America.

THE ADJOURNED CONGRESS

The first session of the 69th congress is at an end. It adjourned just a week following the date that had first been urged, and while there has been much legislation enacted there are several important matters which have been put over until the next session in December.

The outstanding feature of the session has been the revenue act with the reduction of taxation. The whole country has felt the effects of this and will continue to do so with the not improbable result that further action in this direction may be anticipated. The country has seen the government operating more nearly on the business basis that it demands and it has witnessed the economy in expenditures that has been decidedly fruitful. Foreign debts with few exceptions are now funded, adherence to the world court approved, legislation concerning aviation and public buildings has been provided, farm legislation that could be safely passed has received attention and numerous other bills worthy of adoption have been given exhaustive attention but because of the playing of politics by the politics by the opposition and the insurgents action has been prevented, or long drawn out.

In a list of matters put over is included the rivers and harbors bill, leasing of Muscle Shoals, coal legislation, action on the Lausanne treaty and the adoption of legislation to control radio broadcasting it having been impossible to get an agreement between the two houses after each had approved a measure.

This congress has spent seven months in doing what might have been accomplished in much less time had there not prevailed that horseplay and insurgent opposition which has gained nothing for those responsible but has meant dawdling and needless delay. There has been evidence of the willingness on the part of such an element to play with the democrats rather than join hands in constructive legislation, even as before the presidential election, and it has not been a help to the work of the congress.

STANDING BY THE PUBLIC

When the position is taken by Judge Downes of Wallingford that all convicted of driving automobiles while intoxicated will be given a jail sentence it means a recognition of the danger which exists because of such persons and the responsibility that rests upon the courts to penalize and stop it. No doubt the registrar of motor vehicles of Massachusetts would willingly cooperate with Judge Downes if he were holding court in the neighboring state, for that is the very thing he has been endeavoring to persuade the courts in that state to do in the interest of safety in the highway.

Judge Downes gives the impression that he has tried other methods of dealing with intoxicated drivers and that he has found that it doesn't work, that leniency is wrongly interpreted and that overlooking the situation which constituted a serious menace to others is a gross injustice.

It is not known whether Judge Downes is a wet or dry. It makes no difference for he indicates in the first place that he is a judge, that he hasn't forgotten the oath under which he took office and that he recognizes the duty which he owes to the public in dealing with those who endanger the rights and lives of others because of their condition.

Many of the intoxicated drivers undertake to drive because they feel there is nothing much to fear. They do not, of course, doubt their own competency, but whether they are fit or not they are going to do as they please under the belief that they can escape detection and even if caught can readily pay the fine. They see nothing in the leniency shown to discourage them. They risk their own necks and any others who may be on the highways and the conditions are certainly bad enough with sober persons driving. Whether Judge Downes alone can accomplish much in his declared policy is a question. It certainly would have its effect if all judges were of the same mind.

THE PRISCILLA VERDICT

A decision of no little importance in connection with sound transportation is that which has been handed down by the United States steamboat inspectors as the result of their investigation of the collision of the steamer Priscilla with the government dock and its grounding on Gull Island the last day of May in a fog.

It was brought out by the testimony that the steamer was proceeding with practically normal speed and it was impossible to explain why it was so far off its course even though there was a fog. In connection with the maintenance of from 13 to 15 knots an hour during a fog, or the same that would be done if there were no fog, it was testified by Captain Hamlen that it is common practice.

According to the inspectors this is a violation of the pilot rules for inland waters and is in excess of the moderate rate of speed that is called for. By reduced speed it is possible for a vessel to be stopped quicker or have its course changed the quicker in case danger looms up ahead. The Priscilla according to the finding was not being operated in accordance with the rules and a suspension of 15 days follows.

Had the Priscilla gone through without trouble that night no chance of calling attention to an infraction of the rules on that steamer or others would have been possible. As it is, the opportunity has been made the most of by the inspectors. Because others have done it, is no excuse for the continuance of the violation, and there is a lesson in the decision for the others quite as much as for Captain Hamlen. The inspectors give heed to the fact that there is the safety of the traveling public which must be given due consideration. Chance taking in the fog is decidedly perilous and unjustified.

CANADA MUST ELECT AGAIN

It was only last fall that Canada has an election, but at that time it failed to place any party in control, so that since then it has been operating as best it could under a coalition government with enough of a second party giving its support to the premier to keep the government going.

When Premier King got to the point where he could no longer command that support the jig was up and he threw down the reins through providing the governor general with the resignation of his cabinet. That done an effort was made to turn from the liberals to the conservatives and Prime Minister Meighen was asked to provide a cabinet which he did. Like his predecessor he was obliged to look to that small minority support, the progressives, for enough votes to carry on. Premier King had been able to command that aid for a number of months, but Premier Meighen was able to hold it in control for only a few days.

Failing to get a vote of confidence, it was the end of the Meighen cabinet and now Canada must get ready for another election as parliament has been dissolved. Whether Canada has seen the mistake of failing to place one party in the majority, and therefore encouraging just such a development as has taken place, can be determined by the outcome of the coming election. But even Canada should appreciate the desirability of so acting at the polls that it would not be required to hold an election every few months or every year, and yet unless one party has control that possibility is always before it where there are more than two parties.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Lamb fat makes excellent shortening for ginger snaps.

A pad of newspaper is a splendid polisher for windows and mirrors.

Shellac the worn grass rugs with a coat of orange shelac and make them like new.

Wring chamois out of soapy water without rinsing; when it dries it is soft and serviceable, instead of stiff.

Baked apples are more of a dessert if garnished with a sprinkling of cinnamon, brown sugar and nut meats.

Sew around the buttonhole on the sewing machine before embroidering and you will have a strong buttonhole for hard wear.

When finely chopped nuts are needed for cake, salads or sandwiches, run the nuts through the mincing machine.

The success of cooking cereal free from lumps is to first moisten it with cool or lukewarm water and then stir into actively boiling water.

An attractive way to serve lamb chops is to stand them around a large mound of mashed potatoes, with spring peas making a border around the whole.

The new vegetable brushes make the preparing of vegetables much less arduous since they have handles and protect the hands as well as being considerably more sanitary.

Sweeping linoleum with an ordinary broom is but scattering the dust. Slightly moisten a square of flannel, tie it over the broom and then sweep.

An effective way to clean cake tins and molds is to cover them with a paste make of whiting and water mixed to a smooth paste. Let the mixture dry and then remove with a chamois or soft cloth.

WHEN WASHING WALLS

The secret of success in washing walls is to be found in the way the soap and water is applied. To remove all of the dirt without streaking the walls use as little water as possible. Soft water is to be preferred and always it should be lukewarm and renewed often enough to be kept comparatively clean.

Wring part of the moisture out of a soft cloth or a sponge which has been dipped in the clear water. Rub the cloth lightly with bar soap, using a mild soap for the most delicate finishes and a stronger soap for very dirty kitchen walls where greases and dust are firmly embedded in the surface. Apply the soap to the wall, rubbing lightly with a circular motion and in space about as large as the arm can conveniently reach. Rinse each portion immediately with the cloth wrung out of clear warm water. Work quickly and with the windows open, if possible, so that the surface will dry immediately after rinsing without an extra rubbing with a dry cloth.

FLOUR TEMPERATURE

When flour is being used in pastry or cakes it should be very cold, but if being used for bread it is best to warm it a little so the yeast will work quickly.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Healthy babies do not require a two-o'clock-in-the-morning feeding. Start at three or four weeks to deprive him of this feeding.

A poor habit that keeps our sallow, round-shouldered friends from realizing their full possibilities for personal beauty is unwise diet, which does not provide enough roughage to prevent constipation. The slouching posture with flabby abdominal walls helps along this unhealthy condition.

There are, quite a few beauty blemishes that may be removed by purely external methods. Heavy eyebrows may be thinned by plucking, superfluous hair may be bleached or removed, various foot troubles like callouses, corns and bunions, do not need internal treatment. Tan, and freckles may be bleached, hands may be kept dainty by a regular manicuring.

On coming indoors after being out in the hot sun, the skin should be cleansed with cold cream. Apply generously, leave on a few minutes, then wipe off with a clean soft cloth, or better still with a pad of clean, absorbment cotton that has been squeezed out in cold water. The cotton should be discarded after being used once. If a cloth is used it should be cut up into small squares and either washed or thrown away after using. It is unhygienic as well as undainty to use a soiled cold cream cloth over and over again.

PROTECT YOUR SKIN

Get a fat jar of cold-cream, a cream rich with vegetable oil which nourishes and at the same time cleanses your skin, and a fine, pore-closing, protective cream which you must have if you would guard your precious skin-beauty against drying winds! And there are one or two special creams which are water-proof and which will allow you to swim as long as you like in the hot sun. These creams will not come off in the water and will protect your skin while you are baking in the sun.

Powder is protective as well as beautifying, and heavier types are best to use for the gallop or the motor ride in the daytime, while the lighter, more sheerier types run such a gamut of individual appeal that it is of interest to know about them separately.

REAL COURTESY

If you make an unexpected call and feel that the hostess had planned to go out, don't spoil her evening by making inquiries. Just stay a few minutes and then say you must go as you only stopped in on your way to a friend in the neighborhood.

THE WANDERING TEA CUP

A few drops of hot water poured into the saucer before placing the tea cup on it will keep the cup from slipping about when it is passed to the guest. Use just enough water to moisten the saucer, but not enough to show.

ABOUT THE BIRDS

If you enjoy watching the birds in their home life, why not build a bird house? Do not, however, build many bird houses. Birds do not like close neighbors, either other birds or people, and if you do build a house, watch it, but do not touch it.

DICTATES OF FASHION

One of the smartest milliners in Paris has created a chic little toque made entirely of green feathers.

Silver embroidery, often nothing more than a delicate tracery, is seen on the loveliest white chiffon frocks.

A frock of black crepe is given a very unusual trimming by adding two very full and flaring flounces of black velvet.

The vogue for black is reflected in the number of black coats that are worn this season—often over gaily colored frocks.

Blue fur is a favored trimming of the moment, especially when applied upon a dress of rose or pink crepe de chine.

The combination of citron and rose, or citron and certain more conscious shades of green is extremely smart.

For evening wear, nothing is more up to the minute than black lace over pink chiffon. Tulle, too, in black over a light foundation, is extremely chic.

The smartest gloves for almost every day-time occasion are of the pull-on type. Particularly chic are those of washable suede in a shade of pinkish beige.

From Paris come reports that red, in the very dark and also the very high shades, is second on popularity after black and the combination of black and white.

Gun metal hosiery, which gives the effect of a sheer black stocking, is more popular now with the dark suit or frock than the nude shade.

Girls from the ages of 12 to 15 look extremely smart if their coats are of flannel made in the fashion of the popular cape model.

Many a georgette crepe frock is given a distinct style by finishing the head with a wide puffing of taffeta in the same shade. These bands often amount to thick ruches.

WASHABLE SUMMER GLOVES

Wearable and washable. Those are the two requisites of gloves for summer. In consequence the fashionable French suede slip-ons are in special demand. The two-button style also is popular especially in the white and pastel tints, which match the summer frocks and sunshades.

CHAMELEON FROCKS

Chameleon frocks which appear to possess different colors by sunlight, moonlight and electric light have proved a popular vagary of dress in London. In the sunlight these frocks appear a bright peacock blue, under moonlight they appear sea green and under electric bulbs they seem a golden brown.

FOR THE SWIMMERS

One girl who swims a great deal has a paper bag containing one cup of cornstarch and after her rubber caps have dried, they are put in this bag and given a good shake. She has used the same caps for over a year by using this precaution.

LAUNDRY HINTS

Powdered borax added to the water when washing fine white flannel helps to keep them soft.

When blue garments have become faded, put a cupful of vinegar in the last rinsing water.

If curtains are allowed to dry thoroughly before being starched they will keep clean longer.

Put garments that are stained with perspiration to soak for a few minutes in lukewarm water to which a little carbonate of soda has been added. If put straight into suds the soap will set the stain.

If wet blankets, wool mixture underwear or any woolen garments are hung out of doors on a mild day the wool will shrink if the temperature drops suddenly. Do not leave woolens out except in hot weather after the sun goes down.

CONCERNING MEAT

Salt meat should be put into cold water, while fresh meat should be put into boiling water. One exception, however, is when making soup. Then the fresh meat should be put into cold water and brought very slowly to a boil. Allow 20 minutes for boiling each pound of fresh meat and 25 minutes for each pound of salt.

KEEP THE DOOR CLOSED

Persons who store rather large quantities of potatoes and apples in their cellars should keep the door of the cellar closed on warm days when the temperature outside is much higher than that where the vegetables are stored. Open doors will cause the potatoes and fruit to sweat, which means eventual decay and rot.

INSURES LONG WEAR

One secret in getting long life from your linoleum is always to lay it on a level floor surface. Have the floor planed and smoothed, then put down a layer of felt lining and paste it firmly to the floor, using the paste that is especially made for the purpose. This makes a smooth foundation that will keep linoleum from buckling or cracking.

WHITE FOR TENNIS

White is the color almost universally chosen for tennis frocks this season. Linen, broadcloth and madras are some of the materials employed. The sport dresses are of the two-piece variety, cut to allow full freedom to the shoulders and so deeply pleated as to prevent the skirt from checking movement in any way.

FRUIT PIES

The only objection to fruit pies is the fact that the juice is inclined to run over into the oven. Try mixing one tablespoon of cornstarch with the sugar to be used for sweetening and mix both sugar and cornstarch through the fruit. This will thicken juice just enough to prevent running and keep that much goodness in the pie.

CONCERNING WOMEN

The membership of the General Federation of Women's clubs now exceeds the 2,000,000 mark.

Women in India now are eligible to vote and also become members of the various legislative bodies.

Some brides in England are wearing wreaths of brightly colored spring flowers instead of orange blossoms.

The best paid female workers in Ontario, Canada, are those employed in beauty parlors and hairdressing establishments.

The Federation of Women's clubs, co-operating with the United States bureau of education, will take a census of illiterates in this country.

There are nearly as many women druggists as men in Berlin and the indications are that the time is not far distant when the feminine sex in this profession will outnumber the men.

From the operation of a small electric plant at Rolla, Mo., Mrs. D'Arline Holcomb, president and owner of the controlling interest in the company is said to have amassed a fortune of $650,000.

TO REMOVE CORKS

Corks may be removed easily without breaking them. If instead of turning the cork in the opposite direction, from the way you screw it, you continue to same direction gently pulling the cork up.

TO FROST GLASS

Glass may be frosted by the amateur by first cleaning the glass and then applying a thin coat of white lead mixed with turpentine. Then pat lightly all over the glass with a pad of cheesecloth, moistened to suit.

RECIPES

Combination Salad: 1-2 cup shredded pineapple, 1 1-3 cups sliced bananas, 1 cup strawberries, 1-2 cup orange pulp, 1-2 cup shredded cocoanut, 1-2 cup grapefruit pulp, 1-2 cup halved maraschino cherries, 1 cup sliced peaches, 1 dozen marshmallows. Lettuce.

Drain the grapefruit and mix thoroughly with the other fruits and the marshmallows which should be cut into small pieces. Chill and serve on crisp lettuce leaves. Sprinkle with plain or browned cocoanut.

Cassaba Salad: 2 Cassaba melons, 1 can grapefruit, 1-4 cup chopped nut meats, 2 packages cream cheese, 1-2 cup chopped dates. Shredded lettuce.

Cut the melons in halves, scoop out the pulp with a teaspoon or a French ball cutter and chill. Mix the cheese, nuts and dates together and make small balls of the mixture. When ready to serve, fill the empty melon shells with the chilled melon balls and grapefruit pulp. Arrange the cheese balls on top and garnish with lettuce cut into ribbons. Serve with mayonnaise, if desired.

From Small Beginnings

William Carleton, the Irish Peasant, a Great Novelist

In Rob Roy and The Heart of Midlothian, and in other novels, Sir Walter Scott told of life in Scotland, and awakened interest in the Scotch people. In his many novels of life in Ireland, William Carleton, the great Irish novelist, did the same for Ireland. Unlike Sir Walter Scott, William Carleton sprang from the humblest people, from his own experience knew their lives, and was able to write intimately as well as brilliantly about them.

When William Carleton was born in 1798, Ireland was by no means in a flourishing or happy condition. Great numbers of the people were peasants living on little, and often enduring the worst privations. At the same time, the people were a happy-hearted people, quick to laugh at humor, and sympathetic people ready to help those who were in need. Prillisk, where William Carleton was born, his family was numbered among the poorest. He had no advantages at all.

"To what school did you go?" some one asked him when he had become famous.

"Faith, to no school at all except a hedge school; and 'twas taught by no one in particular, and what I learned there, sure, I've forgotten what 'twas."

After a childhood in which he learned the meaning of hunger and ragged clothes, and an education gained only "from the side of the road," young Carleton made his way to Dublin, going on foot for lack of coach fare.

Arrived in Dublin, he made shift to earn his living as he could. Among other things he did he wrote down what he had seen of the peasants and he had heard of their wit and humor and good spirit. Very lovingly he wrote, and very, very truthfully. As people laughed and cried over the novels of Charles Dickens at a later period so they laughed and cried over William Carleton's stories. When he was 32 he gathered together a volume of his sketches—and sprang into fame. From then on he wrote book after book, short tales, long novels, and all of them about Ireland and the Irish people and the Irish problems. For 30 years he wrote such books, always witty and humorous, tender and true. He died in 1869 at the age of 71, the greatest of all Irish novelists.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

General Valeriano Weyler, who is named as a leader in the conspiracy to overthrow the dictatorship of General Primo de Rivera in Spain, is now nearing his 90th year. For more than 30 years he has been one of Spain's outstanding leaders, although recently eclipsed by General Primo de Rivera. General Weyler was Captain-General of Cuba just prior to the Spanish-American war, and his harshness of manner in dealing with the Cubans, especially the forcing of the rural population into concentration camps, has been regarded as having had much to do with bringing about the war between the United States and Spain. After his return to Spain he was made Captain-General of Madrid. Later he became Minister of War, and in 1909 was appointed Captain General of Catalonia. In 1916 he was made president of the general staff of the Spanish army. At 85 years of age he was active in the fighting in Morocco.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Danny Meadow Mouse Disappears

When people disappear, you'll find,
Those suffer most who're left behind.
—Old Mother Nature.

Peter Rabbit was hopping lippity-lippity-lip across the Green Meadows toward the dear Old Briar-patch. He knew he ought to be there by the time jolly, round red Mr. Sun should kick his rosy blankets off and begin his daily climb up in the blue, blue sky. But there was still plenty of time, so Peter turned aside to make a call on Danny and Nanny Meadow Mouse. He hadn't seen either of them for some time and, as they were living not far away from where he then was, this seemed like a good chance to find out how they were getting along.

When Peter reached the place where he knew the Meadow Mouse home to be he sat down beside one of the private little paths that Danny Meadow Mouse had made through the grass. He knew that if he moved about trying to find Danny and Nanny, he would be likely to scare them so that they would remain hidden. It would be better to sit and wait. If he waited long enough, one of them would be sure to use one of those private little paths, and Peter was sitting where two or three of these met. He didn't have long to wait. In fact, he had been there only a few minutes when he heard a rustling in the grass and out popped Nanny Meadow Mouse, hurrying along one of those little paths.

"Hello Nanny," cried Peter. "How are you? What are you in such a hurry about? What is the news?"

Nanny stopped abruptly. "Oh, Peter," she gasped, "how you startled me! Tell me, Peter, have you seen anything of Danny?"

Peter pricked up his ears. It struck him that Nanny was really worried. Her voice sounded as if she were very anxious. "No," said he, "isn't Danny at home?"

"That's a silly question," squeaked Nanny. "If he were at home, I wouldn't be asking you if you'd seen him, would I?"

Peter had to admit the truth of this. "Has he been long gone?" he inquired.

Nanny nodded as well as a Meadow Mouse can nod. You know, a Meadow Mouse has a very short neck. "Yes," she said, "he has been gone two whole days, and that is a very long time. He never was gone so long before. Oh, Peter, I am so afraid something dreadful has happened to him. I am afraid some one has caught him and I shall never see him again. That's what I'm afraid of, Peter Rabbit. I am afraid some one has eaten my Danny."

"Has any one been hunting around here lately?" inquired Peter. "I haven't noticed any of the Hawk family around and Old Man Coyote and Reddy Fox have been keeping up in the Old Pasture lately, or over in the Green Forest. Of course, I suppose Hooty the Owl or some of his relatives may have picked Danny up, but if I were you, I wouldn't give him up for lost yet. By the way, that big Man Bird was over here the other day, wasn't

"Hello, Nanny!" cried Peter. "How are you?"

ter, it could have taken him with it?"

Peter scratched a long ear with a long hindfoot. "It took you both away once, didn't it?" he inquired. Nanny nodded.

"And it brought you back again, didn't it?" Again Nanny nodded.

"Well, then I wouldn't worry about Danny, if that is what has happened to him," said Peter.

"But I don't know that it did take him away and—and—O, Peter it's dreadful to have some one you love disappear."

Stories That Recall Others

A Fair Game

They were discussing card games and friends.

"Well, she plays a fair game, doesn't she?" one asked.

"Yes, when she is watched," the other curtly replied.

All Was Excitement

The women had been having a meeting and to complete it they decided to go to the theatre and see the picture. It was a mystery play and held people spell bound until the drop of the curtain. The house was breathlessly still while "the villain still pursued her" when one of the women announced in a penetrating stage whisper:

"Oh, I've lost my hat!"

The woman next to her jagged back to reality by a nudge looked at her rather blankly and then said, "Why you did have a hat, didn't you?"

A second or so later it was found that a man a few rows down was holding it on his lap awaiting the psychological moment to search for the owner.

"It" Of course. Peter meant an airplane.

Nanny nodded. "Yes," said she, "and I haven't seen Danny since it flew away. Do—do you suppose, Pe-

TWELVE KILLED, MANY INJURED IN STORM

BERLIN, July 4—(AP)—Twelve persons were killed and many injured in a violent thunderstorm which swept over the Berlin suburb of Woltersdorf today. Thousands of excursionists were overwhelmed by the sudden cloudburst; hundreds of them took refuge in a covered bowling alley. Volumes of water pouring down from the hills undermined the walls of the alley, which caved in, burying 60 of them.

Woltersdorf is one of the principal picture film producing areas in the environs of Berlin.

Most of the forests and the suburbs to the east of Berlin were completely inundated by the cloudburst, which also put an end to the horseracing at Hoppegarten, where lightning struck a stable. Many valuable thoroughbreds were endangered and the racetrack was converted into a lake.

Trial of the suit to recover $400 commission for selling real estate brought by Max Merims against Angelo Summataro, both of New London, was concluded in the court of common pleas Saturday morning in New London before Judge Charles B Waller, who took the papers and reserved decision.

The plaintiff alleges that last February, as an agent for Sammataro, he sold two houses at 28 and 35 Ocean avenue for the sum of $11,600 and that commission amounting to $400 due him, has not yet been paid. The defendant claims that he entered into an agreement with the plaintiff in which the latter was to receive commission if the property had been sold for $12,000, and that the sum of $11,600 was to be paid over to Sammataro, free and clear of liabilities. SAYS PEOPLE MUST GET INTO POLITICS TO ENFORCE PROHIBITION

Speaking at the Sunday night service at the Central Baptist church, Rev. Ernest V. Claypool, superintendent of the Connecticut Anti-Saloon League, declared that it was a compliment to the effectiveness of anti-saloon league in that politicians, the press and the liquor people center upon the league their praise or their blame for prohibition and the enforcement. By the people giving long-continued attention to the job of politics may we straighten out the muddle we may be in, he said, and thus insure the righteousness and perpetuity of the republic.

Two finely rendered violin solos were given at the service by Miss Roberta Bitgood of New London, who played Ave Maria (Schubert-Wilhelmj) and Meditation from "Thais" by Massenet.

Address on Prohibition.

Until the close of the Civil war 12 amendments to the federal constitution were made. Connecticut did not ratify any one of them. Connecticut did not ratify the 18th amendment, but has ratified five only of the 18 which have been adopted. About 2,500 amendments have been proposed. The amendments have all been adopted the same way, and all after prolonged agitation, the longest agitation being in connection with the 15th and 19th. Connecticut has always been loyal to her contract with the other states and has accepted every amendment to the Constitution, whether joining or not joining in its ratification.

Who made the fight against the prohibition amendment — furnished the money and the organization? Who made the fight to Germanize America? In both cases the brewers. They swore they did before a committee of the United States senate in 1918. Who finances the fight against prohibition today? The maltsters, assisted by other lesser combinations, including the wine growers and wine merchants of Europe. Why? Because the brewers knew before prohibition came that the fight was more against beer than any other intoxicant, and that prohibition meant the wiping out of beer. Honest and loyal brewers prepared to obey the prohibition law which they saw was undoubtedly coming, making their plans for the transformation of their breweries into factories of other goods. In 1914, five years before prohibition was adopted and before the World war started the Anheuser-Busch brewery of St. Louis, Mo., published a statement of the readjustments which would transform their breweries into factories for other merchandise which changes would be made when prohibition came. All statements that the elimination of beer was not intended by the 18th amendment are just bunk stuff, applesauce, and hot air. All moves to attempt to permit the making of beer by act of congress are thinly disguised attempts to nullify the constitution. The congressmen who have been talking beer and light wine are now cutting the light wine claim or hope out, one of them admitting in a debate last December that no wine could be made so lacking in alcohol as to be un-prohibitive by the prohibition amendment.

Who owned the saloons? The brewers. In spite of laws to the contrary approximately 90 per cent. of the saloons were so owned. The brewery owned or rented the ground and buildings. The brewer loaned the money for the license and held the licenses as security. The brewer furnished the liquor and took the profits. He said very plainly then that he could not otherwise get rid of the stuff he had brewed. And now those same folks have deluded some seemingly sane folk into echoing their cry that nobody wants the saloon—all they want is the beer. After about 1885 the distillers of the country generally obeyed the laws relating to their business. But the brewers never attempted to obey the law. When the law said they should not run the saloons they did it anyway. They are relying on their ability to get away with the same lawlessness in the same old way if they can only get the legal right to accumulate a supply with which to stock the saloons. And any bunch of sap-heads which believes their lies and assists them in bringing back the old condition is just fool enough to defend them afterward in their reopening the old hell-holes.

While the opponents of prohibition were led by the breweries, there were other organizations supporting them. Who led the advocates of prohibition? The liquor people said then and by their investigation of organizations through congressional committees are still saying that the organizations which are responsible for prohibition are the Woman's Temperance Union and the Anti-Saloon league. No other prohibition organizations are commonly mentioned in congress or the press. The leaders in no other organizations are held up to ridicule and contumely. I shall not speak of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union other than to say that for a generation it carried on the greatest educational campaign ever waged during all the centuries of human history in behalf of a moral reform. The ladies can talk for themselves.

What Anti-Saloon League Is

The Anti-Saloon league is the clearing house for the prohibition work of the churches. Its churches are selected by denominational bodies, to which the league is responsible. In this state the trustees are official representatives of the Baptist, Congregational, Methodist, Presbyterian and Universalist churches. The Anti-Saloon league has never touched, and by its constitution it never can touch any questions excepting the destruction of the beverage liquor traffic. Its methods have been those of publicity only. The only reward its political supporters have ever received was publication of their official attitude toward prohibition. The only punishment it spoitical opponents have ever had was publication of their official record. The league has investigated conditions, gathered scientific data, compiled honest statistics, examined laws and laws which were proposed in order that the voters of this republic might have accurate information as the basis for judgment and action on the liquor question. The people did not exact promises from candidates because the Anti-Saloon league told them to, but because the people had a right to know and wanted to know how their representatives stood. And today the Anti-Saloon league stands as the only dry organization representing officially most of the Protestant churches in every state in the Union which has for its object the securing and making public those conditions in court action, and police activity as well as in law making which affect the integrity of the United States Constitution with especial reference to the Eighteenth amendment. There are other organizations doing good work, but the politicians, the press, and the liquor people agree in centering their praise or their blame for prohibition and its enforcement on the Anti-Saloon league. This can be taken as a compliment to its effectiveness.

We have prohibition of the liquor traffic. It is a safety measure. It is no better enforced than the law against murder. There is no more reason for its repeal because it is not perfectly enforced than for the repeal of the income tax because hundreds of thousands of cases are recorded of flagrant perjury in income tax reports. If the question faced by the people of America regarding any criminal law was as to its perfect inforcement the reply in every case would be the same as for the prohibition law,—No, it is not enforced. But the questions which may be properly put are rather,—Does the law attempt to do a thing which ought to be done? And is the safety of the people in any degree increased by the law, even with lax enforcement.

Some particular evils may have come from prohibition, though I assert that none which was not existent before prohibition has yet been brought to my attention. Lifting a flat stone in a cow pasture and discovering the worms and bugs which quickly scurry into the surrounding grass does not put the worms and bugs there. Removing the screen of the legalized saloon, in a few cases quite decent and respectable, so that we see the crime connected with the liquor traffic, the thugs, thieves, perjurers, bribers, dishonest police, corrupt federal officers, pliant judges, cowardly politicians and hypocritical representatives of high society, has not produced these vermin, but has merely revealed them. These people are horrible and the social and poiical conditions which they represent are horrible. They are as horrible as a bunch of pimples on the face of a pretty girl. They ought to be cured.

What shall we do? I haven't a single remedy for the disease. If it were a disease resulting from prohibition only or from liquor only a single remedy might be sufficient. This is not a case of a few pimples on a pretty face, but is the ghastly exhibition of serious sores in our political games, rotten primaries, venal courts, prostituted criminal lawyers, public mandlin sentimentality toward criminals, ignoring of the rights of the innocent, cowardly refusal to assist in protecting the public by ready testimony to uncover crime, lazy refusal of jury service, unwillingness to work at politics, business dishonesty and personal immorality. The things of which I spoke are all directly connected with the business of governing the country and the state so that there shall be safety of life, person and property in high degree; so that there shall be common regulation through government control of those things which are every bodies' business, combined with the greatest possible opportunity for each to attain the highest position of honor and receive the largest reward for his labor with his personal abilities and endeavors justify. In connection with that list of a part of our horrible sores I wish to give even greater emphasis to my belief that the great mass of politicians, criminal lawyers, court officers, police, and business men are just as honorable and just as much to be trusted as the mass of men who are in my own profession, the clergy.

But what are we going to do about these sores on the body politic? First of all, settle down to the fact that they will not be cured over night. The intelligence of anyone who presents a quick and complete panacea is abnormal.

What is to be done? Investigate candidates before the primaries and conventions are held. Put time into politics and put money into politics with no expectation of getting paid for it in any way but by the answer of a good conscience. Do not take as final the word of a street corner loafer or of any other person who has not made an actual study of the thing about which he speaks, as to the provisions of the law, as to the ways politics are run, or how the police do or how the courts act. See for yourself or get some one to see for you—and be sure the one you look for you has the ability to see and to understand. Yourself get busy in politics. It is the only way to know politics and the only way to keep politics clean.

Not by the passage of any one law, nor by its enforcement, but the patient, careful, long-continued giving of our attention to the job of politics which is the job of king-ship, may we straighten out the muddle we may be in and insure the righteousness and perpetuity of the Republic.

Therefore I come with an appeal. Give yourselves to the war for righteousness in government even as you gave yourselves, yours sons, your brothers to the war in Europe. Back up with your money, your time, your talents, your personality, and your influence those movements, those candidates, those principles which you believe to be for the greatest good to the greatest number. Even as our fathers and mothers faced the perplexities of the Revolutionary days; as others faced the agonies of the Civil war, not doing perfectly, but doing the best they could under the circumstances they met and with the knowledge they could get, but doing something, I plead that you, too, face the perplexities of today with courage, get the best knowledge you can and do that which you are convicted is right.

A hundred fifty years ago today the declaration was signed. Soon afterward a flag much like the present Star Spangled Banner was flung to the breeze. The flag has not always been absolutely stainless but it is incomparably cleaner than any other flag on earth. I believe the generation of my children, the generation now grasping the flag pole will not only keep the banner from dragging but will lift it to higher place and crown it with added glory.

WAITRESS SUES FOR SALARY CLAIM OF $132

Judge Charles B. Waller took the papers and reserved decision at the conclusion of testimony in the suit for $132 damages brought by Miss Eunice Smith of New London and Nova Scotia, against Mrs. Rachel Kane of New London, which was heard in the court of common pleas Saturday at New London. Miss Smith alleges that on July 29, 1925, she entered the employ of Mrs. Kane to wait on table in the latter's boarding house and was to be paid $12 a week. She claims that she was employed there for 14 weeks but received pay for only three weeks. Mrs. Kane claims that she has paid the plaintiff's salary in uninterrupted payments of $12 weekly with the exception of the 14th week, which she was ready and willing to pay.

INDEPENDENCE SERMON BY REV. FATHER REILLY

The system of electrically cooling St. Patrick's church, adopted several summers ago, was appreciated by the large congregations at the three masses Sunday.

Noting Fourth of July, the flag was flying from the staff on the lawn. At the 9 o'clock mass, Rev. John J. Reilly, junior assistant pastor, considered the stupendous event which was being celebrated by the nation, reminding his hearers of the special interest which Catholics have in the occurrence 150 years ago, when John Charles Carroll, of Carrollton was one of the signers of that inspired document, the Declaration of Independence, so lofty in its principles and ideals,—a pronouncement for which the world had need, which gave men a new outlook on life, Mankind had grown negligent of the virtues set forth in that wondrous document, although they were not new ones—the fact that all men are equal, that each has the inalienable right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, until the Liberty Bell rang out its message.

It might be well if that bell could din its lesson—which then seemed new and radical in a world grown aristocratic, given to thoughts of class and caste—in latter times, the preacher declared, when present day, self-styled "real-Americans" are prone to forget what the histories tell. At Lexington, at Gettysburg, on Flanders Field, the blood shed in defense of liberty was not all of the so-called blue hue, but was very familiar, and ordinary, and red. Americanism is by no means restricted to the few who claim to trace back their ancestry to the immigrants of the seventeenth century. It does not mean merely teaching foreigners to read and write, or passing immigration laws. It means love for America and willingness to suffer and sacrifice for American ideals, if need be.

The eloquent young preacher considered the boon of liberty—how much it implies to this nation of a hundred millions of souls, so proud on this great anniversary. Yet he gave his ringing words a spiritual significance, by pointing out the danger of abuse of this God-given boon, in case men permit liberty to degenerate into license. The will, the intellect, the imagination should be free, not fettered by sin, else man lapses into a state more deplorable than was ever that of the enslaved Negro, or the Roman slaves chained to the galley. No man, even the greatest, can be independent with God—but must recognize his submission, that his place is secondary. The peroration was an earnest appeal to the attentive congregation to make this day of the Nation's birth a turning point, to go forth with the aim to rise from dependence to independence with God through eternity, through loyalty to the virtues summarized in the Declaration, those virtues exemplified in the daily life of the true Catholic and patriot.

Hundreds crowded to the altar, following the week end confessions, to receive holy communion, Rev. Myles P. Galvin, who read the low mass requiring the assistance of Father Reilly in administering the Eucharist.

GENERAL BUSINESS SHOWS UNDIMINISHED VITALITY

NEW YORK, July 4—(AP)—The second half of the year has opened with general business displaying undiminished vitality, despite a marked division of opinion over midsummer prospects. Most of the reliable trade indices last week revealed that the current volume of business was not far below that of the early months of the year and that the rate of industrial activity was considerably above that of a year ago.

Prophets of reaction in the basic industries, such as steel and automobile manufacturing, have so far found little to substantiate their predictions. Conditions in the steel industry, after the temporary spring recession, have shown progressive improvement contrary to the normal seasonal trend. The motor output has fallen below that of the preceding months but has maintained at record levels for this time of year in the face of the approaching inventory season.

All records for steel production in the first half of the year were broken by the ingot output of approximately 24,500,000 tons. This was about 9 per cent ahead of the corresponding period last year while shipments at the same time ranged from 5 to 10 per cent higher than in 1925. Predictions were freely made that the production for the entire year also would reach a new high record.

Some signs of a reduction in buying were detected following the remarkable expansion in June business which in some products was 50 per cent above that in May.

The most interesting development in the railroad field was the revival of interest in the consolidation program coincident with the outline by the Van Sweringens of a modified Nickel Plate merger plan. Reconsideration of this project, which will involve more liberal treatment for the stockholders of the constituent roads, is expected to speed up other pending mergers. Freight car loadings continued at the rate of more than a million a week, with the approaching crop movement promising to swell traffic and earnings alike.

In line with the continued high level of building activity, reports from the lumbing centers indicated that the dumber industry was stabilized somewhat above the normal plane. A firmer price tendency in structural steel has developed with the present increase in building contracts

Although it has been too early to guage general crop possibilities, a good picture of the cotton situation has been presented by the government's first report of the season. With the estimated condition above 75 per cent of normal applying to an increased acreage, the department of agriculture predicted a yield of more than 15,600,000 bales, slightly below last year's final production.

POETRY

My Country

O Land beloved!
My country dear, my own
The pearls some who cannot fall!
Happy are they who sing thy perfect days!
Happy am I who see the long night ended,
In the shadows of the age that born me,
All the hopes of mankind blending,
Earth awaking, heaven descending,
While the new day steadfastly
Dooms the blue deeps over thee!
Happy am I who see the vision splendid
In the glowing of the dawn before me,
All the grace of heaven blending,
Man arising, Christ descending,
While God's hand in secrecy
Builds thy bright eternity.
—George Edward Woodbury.

The Bells of the Fourth

What is it thrubs adown the night
With golden falls and silvery swells?
From placid plain and slope and height—
It is the pean of the bells.

It is the echo of the note
(Hearken the vibrant midnight chime!)
From one now memorable throat
Of Revolutionary time.
"Freedom!" the sound assailed the sky!
It filled, it thrilled the souls of men
On that old day of red July
Within the ancient home of Penn.

Sea-girt, embattled and secure,
The rise and set of sun we face;
If we but hold our purpose pure,
Who shall surpass us in the race?

If we but heed the bells!—their tale
Of how our fathers made us free—
Then shall no human power avail
To darken our high destiny!
—Clinton Scollard.

This section, on account of its many apple orchards, together with the abundance of wild cherry shrubs, has been listed as one of the best caterpillar paradises of eastern Connecticut. Three years ago a prize was offered here for the destruction of these nests, which so stimulated the activities of the Boy Scouts, and older school children that the destruction of these nests was appreciably great. A check-up on the effort to get rid of the orchard destroyer here, tells of the invaluable services of a hitherto unknown ally.

A Baltimore oriole has cleaned out some tent caterpillars' nests. The bird stood on the limb and ate caterpillars for a while and then began to draw it's bill across the nest as a harpist draws his hand over the strings of a harp, and with each pass of the bill from 10 to 20 worms fell to the ground. Then it began to take the larvae from the nest, and bite them in the middle and stick them on the branch, until to be sprouting worms.

G. W. STANSFIELD DROWNS BATHING AT PLEASURE BEACH

NEW LONDON, July 4.—(AP)—Gilbert W. Stansfield, 29, of South Main street, Monson, Mass., was drowned while swimming at Pleasure Beach, Waterford, last night in spite of efforts made by Miss Mabel Perkins of Springfield, Mass., to save him.

Stansfield and Miss Perkins were swimming together and had reached a raft easily. They then started for a second raft when Stansfield stopped. Miss Perkins turned to aid him, suspecting that he was in distress. Then she called for help from the beach but before assistance came and in spite of the aid she gave, Stansfield sank. Miss Perkins became exhausted and barely reached the first raft again, where she collapsed. Two men with a rowboat placed her on shore.

Stansfield is survived by his widow and a five-year-old son; both witnessed his disappearance.

Search was begun at once for the body.

NEW LONDON, July 4. — Gilbert Wayne Stansfield is described as being about 29, five feet, ten inches in height, medium build, having black hair and blue eyes. He was wearing a wedding ring and had on a blue and white striped bathing suit.

He was seen to enter the water and when he did not return about 8 o'clock a search was made for him. He was not located and neither was any trace of him found. When a search failed to reveal the whereabouts of the man, James Kimber, 4 Moss avenue, employed by the Electric Boat company, Groton, reported to the New London police that Stansfield was missing and the state police at Groton were also notified but every attempt to recover the body has failed.

JEWETT CITY

OLD BOAT HOUSE BURNED, THOUGH WITH NO SPECIAL LOSS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, July 4.—This noon, the one-time Aspinook boat club's boat house was totally destroyed by fire. In response to the call on the big whistle for Mechanic street (Station 32), Chief Bert Field and his men arrived to find the building in full blaze. A stream of water through 300 feet of hose carried from the hydrant at the corner of Green avenue and Mechanic street, put out the fire, leaving the ruin complete. The house was owned by Wallace H. Payne, and was being taken down by the owner, parts being utilized in the making of a summer camp. Chief Field cannot definitely state the cause. The building is but a few feet off the right of way of the New Haven railroad, and a train had passed, bound south, a little while before the discovery of the fire. The burned building was the second built by the Aspinook boat club, and Sunday there were no boats inside. The first house was three times larger than this, and at times in the height of the club's seasons, often contained many valuable launches and canoes. Mr. Payne took it over as personal property some years ago.

POTATO GROWERS WORRIED OVER THE LACK OF RAIN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, July 4.—The need of rain is beginning to be seriously felt here, especially by potato growers. This important crop of Griswold is just in its opening blossom stage, which marks the time when the answer is decided, relative to how many tubers will roll out when the hoe is applied, next fall. One farmer said Sunday that his fields were dry down three feet. Another reported that light grass-land with no rain to thicken up the bottom, would cut the crop in half.

A sight at the Quinebaug Sunday evening at the junction of the Pachaug and Quinebaug, off South Main street, showed hardly enough water to wet one's feet in crossing.

All day Sunday an intermittent firing of crackers and pistols was kept up. Some argued that such celebration was within the law, saying, "even though it be Sunday it is July 4th."

The body of Calvin Briggs of Norwich was brought Friday to the family lot in the Jewett City cemetery for burial.

Miss Doris Fitch is the Chautauqua superintendent this season in Jewett City.

Finn's tonight. The American Venus. Also the 1925 July 4th Parade reel.—adv.

Taking advantage of two perfect days preceding the holiday, people all through this vicinity were enabled to carry out plans for the enjoyment of the 4th, with the accompaniment of the weather man's favor.

While there was no general exodus from the town, yet many are away on holiday visits.

Other than the Chautauqua entertainments and the formal opening of the Ashland Casino, there are no definite plans for celebration or observance of the day.

Favorable mention of Chaplain Maurice W. Reynolds, in the current number of The American Missionary, published in New York city, is noted with appreciative interest by local people.

Reynolds, pastor of Newent Congregational church. Chaplain Reynolds after a most agreeable and beneficial term of service, in the southwest, has taken up a new line of duty at Fort Amador, in the United States' possession in Panama.

The Union St. Jean Guard, led by Joseph Marsan marched from the house to the church and part way to the cemetery.

CALLED FIREMEN TO STOP BOYS' CELEBRATION

After a call which came in to Central station Sunday evening about 9 o'clock the members of the department wondered whether or not they were doing police as well as fire duty in this city.

The phone rang and a man's voice informed the firemen that a fire had been burning in the rear of No. 22 Taft street and they were wanted there at once. Squad A and Deputy Chief Taft responded, were gone for a short time and then returned.

The call for a supposed fire was nothing more than a request that the firemen put a stop to the firing off of fire works at that place by a number of small boys, the call having been sent in by Herbert Chapman, resident of the house owned by James Graham.

SPARKLER SETS FIRE TO ROOF OF HOUSE

The grand and glorious Fourth ushered in a fire before 10 o'clock Sunday morning when a boy on North Main street staging a pre-fifth celebration, threw a lighted sparkler onto the roof at No. 36 North Main street, the two and one half story frame building owned and occupied by Mary Serra.

Mrs. Serra was called from his home by the little daughter and informed that the roof was on fire. He immediately secured a ladder and tackled the blaze, a telephone call being sent in to the fire department at the same time. Squad A, Engines 1 and 3 and Deputy Chief Taft responded but on their arrival the fire was practically out, a hole was burned through the roof and it was necessary to tear up some of the shingles to extinguish the blaze. The damage was slight.

BOYS STARTED EARLY TO CELEBRATE FOURTH

The police were kept busy Sunday night and early this (Monday) morning trying to check gangs of boys in premature celebration of the Fourth, as the central part of the town some gang had a large cannon, from which they allowed to roar out its challenge from time to time, every report coming from a place some distance from the previous firing.

In Greeneville the favorite sport was placing dynamite caps on the trolley tracks or discharging large cannon crackers.

The firing became heavier during the early hours of the morning, giving indication that today was to be a banner year for noise as well as making the day anything but fireworks, two calls having been sent in to the fire department before the day was an hour old.

CONTRACT AWARDED FOR NEW DIME SAVINGS BANK BUILDING

Bids on the erection of the new building for the Dime Savings bank were opened Saturday and the general contract was awarded to the Peck-McWilliams Co. of this city. The contract price was not made public. Other bidders were W. S. Spencer and Archibald Torrance, both of this city, H. Wales Lines Co. of Meriden and Fred T. Ley Co. of Springfield. The electrical work was awarded to the Eaton-Chase Co. of this city and the plumbing and heating to Howard C. Dahl of this city.

It is the intention of the Peck-McWilliams Co. to begin work at once on the new building, which is to be erected on the plot on Broadway next to the Wauregan hotel, which has been known for some time as the Shields property, and which is Nos. 31-35 Broadway. Buildings now on the plot will be torn down.

The new structure will be an admirable and notable addition to Broadway and to the substantial business blocks of the city.

The building will have a frontage of 42 feet on the street and a depth of 74 feet. It will be of absolutely fireproof construction with limestone front and sides of faced brick. At the center on the front will be two large bronze doors and at either side full length windows with a window over the doors. The bank's name will be cut into the stone across the front of the building and will be shown under the windows in bronze lettering three inches high. There are also to be two large fluted limestone columns with granite base at each front corner of the building.

As one enters the front there will be a vestibule with second entrance doors at the corners to the main lobby. The lobby will be 17 feet deep. At the right of the vestibule door will be the president's room while at the left chairs and a table for the bank customers will be located. The check desks will be of bronze with plate glass shelf and pigeon holes underneath and benches for the customers.

The treasurer's office at the right of the lobby will be 11 by 15 feet with a coat closet, lavatory and toilet. The working space will be 22 by 26 feet, fully equipped for the proper handling of the bank business, and this will be separated from the public by wire mesh screens.

The interior walls will be plastered and painted with marble wainscoting and stone floor. There will be seven wickets with bronze grill and the rest of the screen will be plate glass.

At the left of the lobby is a passageway leading to the vault, with provision made for safe deposit boxes in case they should be installed later. Here also are located the iron stairways leading to the mezzanine floor and the cellar, with the stair treads to the mezzanine floor of marble while to the cellar they will be of slate.

At the right of the large burglar proof vault will be the clerks' lavatory and toilets. Back of this is a work room accoustically treated with felt, so that with the doors closed no noise of the machines can be heard outside.

Underneath the burglar proof vault will be a fire proof storage vault.

At the head of the stairway leading to the mezzanine floor is to be a hall from which opens a ladies' rest room fitted with toilet, lavatory, couch, dressing table and chairs. Next to this will be a consulting room, beyond which is the directors' coat closet. The directors' room, connecting with the coat closet, is to be 16 by 22 feet with a fireplace and four windows. The flooring in this room will be of oak, the wainscoting of walnut and painted walls. The furniture here will be of walnut to match and off of this room will be the directors' lavatory.

On the front of the mezzanine, looking down upon the banking room, will be three French windows, from which are balconies with metal railings, with a clock in the center.

In the cellar at the left of the stairway will be a kitchen fitted with gas stove, table and cabinet, together with hot and cold water.

The heater will be located at the right of the building and it is planned to install the very latest oil heating system. Provision, however, has been made for an ash lift and coal chute in case of necessity.

MOVING PICTURES SHOWN ON LIFE OF CHRIST

A good sized audience enjoyed the special Bible moving picture on "The Story of Jesus" at the local Y. M. C. A. Sunday afternoon.

The prayer was offered by C. A. Hooker. Miss Marcia Zabriskie officiated at the piano very acceptably and her brother H. C. Zabriskie rendered sweetly by two religious solos. The pictures portrayed in a masterful way the birth of Jesus, his flight into Egypt and return, with the learned men in the temple, many of his miracles all of which were true to the scripture story.

Between the reels Secretary Edwin Hill gave a brief talk and spoke in part as follows: "You noticed that the wise men brought very valuable gifts to the holy child. We are quite apt to give things of little value; in the public offerings of religious services too often people give the smaller coins instead of the larger ones. You recall that Mary anointed the feet of Jesus with very costly ointment, the best gift she had to offer. Nothing is too valuable for us to give to Jesus who has given himself to us. Then you noticed Christ was pictured as a very busy worker from morning to night, never refusing to help those who needed his help. What a great difference it would make in the world if every professing christian kept busy helping and blessing others; it does not mean that we must always give money often that is the least important. If we put ourselves into the work of the kingdom as Christ did there would be far less sorrow in the world. Let us do all we can to be of service to others.

Emery H. Davis operated the moving picture machine. Next Sunday the last half of the picture will be shown.

SAYS MAN CAN BE GREAT DESPITE HIS HANDICAPS

Man's ability to rise above his limitations and handicaps was the lesson brought out in an inspiring sermon by Rev. Dr. S. H. Howe of Park Congregational church when he spoke from the text: Now Naaman was a great man with his master, a mighty man of valor; but he was a leper. 2 Kings 5: 1.

In part Dr. Howe spoke as follows:

Here is a great man but with a handicap. A great military chieftain a past master in human achievement but a leper. A mighty man, a great figure in his nation's life but pinioned to the earth like a captured eagle. Had wings for soaring but caged. Had everything and everything was nothing. Had everything for a successful career and yet disqualified for that career. Had great resources and yet like ourselves shut out from the goal of a great soul's ambition. A great soul but shut up in the paddock of fatal conditions, an experience we too well know. We are capable of great becomings but under limitation. Made for happiness but with the gates of paradise closed in our faces; a fact that makes us at home with the Syrian chieftain. We have much but are falling of the perfect beatitude. We are aspirant for gianthood but are sent back to dwarfhood. Something in ourselves or in others, something in our placing or environment that suppresses and tethers us and sends us to defeat and failure. We have wings but they are folded at our side. Man is free but everywhere in captivity; held back from perfect beatitude. These limitations have always laid heavily upon him.

Nature imposes limitations. Nature once completely mastered men, refused to disclose her secrets or yield her forces. Nature dominated and terrified what should have been her masters. Now she has been revealing them but we know the unknown exceeds the known. Humanity has plodded leaden footed.

Where it should have been soaring man has had his intellectual limitations. His knowledge is restricted. We have garnered knowledge but our ignorance exceeds our knowledge. We have read extensively but what millions of books are unread. What literature remains unknown. Our ignorance would fill a Bodleian library.

We are socially limited. With capacity and passion for friendship but shut up to a handful of heart friendship. Hungering for love and getting little and bestowing little. We have our spiritual limitations. It may be a conquest today but a defeat tomorrow. We advance today and driven back tomorrow. The purity that sees God; the faith that overcomes the world is slowly acquired. The white garment unspotted from the world is hard in the weaving. Our spiritual ideals retreat us as we approach them; we must wait long for the decorations of the victory; long training is the price to be paid for the statue of the spiritual athlete. We will not pay the price and miss our goal.

Then there is the limitation which time affixes. We are here for so little time. Pope lamented that all things will be going on as ever on the day of death. We have to leave the world with all its great rush of life before we have found fitness and qualification for life. We lay down a hundred unevolved latencies. We do not use a hundredth part of ourselves. We are not all incarnate here. Only a trifle of the great mass of personality comes to expression. We cannot get into all the great ongoings of life upon which we want to be engaged. We must go and leave the great work of life to others. And when we go the world will give no heed; forget us; supplant us. We are conscious of great possibilities but we are restrained.

But we can reverse our text and read it backwards; Naaman was a leper but a mighty man of valor. He was a leper but great in spite of the limitation. Men can be great in spite of their handicap.

Homer was blind but wrote the supreme masterpiece in all literatures. So was Milton but he wrote the greatest love poem in the English language. Fawcett had his eye shot away but he was a great scholar and cabinet minister. Pascoe was an invalid but was France's greatest man of thought. St. Paul was a prisoner but sent from his prison to his contemporaries and to all the succeeding generations, letters that shapes the religious thinking of all the intellectual Titans of the past 20 centuries.

Jesus was peasant born and peasant reared and asked but a manger and a cross and by these he redeemed the world.

Fortunately Christian graces, spiritual chieftainship can be achieved in spite of limitation. There is no real greatness that cannot be shared by all men. A great sainthood can be achieved in the narrowest spheres. No form of moral greatness is the province of the exceptional man. Virtues are not dependent on the staging. They can all be shared in small spheres. You may be shut up in narrow environments but you can live divinely in contracted spheres. The soul that does the will of God in obscurity is not surpassed by an archangel's loyalty. We can prove our worthiness as truly as the elders and angels about the throne.

State motor vehicle department receipts, exclusive of the gasoline tax, for the states fiscal year, ended Wednesday, reached a total of $6,162,179.43, a 10 per cent increase over the department's receipts for the previous fiscal year ended June 30, 1925. Mrs. Louis H. Geer of Faith Trumbull chapter, this city, Mrs. Arad Manning, president of Govenor Jonathan Trumbull chapter of Lebanon, and Mrs. Addie Wickwire of Col. Henry Champion chapter of Colchester were at Valley Forge Sunday to attend the presentation and dedication of the Star Spangled Banner national peace chime and the national birthday bell at Washington Memorial chapel.

The birthday bell, which was the gift of 48 patriots in each state, is the largest of the set, weighing two and a half tons, and the entire weight of the chime is over seven tons. The bell for Connecticut was presented by Connecticut society, Daughters of the American Revolution, each chapter contributing its quota. It is the fourth largest, weighing 1,500 pounds.

Paper On Fire In Furnace

Smoke backing into the house resulted in a telephone call for the fire department at 9:29 o'clock Saturday morning when smoke filled the rooms in the building, Nos. 2-4 Main street. Waste paper and rubbish which was being burned in the furnace caused the smoke to fill the house and the occupants believed fire had broken out. Squad A and Engines 1 and 5 responded.

Struck By Automobile

A man who had been attending the baseball game Sunday afternoon at the grounds at Taftville was struck as he was coming from the game by an automobile driven by Ernest E. Bullard of 29 Bliss place, who was driving at slow speed. The name of the man was not secured as he refused to give it to Mr. Bullard or to say whether he was hurt.

Delayed coming of summer weather, general business conditions and the use of the automobile for day or week end trips, are blamed for the exceptionally poor cottage season at shore places, although owners claim they cannot lower rents while taxes, fire insurance rates, etc, al continue so high.

N. Y. SUBWAY MOTORMEN AND SWITCHMEN WENT ON STRIKE EARLY THIS MORNING

Trainmen Quit Work Following Refusal of Company Officials to Agree to Arbitration of Differences—Strike Was Fostered by 750 Trainmen—Leaders Claim Their Forces Have Been Increased to 1000 Through Addition of 200 Conductors and a Number of Men From Other Departments—Strikebreakers Take Places of Men Who Quit.

NEW YORK, July 5.—(AP)—The subway motormen and switchmen on the Interborough Rapid Transit company lines went on strike at 12:01 a. m., today.

The strike was fostered by about 750 motormen and switchmen who bolted from the Brotherhood of Interborough Employes, the company union, formed an independent organization, and demanded wage increases. Shortly before the hour for the strike, leaders of the workers, claimed that their forces had been increased to 1,000 through the addition of about 200 conductors and a number of men from other departments.

As the striking motormen, ended their runs, stepped from the trains, they were replaced by strike-breakers brought from other cities by the company. Two policemen rose on the front platform of each train.

Interborough Rapid Transit company officials predicted the strike would not cripple their underground lines, as did the last strike, in August, 1919. On that occasion all rapid transit in Manhattan was at a standstill three days after 14,000 employes walked out.

Elaborate plans were made by city officials to transport the city's workers by railroad, bus, trucks, ferry boats and surface cars. In addition taxicab companies prepared for the emergency by putting extra cabs on the streets. One third of the city's 18,000 police were assigned to strike duty, and all vacations and leaves of absence were revoked.

The interborough's elevated lines were not affected.

DECLINED TO ACCEPT ARBITRATION PROPOSAL

NEW YORK, July 5.—(AP)—Faced with the alternative of a relatively small strike or general disruption of the whole service, subway officials chose the lesser of the two evils today.

Arbitration by the transit commission between the Interborough Rapid Transit company, operators of the city's principal subway lines and the motormen and switchmen who broke away from the union recognized by the company and demanded more pay on penalty of a strike at midnight today was declined by the subway company today.

The decision was made at a meeting between President Frank Hedley of the Interborough and agents of the Brotherhood of Interborough employes, the recognized union, at which Mr. Hedley was told that arbitration with the new union would mean a general departure from the service of brotherhood members.

The new union, known as the Consolidated Railway Workers of Greater New York has claimed a membership of more than 750 although the company places the figure close to 400.

It was announced today that several hundred strike-breakers imported from Boston, Chicago and Philadelphia were being housed in an uptown carbarn ready to take over the operation of the subways on a moment's notice.

When the strike loomed as a probability the transit commission offered to act in the role of arbitrator and after day long balloting Saturday, the members of the new union agreed to this plan. Officials of the company, however, met with the general committee of the brotherhood today and after a two and a half hour session decided that arbitration was impossible.

After today's meeting President Hedley wrote to the transit commission, refusing the arbitration offer, but suggesting that the commission ask the motormen and switchmen to defer the strike until after public hearings have been held by the commission to study the causes for the present situation.

As soon as the interborough's decision not to arbitrate was announced, members of the union met and unanimously reaffirmed their decision to strike.

In a last minute effort to gain their demands without striking, strike leaders met with members of the transit commission and evolved a new arbitration plan. It was suggested that an arbitration board of three men be chosen, one by the striking union, one by the company and one by both. If both could not agree the third member might be chosen by a supreme court justice.

The second arbitration plan, however, was rejected just as the first had been.

AMERICAN SOCIETY OBSERVES FOURTH IN LONDON

LONDON, July 5.—(AP)—The American society in London tonight held its annual reunion of Americans in Great Britain — a celebration particularly brilliant because it signalized the 150th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

Leading Americans in England and English members of society and the diplomatic corps made up the guests at the Hotel Savoy where Ambassador Houghton presided. Messages of greeting from President Coolidge and Secretary of State Kellogg were read by Ambassador Houghton, while Dr. Kellogg Murray Butler, president of Columbia university responded to the toast "the day we celebrate."

President Coolidge's message was as follows:

"The anually recurring observation of Independence day by the American society in London has always been gratifying to me as an evidence of that love of country and devotion which seems to be innate and enduring in American citizens and to control them wherever they may be. It is especially pleasing that on this occasion, when in every city, town and hamlet in the United States the people are celebrating the sesqui-centennial of the signing of the Declaration of Independence, their fellow citizens in a foreign land are joining with them in commemorating that great event which gave birth to a union dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal and founded upon undying principles of right and justice, and in extolling the wisdom of our forefathers which made this nation our heritage. I am happy to extend to the members of the society and their guests my cordial greetings and best wishes."

Among the guests were Vice Admiral Roger Welles of the U. S. S. Pittsburgh, Commander Harvey Delano, Captain William C. Watts, naval attache in London, Canadian High Commissioner P. C. Larkin and the diplomatic representatives of Italy, China, Germany, Belgium, Columbia, Peru, Cuba, Mexico, Venezuela and Salvador.

Lady Astor and Viscountess Bryce were prominent among the ladies present.

FOUND FAKE MESSAGE IN SEALED BOTTLE

GREENWICH, July 5.—(AP)—The open season for fake messages appealing for aid, in sealed bottles set adrift in Long Island sound waters opened yesterday for the Greenwich police. It led to a wild goose chase.

Such a bottle was found on Pratt's Island, Darien, and turned over to Officer Woods, of New Canaan, who delivered it to the local police. The note read: "Am held a captive at Little Captain's Island. Send help" The name signed was May Dunn, 173 Sullivan street, Brooklyn

Several officers took time off to go to the island to search May Dunn was not there and was not known of. Later the Brooklyn police said 173 Sullivan street was a vacant lot.

WILL NOT SUBMIT TO DICTATION OF MOSCOW

CHICAGO, July 5—(AP)—The United States does not want any virus of communism in its system, James J. Davis, secretary of labor, declared today in an Independence day address before the closing meeting of the annual convention of the Loyal Order of Moose.

"The United States," he said, "is the first country in the world in which the common man was placed on terms of equality with the wealthy before the law.

"Communists will tell us that is not enough. They say that we must level all distinctions, that we must make all men rich or poor alike, that we must emulate th example of Russia.

"Our answer to them is that we will fight to the last drop of our blood before we will consent to submit to the dictation of Moscow.

"We believe in the America of Washington and Lincoln; in the America of the man who adopted the Declaration of Independence on the Fourth of July, 1776. It is our purpose to stand for the principles that have made America great."

AUTO FATALITIES SHOW INCREASE THROUGHOUT NATION

WASHINGTON, July 5.—(AP)—Automobile fatalities for the four week period ending June 19 from the returns by 78 cities reached a total of 549 as compared with 493 for the corresponding period in 1925, it was shown in the report issued by the department of commerce today. The daily averages for the two years for the four-week periods were 19.5 and 17.6 respectively.

New Haven, Bridgeport and Waterbury were the only cities which gave complete returns on automobile accidents to the department. There were five deaths in New Haven during the four weeks previous to June 19 this year and four in the corresponding period last year. The total number of deaths since the first of the year was 20. Bridgeport reported three deaths this year as compared with one for the same period last year; Waterbury two in 1926 and three in 1925.

The reserve officers at camp are from all parts of Connecticut and Rhode Island. They will remain until July 18. The programme will include drill, study and practical work.

J., on Staten Island sound, involving expenditure of about $5,000,000 by the termini company.

PRES. COOLIDGE SOUNDS WARNING AGAINST PAGAN MATERIALISM

PHILADELPHIA, July 5.—(AP)—The spirit of the fathers of the Republic was invoked by President Coolidge today in an address at the Sesqui-Centennial exposition commemorating the 150th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence.

Referring to the Declaration as a great spiritual document, whose principles were the result of the religious teachings of the preceding period, Mr. Coolidge said the real heart of the American government depended upon the heart of the people and that it was from that source that the nation must look for all genuine reform.

"We live in an age of science and of abounding accumulation of material things," he said. "These did not create our Declaration. Our Declaration created them. The things of the spirit come first. Unless we cling to that, all our material prosperity, overwhelming though it may appear, will turn to a barren scepter in our grasp. If we are to maintain the great heritage which has been bequeathed to us, we must be like-minded as the fathers who created it. We must not sink into a pagan materialism. We must cultivate the reverence which they had for the things that are holy. We must follow the spiritual and moral leadership which they showed. We must keep replenished, that they may glow with a more compelling flame, the altar fires before which they worshipped."

A passing reference to law observance was made by the president in discussing the responsibility of the people to the government.

"Of course the government can help to sustain ideals and can create institutions through which they can be the better observed, but their source by their very nature is in the people," he said. "The people have to bear their own responsibilities. There is no method by which that burden can be shifted to the government. It is not the enactment, but the observance of laws, that creates the character of a nation."

Yet, he added, "in the development of its institutions America can fairly claim that it has remained true to the principles which were declared 150 years ago. • • •

"If there is any one thing among us that is developed beyond question, it is self-government—the right of the people to rule. If there is any failure in respect to any of these principles, it is because there is a failure on the part of individuals to observe them. • • •

"Ours is a government of the people. It represents their will. Its officers may sometimes go astray, but that is not a reason for criticising the principles of our institutions. The real heart of the American government depends upon the heart of the people. • • •

"Under a system of popular government there will always be those who will seek for political preferment by clamoring for reform. While there is very little of this which is not sincere, there is a large portion that is not we" informed. In my opinion very little of just criticism can attach to the theories and principles of our institutions. There is far more danger of harm than there is hope of good in any radical changes. We do need a better knowledge of the foundations of government in general."

Arriving at 11 o'clock Mr. Coolidge was driven for four miles along Broad street and the exposition grounds to the stadium.

The First troop, Philadelphia City Cavalry, an organization which has escorted every president who has visited Philadelphia since the time of George Washington, acted as his escort while a battery of field pieces roared out the 21 gun national salute. Army airplanes soared overhead.

In passing through the exposition grounds, the presidential party stopped once, to enable Mrs. Coolidge to leave his automobile and inspect several of the buildings which are a reproduction of those that stood in colonial days on High street, now Market street, and which were occupied by delegates to the continental congress.

SUB. S-51 RAISED FROM OCEAN BED YESTERDAY

Ill Fated Submersible Rose Stern First at 2:05 p. m. Yesterday Bringing to a Successful Close One of the Greatest Engineering Feats Ever Undertaken by the Navy—Sailors Cheered as Broken Bridge of Undersea Craft Hove Into View—Accompanied by Salvage Fleet, Sub is Being Towed to Brooklyn Navy Yard.

SUBMARINE BASE, NEW LONDON, July 5.—(AP)—The S-51 which was sent to the bottom by the steamer City of Rome last September, with a lose of 33 lives, was raised to the surface by salvage operations at 2 p. m., eastern standard time, today.

A wireless message from the fleet which brought this word also said that the S-51 apparently was "all right."

An air of relief and satisfaction spread through the base today when the word was flashed through the air that the S-51 had been raised successfully.

New London was the home port of the craft, the members of its crew who perished in the vessel were friends of many of the men now stationed at the base, and for nearly a year the efforts to raise the vessel have given serious problems for the base to solve.

During the morning reports by radio to the base indicated that the raising of the submersible might again be postponed. A weather report from the U. S. S. Vestal at the scene of the salvaging operations told of a 28 knot wind with cloudy weather and showers.

Then came the report that air was being pumped into the pontoons and the base personnel knew that the zero hour had been reached. It was several hours later before another message was received but it was the one the officers and men had been waiting for. Less than a dozen words told the story, the message reading:

"Submarine S-51 came up at 2 o'clock. Apparently all right."

SUB ON WAY TO BROOKLYN NAVY YARD

U. S. S VESTAL, July 5.—(AP)—Manned by a phantom crew the U. S. submarine S-51 was floated back to the land of the living today.

Buoyed by 8 pontoons the submarine, which was sunk off Block Island last September with a loss of 33 lives, rose stern first to the surface at 5 minutes past two o'clock this afternoon. By three o'clock all of the submarine which normally rides above water was again in view for the first time since its collision with the steamer City of Rome.

As the broken bridge of the ill-fated undersea boat cleaved the surface of a choppy sea spontaneous cheers burst from the sailors who have worked for weeks on one of the greatest engineering feats ever accomplished by the navy.

As soon as the submarine was brought to the surface the funeral procession of the sailors who died when the S-51 sank started on its way to the Brooklyn navy yard, 151 miles away, at a 5 knot speed.

At the head of the procession were the tugs Sagamore and Iuka towing the S-51. A submarine hung close on each side of the disabled ship pumping air into the pontoons. At the rear was the mine sweeper Falcon and the Vestal. The other ships of the salvage fleet trailed along behind the great steel coffin believed to hold the bodies of 25 of the victoms of the disaster.

After the funeral cortege got well under way, all the salvage vessels except the Vestal, the Sagamore, the Iuka, the Falcon and the tugs Bagaduce and Chewink returned to New London The speed of the fleet was increased to 5 knots.

The vessels held a course along the coast of Long Island sound, in water about 60 feet deep, steering for Execution lleck and thence to Hell Gate It was planned to make no stops except in case of accident.

Officers directing the work said they were certain there were bodies inside the torn hulk of the S-51, and that they could probably be identified.

"Divers risked their lives last fall trying to remove one body wedged in a bunk in the battery room and I am sure others are inside," said Captain W. V. Tomb, commander of the Vestal.

The new course of the fleet is 121 miles long. The vessels will immediately go to the Brooklyn Navy yard drydock where some of the mothers of the victims are expected to be waiting

SUB LEAVES POINT JUDITH FOR BROOKLYN

SUBMARINE BASE, NEW LONDON, July 5.—(AP)—The submarine S-51, taken from its watery grave today by a naval salvaging fleet, sped tonight was on its way to the Brooklyn navy yard, according to word received at the submarine base here. Dispatches to the base indicated that the S-51 was making about five knots an hour and would be off this port between 4 and 5 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The body of Mrs. Tyler was recovered this afternoon.

Twelve injured persons are under treatment in a hospital, all of whom are expected to recover.

The cause of the explosion has not been fully determined, although S. H. Angelman of Wilmington, who built the craft and launched it three days ago, advanced the belief that the gasoline tanks had been ignited by a bursting gasoline line. Fifteen persons were aboard. Chaffee was among the injured.

NEW ENGLAND CELEBRATES INDEPENDENCE DAY

BOSTON, July 5—(AP)—The lord mayor of Weymouth, England, and the first man to fly over the north pole headed a long list of dignitaries to visit New England during this section's celebration of the 150th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

The glare of bonfires at midnight, pageants, parades and sports during the day and the flicker of fireworks this evening were time-honored devices to mark the day which had especial significance for half a dozen New England cities and towns.

Weymouth, Mass., played host to Lord Mayor Percy John A'Court, lord mayor of Weymouth, England, and his retinue. Historic Salem, the "Witch City" on the north shore swung into a week's celebration of its 300th birthday. Exeter, N. H., commemorated the fifth provincial congress' decision to act independently of the British crown while sitting there on January 5, 1776; and Boston turned out to welcome Lieut. Commander Richard E. Byrd, America's air explorer of the north.

Newport, R. I., unveiled a tablet commemorating the celebration of the first mass by a French army chaplain in the old colony house during the French occupation in revolutionary days.

A silken banner, an album "containing old prints and new photographs of the town" and "a message from Weymouth, England, to Weymouth, Mass." were presented by the English mayor in return, 300 Weymouth citizens in revolutionary costume re-enacted the battle of Grape Island to the boom and rattle of ancient cannon and muskets.

Exeter threw open many of its historic buildings, including Memorial hall, where John Langdon, of Portsmouth, pledged his gold and hogsheads of rum to finance the seige of Bennington.

Commander Byrd's home-coming reached a climax on Boston Common this afternoon in a public reception that followed a triumphal tour of the city. EX-CONGRESSMAN LONERGAN EULOGIZES JEFFERSON

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, July 5.—Some three hundred residents, including many children, met at the Chautauqua tent on Windham field at 7:30 o'clock last evening for a mass meeting and patriotic service. The program was in observance of the 150th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence and the oration on Thomas Jefferson, its author, was given by Attorney Augustine Lonergan of Hartford. Attorney Lonergan, who was in congress for over seven years during the World war period upheld his reputation as one of the most able orators in the state. The program opened with an excellent concert by the Italian Citizens' band, about 40 pieces, led by Professor Pasquale Puca of Norwich. Rev. A. Stanley Muirhead of the Methodist church, as master of ceremonies, introduced the band and Director Puca. Alderman William E. Jackson is manager of the organization. The concert closed with group singing of America. Rev. Mr. Muirhead was song leader. Passages from scripture were read by Rev. Davis W. Lovett of the Baptist church and Rev. Frederick C. Williams of St. Paul's Episcopal church led in prayer.

In his review of the memorable achievements of Thomas Jefferson whom he characterized as the greatest statesman that ever lived, Attorney Lonergan made a plea that all citizens understand and live Jefferson's almost divine doctrine that all men are created equal and that we should conduct our government on the principles of insuring to each life, liberty and the right to the pursuit of happiness. He asked for a larger exercise of our franchise as citizens, directing his request mainly to the women. He directed attention to Jefferson's word, "that all government derives its just powers from the consent of the governed." He sounded a warning against centralization of power and the existing dangers in the gradual elimination of state right in which Jefferson placed so much faith. As a member of the national Thomas Jefferson committee, Attorney Lonergan closed with an appeal for the Monticello fund. The meeting concluded with the singing of America.

A success since the opening night, the lawn fete for the benefit of St. Joseph's church held on the parish grounds, closed Monday night, with a record crowd in attendance. All the attractions were well patronized. During the fete snappy programs were presented under direction of Milo Lemus. Special dance numbers were by Ovide Bachand, Lorraine Turner and Harriet Ashton. The announcements were by Patrick A. Connor, chairman of the general committee of arrangements. The affair was for the benefit of the church decorating fund and although the exact amount could not be given Monday evening, the committee stated that the sum which will be netted was even larger than they had hoped to realize.

Funeral services for Philomene L'Heureux were held Monday morning, with a solemn high mass of requiem at St. Mary's church at 9 o'clock. Rev. J. H. Papillon, the pastor, was celebrant, Rev. H. C. Belec was deacon and Rev. E. M. Mathieu sub-deacon. Music was by a choir of ten voices, with Mrs. Joseph F. Gaudreau at the organ. Many friends and relatives attended the service and there were beautiful floral forms. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery. Rev. Father Papillon, assisted by Rev. Fathers Belec and Mathieu conducted the committal service. The bearers were Alphonse Chagnon, Alexis Caisse, Napoleon Deblois, Romouald Bergeron, Charles LaFleur and William Piche.

Mayor John C. Tracy, members of the common council and officials of the town of Windham have received a satisfactory demonstration of voting machines and according to all reports are inclined to propose their purchase by the electors. The machines cost $960 each. It is figured that if the town and city get together on the proposition, six of the machines would be necessary, one each for the first, third and fourth districts, two for the second and one in reserve. The lump cost would then be $5,760 to be divided in some manner between the two local governments. Special meetings of the town and city would be called to obtain the appropriation for the purchase.

Eugene Moriarty, son of Edward Moriarty of this city, complained to the local and state police Sunday that a Buick roadster, bearing the Connecticut registry number 98-070 had run into the rear end of his father's car which he was driving on the Coventry road, near Coventry depot and punctured a tire. Moriarty came to a stop at the one-way bridge over the Willimantic river to allow another car to pass, when the roadster came up from the rear and struck his machine. The driver of this car said that he would follow the local man to this city to straighten matters out. His car had sustained a leaking radiator in the collision. Moriarty stated that the roadster turned around and sped up the Stafford road, instead of following him. He gave chase, but lost track of it near Mansfield depot. The police are investigating.

DISTRICT EPWORTH LEAGUE RE-ELECTS ALL OFFICERS

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC CAMP GROUND, July 5—At nine o'clock Sunday morning a large audience gathered in the tabernacle for the love feast led by the dean, Dr. Chas. E. Spaulding of New London. After the opening hymns, Dr. Spaulding made a few earnest remarks concerning the privilege of knowing God intimately, also explaining the origin and meaning of the love feast, stating it began with the early Christians shortly after Pentecost. A large number of brief prayers were heard in favor of the worth while things Jesus Christ had brought into the lives of the several witnesses to his grace. Among others Bishop Richardson, who had come in, said, "I understand the language here." He offered the closing prayer and pronounced the benediction.

The love feast closed at 10 and after a half hour recess the congregation assembled for the first open air service of the season. The auditorium was well filled. Chorister Waitt had assembled a large chorus choir of mixed voices. Miss Marjorie Stephens, of Vernon, was pianist. Prayer was offered by Rev. Edward J. Ayres, retired minister of the New England Southern conference. The choir then rendered a fine anthem, "Unfold, Ye Portals." Scripture was read by Rev. B. O. Campbell, of Ludlow, Vt. As an offertory the chorus sang "To Thee, O Country," by Julius Eichberg, words by Mrs. John Lane. After "How Firm a Foundation" had been sung by the congregation Bishop Ernest G. Richardson, L. L. D., of the Atlanta area of the M. E. church, preached. His text was Revelation 16-18. He spoke eloquently of Christ as "King of kings, and Lord of lords." He spoke of three sorts of kings, absolute, autocratic, and constitutional. Jesus in all His actions and words as revealed in the Gospels, shows that He must be absolute Lord, and on no other terms. Now Chris' makes the laws of His government, and we have no right to pick and choose.

Some folks are fools, and say if God had never made the ten commandments, nor the U. S. government the 18th amendment, why we wouldn't want to break them. Who is to decide what we are to do with our lives and property?

At the close of this very interesting and practical sermon, the bishop offered prayer. "Crown Him Lord of All," was sung by the congregation and the benediction was pronounced by B. J. Richardson.

At one o'clock the campers assembled in the dining hall where a chicken dinner was served by Caterer Meyerhardt. Supper was served at 7:15 at the close of the final service of the institute.

The auditorium in the grove was again well filled for the preaching service at 3 o'clock. Responsive readings, led by Dean Spaulding including a patriotic song by the choir, "Our Land, O Lord, With Songs of Praise," by P. A. Schnecker, preceded prayer by Dr. Williams, of Albion college, Albion, Mich.

An offering was taken. "America's Message" was sung by the chorus.

To serve the present age,
My calling to fill,
h may it all my powers engage
To do my Master's will."

We must serve either this present e or none. The world is getting better and God has a special plan for ch soul to make it better still.

This is a wonderful world in which e live. Newspapers, radios, and the elephone or telegraph makes our influence far wider than ever. None of he old religious like confucianism Mohammedism, Buddhism, or Brahmanism can satisfy. There are many indications of weakening in these old religions, consequently vaster opportunities are opened up to the Christian church to bring to the world the only satisfying religion of Jesus Christ.

Yet the Methodist church's offerings toward this end shrank from $12,000,000 in 1924 to $8,000,000 in 1925, so that in India alone 1,300 ministers have been dismissed from service.

"Just as I Am, Thine Own to Be" was the closing hymn. Benediction was pronounced by Rev. A. S. Muirhead, of Willimantic.

The final service of the institute was held at 6 p. m. in the tabernacle. Communion was administered. Then came presentation of certificates of graduation to those entitled to them, who had taken the required number of studies during the five days of the institute. The closing address was by Dean Spaulding.

Saturday evening the tabernacle was well filled when the director of pageantry, Mrs. Robert A. T. Bigood of New London, put on a demonstration in form of a pantomime entitled "Miss Eppie Worth Leaguer. No Herald to Guide Her." Miss Gladys Newbury, of Norwich, was reader. The scene of the pantomme was in a printing office. "Miss Eppie Worth Leaguer" was Miss Ruth Skinner, of Stafford Springs. Property man was Albert Dalton of New London; office boy, Paul Genter, Norwich; editor, Arthur Krobe, South Manchester. Sir E. P. Worth Herald was impersonated by Samuel Crockett, South Manchester; the jester was George Greenlaw, Norwich; and the postman, Myron Burr, South Manchester. The messengers were Leora Hibbard, Manchester; Doris Wood, Gurleyville, and Eleanor Atwood, East Hartford.

After the pantomme the company adjourned to the playground where a campfire was blazing. Seated around this the young people sang favorite hymns from memory. After this there were earnest addresses given by Miss Mabel Pollard, deaconess from South Manchester; Rev. George E. Mitchell, pastor of Berkeley, R. I. Methodist Episcopal church; Rev. Buell O. Campbell, of Ludlow, Vt., returned missionary from South America, and Miss Esther V. Thurston, of South Manchester, a returned missionary from Japan.

At the close many young people took life-service cards, on which to record the sort of Christian work they wished to devote themselves to.

It was the most impressive service held during the entire week.

DANIELSON

ST. JAMES' PARISH FETE PROVES BIG HOLIDAY EVENT

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, July 5—Danielson's big event in observance of the Fourth was the St. James' parish affair on Paco field and on the parish grounds in the rear of the convent. Athletic events on Paco field engaged the attention of several hundred people in the forenoon and there was a great gathering for the clambake, prepared under the direction of King George Jacques of East Killingly and his staff. The tables on which the dinner was served were set out under the trees on the grounds Members of societies of the parish acted as waiters and other parish volunteers assisted in one way or another to make a very good success of the event. Preparations for the observance had been under way for weeks and attracted not only hundreds of members of the parish, but also a great many who are not members, and all enjoyed the very delightful affair.

ANDRE GENDREAU DIES WHILE WAITING FOR TRAIN

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, July 5—The body of Andre Gendreau, 45, who died suddenly in Foxboro, was brought here Monday afternoon in charge of Undertaker L. E. Kennedy and taken to the home of Mr. Gendreau's brother, Alfred, of Broad street.

Mr. Gendreau's death was sudden and a shock to his relatives here. He had been employed as a section hand by the N. Y. N. H. and H. R. R. company and had worked up to 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon. With the group of employes of which he was a member he was waiting about for a train when he became suddenly ill. The foreman applied first aid remedies, but these failed. A doctor was summoned, but before his arrival Mr. Gendreau was dead, having been ill but 15 minutes. Acute indigestion was given as the cause of death. His relatives here were reached through a message to Chief John McFarland, as Mr. Gendreau died so suddenly his fellow workers were unable to get information from him relative to his people.

Mr. Gendreau was a native of the province of Quebec, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Desire Gendreau, and came here with his parents 38 years ago last March. Up to about a year ago he had made his home in Danielson and for a considerable time was employed by the Kennedy corporation. He was unmarried.

Mr. Gendreau is survived by his mother, five brothers, Valare, Edmond, Alfred, Felix and Joseph and by three sisters, Mrs. Lida Bernier, Mrs. Wilbert LaFleur and Mrs. Lucy Baribeault.

WETHERBEE TAKEN TO JAIL IN DROWNED BABY CASE

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, July 5.—Coroner Arthur G. Bill was reluctant to talk Monday afternoon of the case involving the death of a new-born baby girl, taken from a cove of the river near Wilsonville, and of which Miss Agnes Pytka, 17, of Wilsonville, now held at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam, admits being the mother.

On Monday, Raymond Wetherbee, held without bail in connection with the case, which involves the tying of a rope around the child's waist and attaching a stone to one end of the rope, was transferred from the police station at Putnam to the county jail at Brooklyn. Wetherbee denies all knowledge of the affair that led to the child's death.

Coroner Bill has interviewed the girl-mother at the hospital, but would give out no statement as to many of the things he is supposed to have learned. State Officer Edward Streamens of the Danielson barracks, who has been at work on the case, would not amplify in any great degree the facts about the case that appeared in a special to The Bulletin Monday, under a Putnam date line. He did say that much pressure had to be brought on the Pytka girl before she would give even the meagre information that the officer possessed when he started out on the needle-in-the-hay stack problem of hunting a long area of river shore and cove for the body of the child and many weary hours of work was put in before it was recovered. The child, a little girl, was fully formed and weighed a few ounces over eight pounds. Dr. R. C. Paine, medical examiner of the town of Thompson, viewed the body and obtained such other information pertaining to it as will be required by the coroner in handling the case.

Coroner Bill said Monday afternoon that Wetherbee may be held at the county jail as long as a week before he is brought out to testify. This is regarded as being due to the necessity of awaiting the sufficient recovery of the Pytka girl to permit her leaving the hospital to testify at the inquest the coroner will conduct. The girl-mother was in a pitiable state following the unattended birth of her child and exposure she is said to have suffered upon thereafter. She was brought to the Putnam hospital in a Webster ambulance and for a time her condition was regarded as critical. Her recovery is steady from day to day and it is possible she will be able to appear at an inquest as early as a week hence, though the coroner has not fixed any definite date for this.

Wetherbee, who is 23, lives in North Grosvenordale. No one connected with the case in an official way will talk about how he came to be taken into custody or as to what he will be asked about at the coroner's inquest. That he is held without bail is taken as indicative that officials are taking no chances of his not being on hand for questioning when the time comes.

There will be a session of the court this (Tuesday) morning to deal with the cases of some automobile drivers who will be charged with either reckless driving or with failure to obey orders of police officers.

And have you seen the two-car driver? There are many of him. He is the fellow who acts for you after he stops in the road ahead of you, giving you the signal to come on — many times when you will get into a head-on collision if you obey his beckoning sign. Lots of people still believe its a whale of a job to drive one machine in the traffic of these days and keep out of accidents. Helping the other fellow drive his, increases the complications.

PUTNAM

CHARLES T. THAYER BEGINS 31ST YEAR WITH S. N. E. T. CO.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, July 5—Charles T. Thayer, repair and installation man of the S. N. E. Telephone company of the Putnam division has ended 30 years of consecutive service with the company and has now begun on his 31st year and hopes to continue for many more.

Mr. Thayer began work with the company as a switchboard operator at Danielson, July 1, 1896. After leaving Danielson he worked in various telephone districts, coming to Putnam 21 years ago.

He has been a member of the Putnam Fire department for many years and is the very efficient superintendent of the fire alarm system. Part of his job is to climb to the belfries of St. Mary's. Second Congregational and Methodist churches to wind the alarms, after a certain number of strokes has caused them to need rewinding. This exercise, especially at St. Mary's where there is a 40 foot ladder helps to keep him physically fit.

FOURTH OF JULY COSTUME BALL HELD AT THE REAM ESTATE

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, July 5—One of the events of the Fourth of July festivities in this vicinity was the large costume ball given by Mr. and Mrs. Anastace Vonslatsky in the upper stable of Carolyn hall, on the Ream estate. Thompson Mrs. Vonslatsky was formerly Miss Marion Ream, daughter of the late Mr and Mrs. Norman B. Ream. Guests came in fancy costumes, wearing masks, which were removed at midnight. There were guests from Pomfret, Thompson, Woodstock, Putnam and Webster.

Funeral services for Mrs. Chester M Elliott were held Sunday afternoon at 3:30 at her home on South Main street, conducted by Rev. James F. English pastor of the Second Congregational church, and were largely attended. Burial was in Grove street cemetery. The bearers were Charles Elliott of Ridgeway, N. J., Myron Elliott of Thompson, Rupert Vaughn of Norwich and Lawrence Weighner, of Worcester.

A barn on George street caught fire Monday afternoon, supposedly from a Fourth of July explosive. The entire fire department was called out to extinguish the blaze. The fire, however, died out of itself within a few minutes before any of the motor trucks had reached the barn.

At five o'clock the fire department was called out for the second time by reason of a fire on Chapman street. The fire was extinguished by the use of chemicals. The damage was slight.

Monday the holiday was generally observed here. The stores were closed and as the weather was fine, although cool, many took advantage of the opportunity to visit the beaches. There was no public demonstration other than firecrackers and other fireworks. Flags were displayed from many private houses and the Shenandoah system was in general use.

Mrs. J. S. Cogswell of Providence a former resident of Putnam, has been the guest of Misses Lillian and Marion Warren of Grand View.

Miss Clara Keller of Harrisburg, Pa., is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Graydon Sharpe on Grove street. Miss Keller expects to spend the summer in Putnam.

At Woodstock avenue and Milton street, a new fire alarm box has been installed, No. 43, and a good record was made at a recent test. The alarm was rung just as the town clock was rung at 7 o'clock (Standard time.) The department made a record get-away and was on the move before the alarm had rung around once. The following time was made to the box. No. 1 made it in 2 minutes and 22 seconds. The Hook and Ladder made it in 2 minutes and 33 seconds. No. 2 in 3 minutes and 20 seconds. The distance from the Fire headquarters on Union square to the box is exactly one mile to the box. The chief, all of the firemen and a good representative from each of the three companies were on hand, although the alarm was pulled without the knowledge that it was to be pulled.

Wednesday, July 14, is to be neighbors' night at Wolf Den grange, Pomfret. Senexet grange and Brooklyn grange are to be guests.

News has been received here of the ordination of Rev. Leo Paradis, well known in Putnam and who formerly lived at North Grosvenordale. He was ordained in Joliette, P. Q., by Mgr Forbes. He will sing his first high mass in Woonsocket after which a reception and banquet will be given at Mt. St Charles' school. A number of relatives in this vicinity will attend the ceremonies.

Miss Josephine Grosvenor spent the week end and the holiday with relatives in Boston and vicinity.

Robert McCram of Providence, and his niece, Miss Ellen Dolan, who has been caring for him for the past eight months are at Miss Dolan's home on Chapman street for the week.

Miss Mary Conner of Main street is spending the vacation with her brothers, James and Francis Connor at Detroit, Mich.

Miss Angeline Heartz, a former teacher of French at Putnam high school has been the guest of Mrs Genevieve Letters.

Mrs. John Reardon and two children Mary and John Jr., of Hartford have returned to their home, after a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Byron Lamondy of School street.

Miss Dorothy Rand of North Brookfield, Mass., has been the guest of Miss Alice Andrews.

Miss Carrie B. Gawcolgne of South Main street and Miss Ella I. Ballard of Thompson left a few days ago for Quebec from which port they will sail for a two months trip abroad.

NO MORE PILES

Dr. J. S. Leonhardt discovered the cause of piles to be blood congestion in the lower bowel. That's why cutting and greasy ointments fail. His prescription, HEM-ROID, absolutely removes the cause, and brings quick relief, or costs nothing at Lee & Osgood Co. and good druggists everywhere.

WESTERLY

HOLIDAY OBSERVANCE INCLUDED ST. MICHAEL'S FAIR

(Special to the Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., July 5—Monday passed without either a minor or major mishap or accident, so far as injuries sustained from fireworks or automobile accidents were concerned. The day began with fine weather and so continued, with hardly a cloud in the sky all day. The celebration was ushered in with the noisy explosion of firecrackers, torpedoes and bombs, especially on the West Side in Pawcatuck, where Patrolman Adin R. Sheldon had to warn several too lusty celebrators.

The day proved well adapted for the Shenandoah uniform flag display on the business streets of Westerly and Pawcatuck, a south wind extended the flags to best advantage. Lines of automobiles passed between them bound for the beaches of Watch Hill, Pleasant View, Atlantic Beach, Weekapaug and the eastward. Electric cars from New London and busses from Norwich brought picnic parties and individuals who thronged the streets until the Mooney busses carried them to the beaches. Manufacturing plants in Westerly generally were shut down over the week end, merchants did not open their stores Monday. Drug stores observed holiday hours by closing at noon and opening in the evening from 6 until 9. Fireworks dealers reported their supply of explosives nearly sold out. Near noon on the business streets through town the auto traffic had lessened very preceptably and jitneymen amused themselves by hurling torpedoes at rival stands. Just before 11 o'clock the drum corps of St. Michael's Boy Scouts, in their West Point cadet uniforms marched into Dixon square and back into Pawcatuck, to attend the St. Michael's K. of C. fair held in the Grove. At the Westerly post office the general delivery, stamp and carriers' windows were open for a few hours in the morning. The American Railway express office was open for perishable deliveries up to noon. The baggage room at the Westerly station of the New Haven railroad at night was piled high with the baggage of incoming Watch Hill cottage colonists and hotel guests and with baggage bound to the neighboring beaches.

Attendance at the beaches Monday in some cases was reported as not so great as on the previous Sunday but the difference would have been hard to detect. Surf bathing, boating, fishing and golfing at the Misquamicut and Winnapaug Golf clubs drew the large number to the seaside.

The practice of young boys seizing hand baggage from passengers alighting from express trains at Westerly station received a set-back Monday afternoon. An irate chauffeur whose patience had been tried on previous occasions by having his people's baggage grabbed, collared one of the youths and held him. The baggagemaster and ticket clerk soon put in an appearance and the boy with his companions was given to understand that the practice must cease or the lads would be turned over to the railroad police.

Neither Westerly nor Pawcatuck Fire department was called upon to respond to an alarm for fire over the Fourth of July holiday this year, a rather unusual occurance. At the June meeting of the Westerly town council an ordinance was passed which, restricted the storage of rubbish within 30 feet of highways, also permits are required from fire wardens for the building or starting of fires in the open. In former years it has been the custom of the fire chief in Westerly and his assistant engineers to make a personal canvass of the business district and warn offending store keepers. In Pawcatuck the fire wardens have also gone about and warned people where it was thought there existed a fire hazard.

Arthur Novogroski, who is under treatment in a Massachusetts hospital in Boston for an infected finger, was in Westerly Sunday to visit his mother, Mrs. Max Novogroski, on her birthday and returned to the hospital Monday morning.

The monthly session of Westerly town council, held the first Monday of each month, was not held Monday because of the Fourth of July holiday. At the June meeting of the council it was voted not to hold it on the following day, but on Monday, July 12th.

William H. Lyons and family of Chicago, arrived in Westerly Monday afternoon from Boston and proceeded to Watch Hill, to pass a summer vacation with Mr. Lyons' father, D. L. Lyons, at Cove Edge cottage.

Charles L. Neeley of Portchester, N. Y., formerly employed in the gas department of the Westerly Light and Power company, was a Westerly visitor over the Fourth of July holiday.

Trainmaster William J. Smith of the New Haven railroad was a New-London business visitor Monday afternoon.

Through express trains on the New Haven railroad, making the Westerly station stop, bound east and west Monday afternoon and evening were operated in several sections to accommodate vacationists. The Seashore special west-bound usually operated on Monday mornings early, made the run this (Tuesday) morning, for the benefit of returning Watch Hill and Weekapaug guests New York bound.

A detachment from Battery E, 243rd, R. I. C. A. C. (H. D.), Capt. John F. Datson, from the Westerly state armory erected a tent Monday afternoon on the grounds of the new building to be erected by the South County Public Service company, on High street, formerly the property of Dr. M. H. Scanlon. An effort is being made to recruit the local battery to full strength before it leaves Westerly Saturday, July 24th, when the regiment begins its tour of duty at Fort Wright, Fishers Island.

The religious day school at Pawcatuck Seventh Day Baptist church begins today (Tuesday) for a term of two weeks, with Miss Florence Barton of Shiloh, N. J., director.

JEWETT CITY

BAR HARBOR EXPRESSES TO BRING BOROUGH MAIL

(Special to the Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, July 5—Beginning this week, the Bar Harbor express, east and west, will leave mail for Jewett City at the local station during the night. The night trick operator will lock the pouch in his custody until the post office opens at 5:30.

The 4th of July, in the borough was unusually quiet, and for the first time within the memory of the oldest inhabitant no bells were rung at sunrise. Falling regularly on Sunday, the bell ringing schedule missed, and the pleasing custom failed for this time.

For the last two evening there has been no end of fun at the Finn theatre, when the big 4th of July parade of a year ago was reproduced upon the screen. Crowded houses laughed till they cried to see themselves again. Frisky fat Fatima with leaping Lena and nervous Nellie seemed to appear the same. Dan Finn strode along eating the same peanut, with young Dan in the foreground. The hair of some of the committee of arrangements sitting on the town house wall, could hardly have turned whiter than then. Maxcey, McNico and Schleffer, look as grand today. Three scores of Jewett City's handsomest girls, that adorned the many georgeous floats, have lost none of their charms. No change is to be detected, except that a few have married. The prize winning swan, with little Miss McNico holding the ribbon streamers was every bit as graceful, while the second money float, the Baptist church work of art, went down over the railroad track, back end first.

Mrs. William Chamberlain left Saturday morning for Worcester where she will undergo an operation for her eye.

Local federal employes, including the postoffice clerks, the R. F. D. man, and railway mail service employes are much pleased with the intelligence received Monday, that among the 162 last minute bills signed by President Coolidge is listed the federal retirement bill with a maximum annuity of $1,000, dating from the year of automatic retirement, at the age limit prescribed by the government.

Among those present at the burial of Calvin Briggs, Friday, was one of his brothers Sanford Briggs of Greene, R. I. While here Mr. Briggs met Charles H. Ray a local resident, who, 45 years ago was master of Mt. Vernon lodge No. 75, F. & A. M. During that year Mr. Ray raised Mr. Briggs to the degree of Master Mason. The men have not met since The former master is 85 and the former candidate 10 years his junior.

The fifth of July, made a record here as being the all-round finest day of the summer. Beginning with a temperature at 5 a. m. of 56 degrees the weather all day was mild for the many sorts of enjoyment that met with favor.

Dan Morgan again proves his right to the title of Griswold's potato king. For the 4th from his big fields just south of the borough line, he dug several bushels of the finest ever.

Pearley Melvin picked a peck and more of ripe peas the last week in June.

Mrs. George Strickland and daughter of New Britain have been guests of their cousin, Mrs. Earl S. Hiscox.

Chautauqua opened at Ashland park Monday. The program in the afternoon was given by the International Trio, Miss Ethel Walker, soprano, Dolly Stewart, composer, pianist and entertainer and Hyman Adler, violinist. Miss Walker's sweet soprano voice and perfect enunciation won the admiration of the audience, as did Miss Stewart's children's song monologues. Mr. Adler, who is not yet 21, played with exceptional skill and mastery of technique. In the evening they gave an equally pleasing program. The lecture was by Dr. N. G. Poon Chew, on China and World Peace. He delivered a most eloquent address demonstrating his desire for a better understanding between America and China, in a most scholarly and humorous way. He is called the Chinese Mark Twain. Miss Fitch is the superintendent, and Miss Robb is junior superintendent. Miss Ellen Prior will be the accompanist for the Liberty Bell to be given by the children. Their Junior Town meets every morning.

The Baptist church has decided to omit the mid-week meeting Wednesday evening in favor of Chautauqua.

Finn's tonight. Geo. O'Brien and Anita Stewart in "Rustling For Cupid." Also last showing of 1925 Parade Reel. —Adv.

From the Baptist pulpit Sunday morning Rev. E. E. Scates, in connection with a fine patriotic address, mentioned the fact, that four years had passed since he came from Vermont to this pastorate. In telling his people of this pleasurable term, he had only that to recall which showed apparent benefit to both.

Several members were of the opinion Monday, that if straws tell the direction of the wind, a report from the congregation would show equal estimates of good fellowship and harmony.

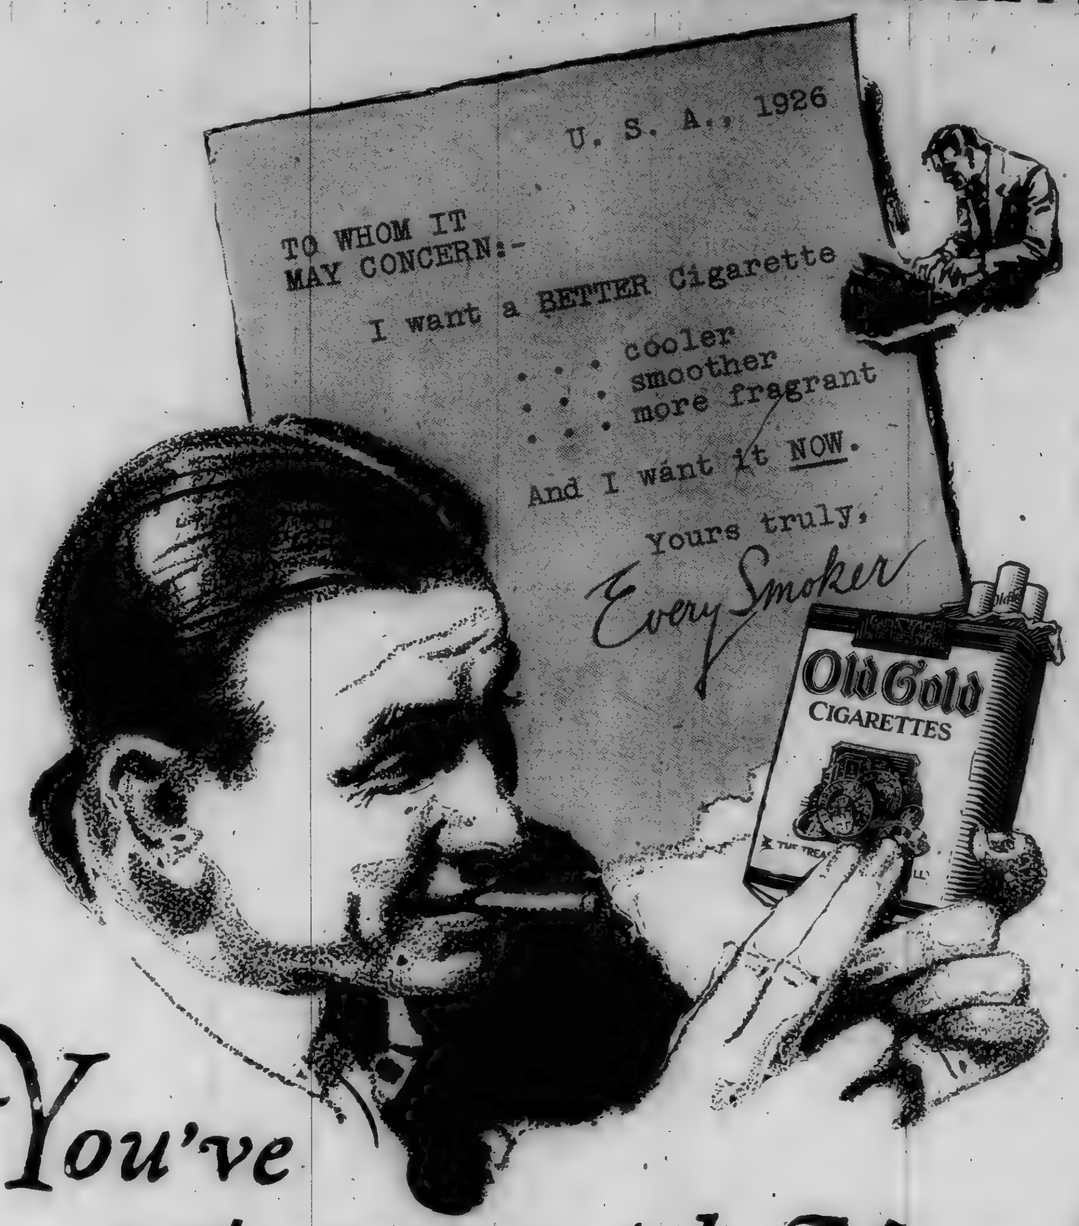
THE DAWN OF A BETTER CIGARETTE



You've got your wish, Man!

You asked us for a better cigarette.

And we asked you . . . the American smoker . . . tens of thousands of you . . . to tell us just what you wanted in this cigarette.

"Give us a cigarette that won't be too hot," said some of you.

"A cigarette that won't burn too fast," said others.

"A cigarette that won't parch the throat," said still others.

So we took off our coats and went to work, throwing all the skill of America's most experienced tobacco organization into the job.

After countless tests of blend after blend, we hit it!

A cigarette matching every item in your order . . .

A cooler cigarette . . . a smoother cigarette . . . yielding new flavor delight. Velvet to the tongue and soothing to the throat.

A new quality in cigarette enjoyment.

We called it OLD GOLD . . . to make its name express its solid quality standards.

THE S-51 RAISED

Through persistent efforts the navy has demonstrated that its methods were correct and that great obstacles can be overcome in raising submarines in deep water. In the bringing of the S-51 to the surface a long time has been required, but few appreciate the great amount of work involved and the difficulties encountered in tackling such a proposition at such a great depth, governed as the work must be by the weather conditions.

With slight idea of what was involved, but relying upon the fact that because seemingly large jobs can be accomplished in quick time in these days, there was a demand just after the S-51 went to the bottom that it be lifted immediately that no delay be tolerated and there were some disposed to criticize because facilities were not maintained for just such operations before it was known what would be required.

Bringing the underwater boat to the surface has been a big engineering task. Only those who have participated in it can fully appreciate just what has been encountered for while it may seem simple enough to read about the placing of pontoons under the craft and pumping them full of air to lift the sub there have been serious obstacles to contend with and to the navy must go the full credit for the success.

That there was a slip at the first attempt simply confirmed the belief that the problem was being tackled in the proper manner. This has now been substantiated. The S-51 is not only afloat and on its way to the Brooklyn navy yard to be dry docked for the delivery of its dead but there is the possibility that the craft will be found to be in condition to be fitted out for further service. There was nothing structurally wrong with the submarine that caused it to go to the bottom. The blame rests entirely outside of the vessel which was struck a death blow and the crew was caught under water like rats in a trap, helpless and no one able to render assistance from the outside. Whether time and science will develop a quick method of escape under such circumstances remains to be seen. It is to be hoped it will not be long delayed.

SWIMMING IS MANDATORY

Several educational institutions in this country have reached the conclusion that there is an importance attached to knowing how to swim for all who are physically able that makes it wise to demand efficiency in that direction as part of the college requirements. There are times when that bit of information stands between life and death and there is certainly no better way of fortifying oneself than by knowing how to take care of oneself in the water.

Endorsement is given to this view by the government of Sweden in which country it will be necessary hereafter for everybody to know how to swim according to an order just issued. Preference will be given to those who can swim and those who cannot will neither receive their diplomas nor be named to official positions.

Sweden is aroused to the importance of preventing the many drownings which occur there each year where the average runs about 340 a year. It isn't to be supposed that all drownings in Sweden or elsewhere are preventable through persons knowing how to swim. Many of them are, however, and it is important that each one should be taught what to do and how to do it in case the emergency arises in the water it is a case of swim or sink.

It is a fine thing that all who are physically able should know how to swim whether they are inclined by their employment to make use of it or it is one of those things that a person might go through life and not need but like many other matters on which a certain amount of education is obtained it is greatly appreciated whenever the opportunity arises to make use of it.

Sweden has been moved by the same reasons that educational institutions have. Certainly the thousands of lives that are lost by drowning each year are worth saving and whatever percentage of the drownings can be prevented the time and expense involved in learning how to swim will be in every way justified. Sweden is moving in a manner to materially reduce the number of drownings in that country within a few years.

AIDING CRIMINALS, DISREGARDING PUBLIC

Not so very long ago New York had the limelight turned on it because of the manner in which a noted criminal was about to be sent out of prison on parole regardless of his character and record. It followed a case of even more prominence where a notorious labor leader was released before he had served his minimum sentence.

It was a disclosure of the easy going manner in which the paroling and pardoning of prisoners was being done, in spite of the large amount of crime and the additional menace which was thus created for the public. There was also a report regarding the many commutations of sentence and the numerous pardons which were granted by the governor.

All these things come to mind as a well known convict known as "Bum" Rodgers has been recognized from his picture as the leader of the gang that held up Roosevelt hospital last week and got away with a large part of the payroll, and attention is called to the fact that in spite of his criminal career of 32 years during which time he has been repeatedly sentenced to reformatories and pententiaries he has made numerous escapes, served but little time and repeatedly got favors from the parole board and the prison authorities.

What is the use of the police authorities endeavoring to catch criminals if they are going to be quickly turned loose again to prey upon the public? The series of cases in New York state has shown the manner in which the parole law is in operation, the apparent disposition of the parole board to follow the easiest course and to shoulder no responsibility for public protection. It reveals one of the reasons why there is so much crime and clearly indicates that leniency is having a contributing influence for more crime. Had Rodgers like many others been given different treatment he would not have been at liberty to rob the hospital and others would not have had the chance to commit murder and other crimes, of which there is too much without having it encouraged by the unjustified leniency of those who seem to be serving the criminals rather than the law abiding public.

PONZI'S PLEA

How Ponzi regards the manner in which he has been violating the law and taking advantage of the gullible is interestingly displayed in the appeal which he makes to the governor of Massachusetts for clemency.

Ponzi wants to escape prosecution. He wants to have the authorities let him alone so that he can continue his practices wherever he considers the field to be the most promising. He doesn't favor the idea of paying the penalty for what he has done and he isn't afraid to ask for considerate treatment.

But what is there about the conduct of Ponzi and his schemes for getting other people's money that entitles him to any such treatment? The governor of Massachusetts by his answer shows that there is none, that there is no disposition to display leniency where leniency is not deserved.

Ponzi would like the privilege of getting out of the country instead of paying any penalty for what he has done. That would be a fine way for all those who violate the law to escape paying the price. It would be like telling others to follow Ponzi's method, get all that is possible and then get across the border. There may be no real desire to have Ponzi remain in this country any longer than it is necessary for him to pay his obligations to the law, but there is little likelihood that he will be able to dodge that which the Bay State considers should be imposed. He has felt that he had a right to ask for kind and partial treatment but there was no foundation for it in his treatment of the public.

EMILE COUE

"Every day in every way I am getting better and better." With that declaration Emile Coue took the country by storm. His words were on everyone's lips. He got others to thinking as he did and he unquestionably was able during his life time, by his methods, to minister to many who needed just such treatment as he was able to give.

His aim was to get the patient to exercise his will in his own behalf. He was an optimist who recognized the benefit of such a doctrine and desired to impart it to the world. In the belief that the state of mind had much to do with ills and their cure he was probably right in a great many instances.

Coue certainly wasn't engaged in the distribution of nostrums to the world at fancy prices and the guaranteeing of absolute cures. Whether he really prevented those who actually needed medical treatment from obtaining such is not known, but only from that possibility could it be said that he was in any way setting forth a doctrine that was detrimental to humanity.

Emile Coue didn't have a method of treatment that would permit him to pile up great wealth. It is not believed that he died wealthy except in the esteem of the great numbers who had found benefit in his system and who may have needed only just that bit of self effort, a determination to get well, to accomplish what other ministrations would not do, or to help what others were doing against great odds while the mind was not in tune. Emile Coue earned for himself a world wide reputation and many who were inclined to scoff at his ideas not infrequently found merit in his doctrine.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Have you decided to give up your vacation this year because we are not having warm enough weather?

The man on the corner says: Some people have a faint idea of what safety and sanity mean.

A huge derrick has disappeared at a Texas oil well. That is a customary happening with money at such places.

In England they hang female as well as male murderers. It is distressing but it stops the idea that there is a sex monopoly in such crimes.

The ambition at Geneva doesn't seem to be to get peace firmly established, but to keep the gun back of the door ready for instant use.

The idea that prevails in France of upsetting the debt negotiations with this country is not likely to make a good impression on this side of the Atlantic.

When Governor Smith of New York, in sending President Coolidge a New York state fishing license, said that the largest fish get away did he have in mind a certain convention that was held in New York city?

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to the Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, July 5—The adjournment of congress found the Connecticut delegation packed up and ready to leave for the home state. Six months of steady political and legislative grind has told on them, especially in the heat of a Washington summer which begins in May and ends only with the appearance of late frost in October.

Most of the delegation will spend their summer at home, and at ease, but Floor Leader John Q. Tilson will again serve as eastern manager of the national republican committee speakers' bureau with headquarters in New York. Col. Tilson intends to take a short rest at Lake Sunapee, New Hampshire, where he has a camp, and where the Tilson family will remain through the summer, even though the colonel must get back to New York in the interest of the 1926 campaign. All this in addition to keeping an eye out on his own campaign for reelection. Col. Tilson has made a fine record as floor leader and will continue to hold that office through the remainder of the 69th congress, and unquestionably as long as he represents the Connecticut district. His success as a leader has been unexcelled by any former leader of the house.

William Tyler Page, clerk of the national house of representatives is author of America's Creed and an authority on practically everything pertaining to congress. Mr. Page has been a member of the official staff of the house for 45 years, beginning as a page to members of congress and attaining the highest position of any person not a member, that of clerk of the house.

As congress drew close to adjournment Mr. Page was overwhelmed with duties, but at the same time was quite ready to answer questions regarding the changes in practice, customs and policies that had developed in the years of his occupancy of official positions in congress. Page began his "terms of service" while a kid in knickerbockers, so 45 years continuous service doesn't take him out of the middle age class. They say that newcomers are led to believe Page was born in the capitol so familiar is he with its doings. Forty five years ago the capitol was heated by open wood fires and Mr. Page says it was a man's job to keep them stocked with wood. Commenting on certain changed conditions Mr. Page said: "In the capitol we had no telephones, no electric lights, no steam or other heat except open fires on the hearth. Now the capitol has a complete hearing and electric system of its own, telephones that require a big corps of special operators. Senators and members instead of walking, or driving behind horses, now park hundreds of automobiles in the open spaces in the capitol grounds and nearby streets. Automatic traffic signals, have cropped up in the middle of the broad drives in the capitol grounds, and not a vestige is left of old time transportation of 45 years ago.

But in the clothes worn by senators and members we note an equal change. The long tailed Prince Albert coat, double breasted, and the high hat have now passed away. It took a brave legislator in those days, to appear at the capitol clothed in any other fashion than the conventional long black coat, stove-pipe hat, 'biled shirt' and heavy black tie, and in some instances, even 45 years ago, the high old fashioned neck stock was in evidence.

Today the sack coat and soft hat prevail, and except on state occasions the high silk hat is not seen about the capitol.

Mr. Page believes much legislation is put up to congress that should belong to state legislatures only. Commenting on criticisms of congress Mr. Page said: "Congress is exactly what the people of the country make it. It represents the people; it is no better or no worse than the people who elect it. Therefore it does not become American people to criticize it it is not a thing apart from themselves. It represents the people of the United States, and it is their own fault if they do not elect a congress that represents them."

Mr. Page is a good story teller and has at his tongues end many interesting anecdotes of past members of the house who afterwards rose to higher position, seven reaching the presidency.

Coolidge biographies continue to appear, and those written in the earlier days of the Coolidge administration are being revived as the next presidential campaign looms nearer and nearer. Here is a story contributed by a former school teacher of Mr. Coolidge, back in the days when the little red school up in the Vermont hills was the "seat of learning."

The story runs that "one day when Calvin was a very small boy, he came to school with very dirty hands and face. Some one said 'Cal, you are a dirty looking boy, you had better hustle and get washed up.' The president is said to have replied with a true Yankee drawl 'Well, I don't know about that; I've known folks to get drowned in water.'"

The next regular session of congress convenes the first Monday in December, but it is likely an extra session of the senate will be called by the middle of November to consider the impeachment case of Judge English. Whether or not the house must be convened at the same time is still a disputed question.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Born in Wheeling, W. Va., in 1876, employed as a drug clerk until his 25th year. Harry F. Sinclair, who reaches his fiftieth milestone today is listed among American multi-millionaires. Oil is the answer. When the oil boom started in Kansas and Oklahoma in 1901, Mr. Sinclair was compounding prescriptions and drawing soda on a drug store owned by his father in Independence, Kas. Foreseeing the great future of the industry the young drug clerk got into the business on the ground floor and soon displayed wonderful genius for organization and exploitation of oil properties. He extended his interests until within a few years they had become international in scope. Having made his pile, Mr. Sinclair moved to New York city, bought a racing stable and became one of the most conspicuous figures of the American turf.

MAKING HIM LIKE IT

"Good evenin', Mr. Armstrong. This is Nannie Lee Robinson speakin'.

"Did you? Now, I just wondeh how you knew it was me.

"Wel, I cehtinly think you're awfuly smart, known' it's me when I haven't said ha'dly more'n 'bout three wo'ds.

"Wel, I think you're sma't anyway and the' can't anybody persuade me you're not. And that's al the' is to it.

"Oh, I'm just fine—only I'm just so excited I just can't ha'dly talk. The most wondehful thing has happened. I just had to phone you right away to tel you about it and I was so sca'ed maybe you'd already sta'ted up heah and wouldn't be the'—

"Well, that's one thing I was goin' to tel you. You see I thought I'd let you know just how things ah and then you can decide for you'self—

"Well, how can I tel you if you keep interruptin' me? And anyway I was goin' to tell you first about the wondehful thing that's happened—

"Well, it's this—and I reckon you'll be just as excited as I am—motheh and I ah goin' to Europe! Now isn't that just too pehfectly lovely for wo'ds?"

"Now, you're just laughin' at me. Just imagine you carin' whether I'm heah or not when Chicago's so ful of girls that ah lots prettier and lots niceh than I am—

"Well, that cehtinly is sweet of you—

"Why, because you say those sort of nice things to everybody—?

"Well, I'll just try to believe you then—because—because—I cehtinly do want to.

"Wel, that cehtinly is darlin' of you. But, Mr. Armstrong, isn't it just too perfectly wondehful about motheh and be goin' to Europe? I'm just so exci-i-ted—

"O, just everywhe'—France and Italy and Belgium and maybe Switzerland if we have money enough—

"Why, only just this evenin'. You see I just got the lettah from my fatheh about a qua-teh of an hou' ago—

"Well, that's just what I phoned you for. You see, my fathah was comin' up heah on business and then somethin' happened so he couldn't and wen he found he couldn't of cou'se somebody had to come—it wouldn't eveh do just to not let the business get attended to—and so he sen' one of the boys from down home up heah to do it for him—and so, you see, it was this boy brought me the lettah—

"Yes, he's heah now. That's what I phoned to tel you. I thought you'd want to know just how things ah bef' you sta'ted up heah—

"Now, you know pehfectly wel I'm not tryin' to break a date with you. I don't eveh do those sort of things to anybody—and I certainly wouldn't to you—only I just thought it was only fair-ah to you to let you know. I'll be terribly disappointed if you decide to not come—.

"Now, just listen to you talk. I just don't know what you mean sayin' like fun I'll be disappointed—of cou'se I'll be disappointed. Only I thought if you should come maybe you'd be kinda hoahed listenin' to us talkin' about the boys and girls down home, and that's just al tha' is to it—

"Well, I certainly do want you, only I thought maybe if you'd rathe come some other night—

"Wel, I certainly should think you'd let me finish what I commenced to say, but of cou'se if you don't want to listen to me—

"Now, you sound a little kinda mo' like you'self. When you act so kinda—don't you know—stern and everything. I'm just sca'ed to death of you—truly I am. And al I can think of is wantin' to quit talkin' and hang up the receivah—

"Wel, what I was tryin' to say was I'd pehfectly ado' to have you some up right this minute and the only thought I had in the world in my mind was to let you decide for you'self—

"Truly, would you ratheh come some otheh night—maybe to-morreh night? And you haven't got any otheh engagement or anything and it won't be a bit inconvenient for you—

"Well, then, I truly and honestly night, too—would ratheh you'd come to-morreh

"Why, because—if you just have got to know—it's because if you should come tonight this boy that's heah now—he's the sweetest thing in the world and I love him to death—but this is how he does—he don't eveh stop talkin', and you and I wouldn't have a chance to say ha'dly a single wo'd to each otheh. And anyway I reckon what I want to do is to talk pretty near most al the time myself—I'm so crazy to tell you all about motheh and me goin' to Europe—

"Well, that cehtinly darlin' of you. I reckon I'll have to say good-by till tomorreh night or that boy from down home'l think I'm lost—but I can't ha'dly wait—truly I can't—I'm so crasy to tell you everything—

"Well, good night. You don't know how bl-a-a-d I'll be to see you tomorreh night!"—Exchange.

From Small Beginnings

Henry Nott, Bricklayer and Scholar

Most bricklayers do not become profound students. Henry Nott was an exception. He was a bricklayer and he made himself a master of Latin and of Greek and of other languages, and he translated a large part of the Bible into a language of which men had scarcely heard before his time. The story of Henry Nott shows what a man can do, provided he gains sufficient incentive.

Henry Nott was born in England in 1774. At that time the island to Tahiti was little known. It was simply one of the many savage islands of the South Seas. When missionaries were sent there to teach the natives it was thought best to send someone who was a practical worker. Henry Nott was sent to teach the art of making bricks and to direct the work of building houses.

For some time the young man carried on his work, while others did work that they considered higher. Then there came a time the missionaries became so afraid of the natives that many of them fled from the island. It was Henry Nott, the bricklayer, who became the leader of the few who stayed behind. Inspired by the very danger that had frightened the others, Henry Nott became an intrepid explorer of the islands, and a fervent missionary, willing to dare all things. Within five years he learned the Tahitian language so that he could preach in it and talk in it as well as in English.

When the natives again made trouble for the devoted men who had remained on the islands, burned down the houses in which the missionaries lived, and turned their type into bullets, every one fled except Henry Nott. He remained to continue the work that he had begun.

In order to translate the Bible into Tahitian he learned Latin and Greek, and other languages. He worked for 27 years on the translation that was to be his work. In spite of failing health and every difficulty he continued his work. In 1838 he had the joy of seeing 3,000 of his Tahitan Bibles brought to the island. He died in 1844 at the age of 70. History records no nobler story of any bricklayer.

IN DAY'S NEWS

NEW AMERICAN EXPEDITION PLANNED

The "Visitors Welcome" sign will be hung out this summer at Pueblo Bonito, Chaco Canyon, New Mexico. Dr. Neil M. Judd, leader of the National Geographic society expedition to Chaco Canyon, made this announcement on the eve of his departure from Washington for his sixth and probably last year of work at Pueblo Bonito. This prehistoric apartment house is now considered the most important site of Indian culture in all North America above the Rio Grande.

Eleven other experts in different fields, including geology, engineering, and archeology, will join the National geographic society's expedition at Chaco Canyon. Thirty Indians, blood descendants perhaps of the Indians who occupied Pueblo Bonito a thousand years ago, will be employed again to remove and sift the sand and debris that cover the outworks of the building.

Visitors can now be welcomed to Pueblo Bonito, which is the chief feature of Chaco Canyon National monument, because the work of removing the sand and debris from the main section of the ruins of this 800-room communal house is finished. The rooms and the sacred kivas, or ceremonial places, are safely preserved against the ravages of weather.

While Peubio Bonito is the largest of the ancient pueblos which is well preserved, and probably was the leading city in the civilization of the southwest in its pre-Columbus days, there are many other ruins to be seen in Chaco Canyon. The Valley of the Kings in Egypt has a counterpart in this valley of ancient pueblos.

Two objectives are before the National Geographic society expedition in the sixth year of its work. The first is to determine the age of the various civilizations which inhabited Pueblo Bonito. The second is to continue the stratigraphy. The latter consists in running trenches through ruins or debris piles. Last year a 400-foot trench 12 feet deep was run. In layers, or strata, were found the broken pottery and sweepings of the four different periods of occupancy. The stratigraphic work last year also uncovered some foundations for a broad extension of Peubio Bonito which was never carried out. These foundations were not previously suspected.

Fashions are the archeologists' key to periods. Just as we fix the Civil war period by hoop skirts and the 1890's by puff sleeves and pompadours, fashions in pottery which Dr. Judd his assistants can recover by trenching are important to round out the marvelous story which has been revealed by five years' explorations.

Since the Bonitians had no written language they had no way of recording time. It has been necessary to find another calendar to fix the age of the ruins. Time is fixed in trees by the annual rings. Dr. A. E. Douglass discovered certain cycles in tree ring formations which agree with sun spot cycles of 11 years. By examining ring records from samples taken from new cut western pine, and from Pueblo logs which the Indians salvaged from old Spanish missions and from logs found in Pueblo Bonito, a calendar has been constructed. But there is a break between the Pueblo Bonito logs and the mission logs. Some day the work this year will be directed to closing this gap and thus determining more exactly the age of this civilization.

Little Talks on Thrift

MAKING PROGRESS

To be thrifty in the truest sense is to thrive, to succeed, to make progress. Anything that interferes with this steady development is, therefore, a violation of thrift. Most or us give ample thought to our individual upbuilding in a material way, but there are subtle elements in life that all too often receive scant attention.

Two thousand years ago, Seneca, the philosopher, wrote: "Man is born of mutual assistance—you must live for another if you wish to live for yourself."

We cannot thrive or advance to the high levels of success through any creed of criticism.

How much time and energy are wasted in looking for the short-comings of others! How many opportunities of self-advancement are sacrificed on the altars of petty jealousy and fault finding!

It is within the meaning of thrift to say with Ruskin, "Do not think of your faults; still less of others' faults: look for what is good and strong, and try to imitate it. Your faults will drop off, like dead leaves, when their time comes."

Fault finding and criticism of our fellows is a habit that will grow steadily unless checked. Human imperfections are not difficult to find if we are disposed to waste time looking for them. But to do so is not only a sacrifice of time, but develops a reflex influence upon ourselves that is harmful.

Look only for the good in others. True character is not built on a framework of other men's frailties. Success will never come through picking at the faults of those about us.

Needless destructive criticism of others is a petty vice, but it weighs heavily in the balance of human affairs. Grow within yourself and thrive through an attitude of generous helpfulness to those about you.—American Society for Thrift.

FIRE APPARATUS BREAKS AXLE ON WAY TO RESPOND TO ALARM

Members of Engine Co. No. 1 had a fortunate escape from injury Monday afternoon while responding to the bell alarm, Box 16, for a fire on the loading platform at the rear of the Armour company building on Commerce street, when the right rear axle of the fire engine suddenly broke and let the truck drop to the cement.

The accident occurred just as Engine 1 entered Water street from Market street but the engine continued along the smooth cement surface thus allowing the men riding on the rear platform to keep their footing until it came to a stop about 100 feet down the street. The rear wheel, which weighs about 250 pounds rolled out from behind the engine after the break and jumped the sidewalk, narrowly missing three young men walking along the street, and crashed into the doorway of the Strand theatre, smashing the display case and ripping out a section of the doorway, then rolled back onto the sidewalk and into the highway. Good judgment on the part of the driver of the fire engine prevented a skid which might have caused the heavy machine to overturn.

Following the accident traffic was diverted through Commerce street and the heavy engine was jacked up and about 8:30 o'clock in the evening the engine was towed back to the central station.

Speaking of the accident later Monday evening, Chief Stanton mentioned that a large flaw in the axle had caused the accident which crippled the machine and that he would have representatives of the Seagrave company in Norwich today (Tuesday) from their office in New Haven, thus having the engine back in condition within a short time.

Chief Stanton was pleased when he ascertained that none of the firemen had been injured or shaken up and he stated that it was fortunate that the accident occurred at a point where there was no traffic and when the engine was not badly needed at a serious fire, as Engine 1 is an important company.

Until Engine 1 is in condition again the Pope-Hartford, which has been held to respond for serious fires, will be used on regular calls and Engine 3 of the Falls station will stand by for a relief.

The fire, for which a call was rung in from box 76, was quickly extinguished following the arrival of the firemen. The cause was unknown but Chief Stanton was of the belief that some occupant of the building had thrown a lighted cigarette onto the platform or that boys with fireworks had been careless in their use.

Engine 1, a Seagraves pumper, has given fine service since its purchase in 1916, ten years ago, this being the first serious accident to befall this company. When repairs have been made to the rear axle and housing, the pumper, the first motor driven pumper to be purchased by the city, will be back on the job to add its 750 gallon capacity to those of the other pumpers in protecting property in Norwich.

WHITON FAMILY MEMBERS MEET FOR ORGANIZATION

Whiton, New London; executive committee, the officers and G. W. Amidon, Stafford Springs; Mrs. Anna Dawley, Norwich; Miss Alice Gillette, Hartford.

The following were elected a genealogical committee: Miss Emily Chism, Westford; Miss Ellen Whiton, Waterbury; Miss Jennie Whiton, Hazardville; John M. Whiton, Plainfield, N. J.; Dr. Walter Whiton, Neabranic, N. J.; G. W. Whiton, Erie, Pa.; Fred Whiton, New York; Ernest Bach, Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Mary F. Whiton Shipman, New London; Miss Flora Whiton, Los Angeles, Cal.

At the meeting of Whiton descendants, held at 10 a. m., there was registration and enrollment of those present, who numbered 85. A basket luncheon was eaten at noon. The meeting for organization of the association was called to order at 1 p. m. with C. W. Whiton of New London, chairman of the organization committee, in the chair. The report of the committee was read by Mrs. Gowdy and the committee's recommendations were adopted. There were also reports of the genealogical committee, the treasurer and the registrar. A group picture was taken.

The executive committee was instructed to formulate a constitution and by-laws to govern the association, to be presented for adoption at the next meeting. It was voted to meet annually on the Fourth of July, the executive committee to select the place for the meeting in 1927. Addresses were made by F. W. Whiton, William H. Hall, Mrs. Gowdy, E. L. Whiton and others, and the association adjourned at 4 p. m.

UNDER ARREST AFTER FRANKLIN ST. CRASH

Joseph P. Gadle, Jr., of 195 Central avenue was placed under arrest on the charge of operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor this (Tuesday) morning about 1 o'clock after the Nash sedan he was driving on Franklin street had crashed into the Studebaker touring car owned and driven by Frank Delleo of 15 Platt avenue.

The accident happened about opposite the Troy laundry where Delleo was driving north on the street and Gadle was coming in the opposite direction. The Delleo car had its left front wheel crushed, axle bent, windshield broken and other damage. Gadle's car received the force of the blow on the front fender and was little damaged. A small boy, Mike Delleo, 6, received cuts on his chin and face from broken glass from the windshield on the Delleo machine.

After the collision, members of the Delleo party came to Franklin square looking for a policeman and found Officer P. Sheehan, who placed Gadle under arrest and drove his machine to police headquarters.

DECLINED TO TELL DRIVER OF MACHINE

When Joseph Albert Jones, 26, of North Stonington, came to police headquarters Monday night to report an automobile collision in Bozrahville, it was disclosed that he was driving a Chevrolet machine to which he had affixed the registration plates that had been issued for his Ford car. Accordingly he was held on the charge of operating an automobile with false registration.

Jone's trouble arose through his desire to conceal the identity of the woman driver who, he said, was driving his car, under his instruction, at the time it ran into a Cadillac machine in Bozrahville. He said he could not tell who the owner of the Cadillac was, and when asked the name of the operator of his car said he did not know although he admitted having had her out for instruction more than once. Investigation by the police disclosed that the Jones machine, which was a Chevrolet, was carrying license plates that had been issued for a Ford.

Smashed Two Broadway Windows

The explosion of a small firecracker or bomb thrown from a passing automobile about 4 o'clock Monday morning in lower Broadway broke the glass in two windows in the Del-Hoff hotel and the Martin house; both on the second floor, and also shattered the electric light bulb at the front entrance of Theodore Loewenberg's store.

The automobile party made its escape before the number of the machine could be secured.

One woman who does a great deal of sewing has a padded covered brick to which she pins any sewing that needs to be held taut while handwork is being done. It is placed on the table with the rest of her sewing articles, and I can assure you it looks a lot more comfortable than constant bending over one's knees.

SEVEN YEARS PERFECT AT NOANK SCHOOL

(Special to the Bulletin)

NOANK, July 6—In a stuccoed school house in the village of Noank, where 200 pupils were enrolled during the past year is a boy, Leo Harris, age 12 years, who has been neither absent, tardy nor excused during the seven years he has attended this school. His name may be seen on the honor rolls in each of the seven grades through which he has passed and he holds the distinction of being the only pupil in the school to hold such a record for perfect attendance.

LEO HARRIS

The teachers of the school, especially Miss Dorothy Whiting, teacher of the seventh grade, are proud of Leo for he is always the first pupil to reach the school yard and await the ringing of the bell, and to welcome the teachers with his winning smile.

On a number of days when he felt sick or distressed he would request permission to rest his head on his desk for a few moments in order that he might not be excused and thus make a break in his record attendance. When the measles were running their course in the village, pupils were out sick and even his own home was placed under quarantine, Leo packed his things and went to visit with his aunt, remaining there until the danger had passed.

Noank is justly proud of such a boy and it is doubted if any other school in the state can boast of such a pupil.

Besides being a good pupil Leo plays on the baseball team of the seventh grade, filling the position of catcher. He was also a leading batsman on his team.

At his home on Riverside avenue he has seven certificates presented him by the state of Connecticut, one for each grade through which he passed with perfect attendance.

With the closing of school Leo put his books away in a trunk at his home and he is now enjoying himself playing baseball, swimming, hiking or enjoying other sports. In fact, Leo has nothing to worry about until next fall when school opens for the fall term. In September Leo enters the eighth and last grade of grammar school and it is his ambition to maintain a perfect record for the eighth consecutive year. In this ambition the citizens of Noank back him as a whole and express a wish that his happiness may not be spoiled through illness during his final school year at Noank.

ITALIANS' CELEBRATION MADE VARIED PROGRAMME MONDAY

Italian residents of the city celebrated the feast of Saint Maria of Sovereto on Monday, coinciding with Independence day Monday with music and fireworks as has been their custom for a number of years, and, as usual, both sections of the program attracted hundreds to the scenes of the celebration.

Throughout the day the Italian-American band gave concerts or marched through the principal streets of the city, also attending high mass at 10:30 at St. Patrick's church, the observance coming to a fitting close with a delightful band concert at the Franklin street park. At this park a bandstand had been erected, various colored electric lights strung out and bunting of national colors placed in conspicuous places. Hundreds of people crowded that section of Franklin street during the evening and enjoyed the lengthy concert program.

Shortly after 10 o'clock the bandsmen marched to Preston bridge, thus giving the signal for the opening of the fireworks display from Hinckley hill. The fireworks were of the usual high quality, bombs and set pieces attracting the attention of the huge crowd which had gathered on every advantageous spot in the city. The display came to a close with the firing of dozens of bombs which wound up with deafening explosions which could be heard for miles around the city.

WESTBROOK CELEBRATED ITS 200TH ANNIVERSARY

In 1726 the parish of Pachoug, otherwise known as Westbrook—originally the West parish of Saybrook—was separated from Saybrook and called a minister of its own. Two hundred years later on the afternoon of June 30, 1926, residents of Westbrook, many of them descendants of the fourteen charter members of the parish and of other early settlers, re-enacted the scenes of the Rev. William Worthington's arrival as a part of the town's bicentennial anniversary exercises.

The celebration opened with an anniversary service Tuesday night in charge of the Rev. G. R. Lewis, present pastor of the Congregational church and general chairman of the jubilee and the exercises came to a close with another service Wednesday night. Among the speakers were Governor John H. Trumbull, Justice William M. Maltbie of the Connecticut supreme court, the Rev. Sherrod Soule of the Missionary society of Connecticut and the Rev. Rockwell Harmon Potter, pastor of the First Congregational church of Hartford and former moderator of the national Congregational conference.

200 Candles on Cake

One of the features of the affair was the birthday party after the service Tuesday night. A cake six feet in circumference and eighteen inches thick was furnished and every person present shared in the eating after the 200 candles had been removed. Forty-eight quarts of icecream also was distributed.

The story of the pageant which was compiled and arranged by Miss Carrie Moore, tells how the post rider, impersonated by Gerard Lee, brought word that the new parson and his bride were on their way; how the town crier, Captain Horace E. Kelsey, spread the news and how the fourteen members of the parish, other townspeople and friendly Indians gathered to witness the arrival and greet the young couple, represented by Oliver H. Chalker and Miss Louise Post.

Governor Trumbull's address was one of greeting and congratulation to the church and town. Justice Maltbie dealt with the connection between church and state in the early days. Dr. Potter spoke on "The Gospel—Inspiration and Hope."

Historical Address

"The Overflow of the Spring" was the topic of the Rev. Sherrod Soule's historical address. He treated the subject in the way of the outreaching influence of the church during 200 years. Time did not allow the telling of all the good men who had gone out from Westbrook and he took as illustrations or examples four men who had lived in Westbrook, one a patriot, one an educator, one a home missionary pastor and one a foreign missionary.

The patriot was exemplified by Dr. John Ely, who though a native of Lyme came to Westbrook as a young man to practice medicine. He possessed rare skill, acquired a fine reputation and a reasonable competence. He married Sarah, the daughter of Rev. William Worthington, the first pastor. When the Revolutionary war broke out he entered into the contest with all the ardour of a patriot. He raised a company, equipped the same mainly at his own expense and he rose from the rank of captain to colonel. He was taken prisoner and paroled in a restricted territory near Flatbush, Long Island, along with several hundred American officers. He gave himself unsparingly to the alleviation of prevailing sickness and suffering among the officers. His horse was secured and kept at his needful medicines from his own private means. Since there came an opportunity for escape and he furnished an opportunity for escape and exchange but because of the earnest petition of the officers in the prison camp he voluntarily remained in captivity on the first occasion and at the second time a deputation of exchanged officers waited upon the Continental Congress and requested if Dr. Ely were willing, that he might remain in the hostile camp and continue his beneficient ministrations. He consented and his period of captivity covered three years and when released his health was sadly shattered and never fully regained and he faced the world not only penniless but heavily in debt. He regained in a measure material prosperity and the government, thirty years after his death which occurred in 1800, gave his heirs $5,000. All of his seven children were respectable and not a few eminent. A son became a member of congress from New York state and a daughter became the mother of the pen name "Peter Parley," who was the author of a whole library of excellent books for children and youth.

As an example of an educator, Mr. Soule took James Murdock, D. D. born in Westbrook, who was a teacher in "Oneida Academy," which developed into Hamilton college, a professor in the University of Vermont and a professor in Andover Theological seminary. He was pronouncedly able and versatile in the languages. He was one of the first of American scholars to become familiar with German works. He was so excellently versed in Hebrew that he used to read from its text at family worship. He made a translation of the New Testament into Syriac. Harvard university honored him and herself with the degree of D. D.

The Rev. Jedidiah Bushnell, a native, was a graduate of Williams college and the annals of the same record that he was among the most successful and useful ministers of his day. He did valiant home missionary work in Vermont and New York and had a pastorate of thirty-three years in Cornwall, Vt; a parish never numbering much more than 1,000 people. He received into the membership of the church nearly 1,700 persons and there went out from his parish, influenced and inspired by his example and teaching, over 40 persons who became prominent in political, professional, educational and religious life. One was a United States senator, another a governor of Vermont, five presidents or professors in colleges, one a distinguished missionary to China.

As a foreign missionary statesman, the Rev. John Kinne Hyde DeForest, D. D., was taken as an example. He was born in the parish, the son of the minister and lived there until he was a lad 10 years old. His family name was Hyde but he took the added name of DeForest to avail himself of assistance of the DeForest fund of Yale university. He graduated in the class of 1862 along with Robert A. Hume the distinguished foreign missionary to India. Mr. DeForest went to Japan, along with Joseph Neesima, and served in that country for 36 years and rests in its soil. He became a great force in national life and held friendly relations with government officials and those of other faiths than his own. He understood the Japanese as few foreigners did and for his diplomatic services he was twice decorated by the emperor.

The speaker also bore tribute and testimony to the Rev. William H. Moore who grew up in the parish. He became one of the most effective executives of Congregationalism in Connecticut and in the country. He was registrar of the National Council for many years, for 25 years he was secretary of the Missionary Society of Connecticut, retiring at the age of 80 and died in Hartford in 1903. He was an authority on the ecclesiastical history and biography of Congregationalism in Connecticut. He made abundant and careful research and his records, which are preserved, will serve not only this generation but all generations to come.

Several hundred people were served at a supper prepared by the women of the church Wednesday night and afterward the Westbrook band gave a concert. At the service which followed the ancient candle ceremony was performed in which each person present lit a candle at the alta while singing "Onward Christian Soldiers."

The town had voted $500 toward the expenses of the celebration and nearly every family assisted in the work. Miss Mary E. Clark was secretary of the general committee.

DOING TREE PLANTING ALONG STATE'S HIGHWAYS

A resume of the spring landscape activities of the state, designed to improve the appearance of its highways, shows that numerous plantings of varying types have been made. A statement issued by the state highway department shows that the work has been carried out in many sections and although the work is only on a comparatively small scale, it is hoped that within a short time results of the beautification program will be in evidence to the motorists.

Of the shade trees, 564 were maples; Norway, sugar and Schedlers; 100 pin oak; 60 oriental plane; 28 red oak; 13 Carolina poplar; 13 horse chestnut; 10 European linden; and 8 weeping willows. The ornamental trees included such varieties as White wax, Douglas fir, hemlock, red pine, white pine, mugho pine, Japanese yew, Japanese barbery, flowing crab, flowing cherry, mock orange, and numerous others.

Plantings were made in extreme parts of the state, but were concentrated primarily on trunk line No. 1, known as the Boston Post road, also along Route 2, the Hartford Turnpike route No. 12, the Mohegan trail; No. 17, the New London turnpike, and No. 10, the Connecticut River road.

Only such parts of the Boston Post road as have been reconstructed were embellished. Commencing at the New York state line, the first planting is located at Mianus, on a cut-off, treated absolutely with evergreen shrubbery. A similar planting follows on a cutoff at Sound Beach made up of deciduous shrubbery. Trees were set out between Mianus and Norwalk. The town of Westport also received a substantial number of shade trees. On the Boston Post road between New Haven and Westbrook 323 shade-trees were planted and 1,500 red pine were set out in forest planting fashion on old cut-offs in such a way as to form a basis for future pine groves.

The Mohegan Trail at points along the reconstructed road between Plainfield and Putnam was treated liberally with red pine, both as a possible shade tree and in groupwise arrangements for effectiveness.

HUSBAND DID THE WASHING

His Wife Confined to Her Bed by Ill Health

Because of his wife's frequent ill health, Mr. J. F. Gage was obliged to do the washing and cooking for the family.

One day when Mrs. Gage was confined to her bed, he brought her the newspaper to read. Among the advertisements she noticed a letter from another sick woman telling of the help she had received from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"I'll try it," she decided.

Her husband brought home a bottle and only a few days after she had begun to take it she felt well enough to be up around the house. Gradually her general health improved until she is now able to do her own work.

In a letter which Mrs. Gage recently wrote, she said, "I have taken twelve bottles and feel like a new woman." She has told many women about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and one of her friends is now taking it. Her address is Mrs. J. F. Gage, Route 5, Brownwood, Texas.

Acid Stomach
"Phillips Milk of Magnesia"
Better than Soda

Hereafter, instead of soda take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent bottles, any druggstore.

WARRIORS SPLIT EVEN IN GAMES WITH FT. WRIGHT

The Warriors split even in their double header at Fort Wright, Fishers Island of Monday losing the first game in 7 innings by a score 10 to 0 score and winning the second by the score of 4 to 3.

The local club played ragged ball in the first contest and were given their first shutout of the season. Edwards on the mound for the Warriors was given poor support in the pinches.

In the second contest however the local team found itself and played well behind the pitching of Couture, who allowed the soldiers but five hits. Jackson's triple in the seventh inning of the second contest with two men on tied the score and the Warriors won the game in the eighth. By winning the second game the Warriors clinch two out of three series with the Fort Wright having defeated them by a 2 to 1 score earlier in the season.

RIVERVIEW WINS BOTH ITS HOLIDAY GAMES

Riverview won both its holiday games from the Sons of Italy, taking the morning game at South Manchester, 5 to 4, and the afternoon game at Riverview, 7 to 5. The afternoon game at the State Hospital was better each team having one bad inning. Dugas was wild in the first inning passing three men which with hits and errors allowed three runs to cross the plate. Riverview scored twice in the first frame when Joe Hamel hit a home-run with one man ahead of him. St. John also hit a circuit clout in the seventh inning. EARL COOPER, VETERAN RACER, WINS SPEED CLASSIC AT ROCKINGHAM

ROCKINGHAM SPEEDWAY, Salem, N. H., July 5.—(AP)—Earl Cooper, veteran Los Angeles auto racer, staged one of his famous finishes and won the 200-mile race which featured the Independence Day sweepstakes here today. He trailed the field for 130 laps and with but thirty more to get, caught the other tiring drivers off their guards and sped in to the lead. When the starter waved the checkered flag of victory Cooper was a lap ahead of Bennie Hill, second place winner. Peter De Paolo was third.

But nine of the 15 drivers who started were able to pilot their midget racers of 91 1-2 cubic inch piston displacement over the entire distance. Engine trouble drove half the field from the track.

Cooper's time for the 2000 miles an hour, 42 minutes and 56 seconds and his rate of speed was 116.552 miles per hour.

One accident marred the event. John Duff, of Indianapolis crashed through the top rail and dropped clear of the track after his racer swerved on the turn nearest the grand stands. Ambulances were rushed to his assistance and he was unconscious when pulled out of his wrecked machine. He was soon revived and an examination revealed nothing more serious than a broken collar bone.

Harry Hartz, Los Angeles, was the other hero of the race. After placing second in the 50 mile dash which preceded the long race, he was unable to start his own car in the 200 mile event. He remained in his pit until the drivers had completed 56 laps and then replaced Fred Comer and, by daring driving, made up much lost ground to finish fourth, five laps behind Cooper.

Frank Elliott, Missouri, was fifth; Norman Batten sixth; Wademorton of Los Angeles, who drove Tony Gullotte's car, was seventh. Dr. William M. Shattuck, Louisville physician, eighth and Phil Shafer, Texas, ninth.

Peter De Paolo, who made the fastest qualifying time, had the pole position for the 50-mile dash. Though threatened several times by Harry Hertz, he flashed by the judges' stand a winner in 23 minutes 23 seconds Harts was a half lap behind him and Frank Elliott was third.

Cooper's victory carried with it the first money prize of $8,000. Hill received $4,000 for second place and De Paolo $2,000 for third, the latter also won $1500 for placing first in the short race.

Hartz, who tops the drivers with 1740 points in the championship standing received $1400 for his fourth place in the long race and $1,000 more for second in the short event.

FORMER DEPUTY SHERIFF CARROLL FOUND DEAD IN HIS NEW LONDON HOME

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 5.—John Carroll, about 62, former deputy sheriff, was found dead on the floor of his residence, 916 Bank street this afternoon, death having occurred during the night, caused by chronic heart disease, aggravated by Mr. Carroll's advanced years. Mr. Carroll was relieved of his duties as deputy sheriff about ten years ago, when his health started to decline. He resided alone, his wife having died many years ago.

Mr. Carroll was about his home yesterday, but when he did not appear on the veranda as usual this afternoon, his nephew, Daniel P. Carroll, 923 Bank street, decided to go to the home of his uncle to investigate. Approaching the house, the nephew noticed electric lights burning and then realized that something had happened. Opening the door and going to the kitchen, Mr. Carroll's lifeless body was found on the floor. It is believed the man was stricken during the early morning hours and was attempting to summon assistance when he collapsed and expired almost immediately following being stricken. Medical Examiner Charles Kaufman was notified of Mr. Carroll's death and after conducting an investigation pronounced death as having resulted from natural causes and from the chronic condition of the heart.

William Bronitsky, 962 Bank street, complained to the police this morning that a spare tire was stolen from his automobile while the car was parked in front of his home last night.

CLAIMS NORWICH WOMAN EVADED RESPONSIBILITY

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 5.—James Folon, 855 Bank street, complained to the police charging the driver of an automobile bearing Connecticut registration, N-7173, with evasion of responsibility. He requested that the driver be arrested. The police discovered that the automobile is registered in the name of Mrs. George Magowan, 14 Starr street, Norwich. Folon stated that he was walking across Bank street, that the automobile struck him and that the driver speeded away without stopping to ascertain the extent of Mr. Folon's injuries. The injuries, however, were slight.

There were 14 new and continued cases before the police court, this morning, the day after the Fourth. None of them was of a serious nature, the worst offenses alleged being intoxication and breach of the peace. Several parking ordinance cases were heard and disposed of, quite generally by suspended judgment, as the officers were lenient the first time.

Arthur Tramport, a member of the crew of the submarine 10 was fined $10 for a breach of the peace in which he attached (and admitted it) a sailor of the coast guard service, Joe Bantiska. Tramport alleged that he was passing along State street when he heard plaintiff use insulting language to young girls who were passing and he said that Bantiska repeated his words so that others heard him. Tramport asserted that he called Bantiska toward him, cautioned him about using such language and advised him to have some respect for the service, but the man resented the interference and Tramport said he hit him. He evidently did, for Joe dropped as if he had been hit with a club. He was rendered unconscious and was taken to a hospital, but was not detained there. Joe denied the statements made by his assailant and claimed that he did not use the language attributed to him, but said that Tramport called him over to where he stood and then struck him without provocation. The court did not countenance that sort of conduct and told Tramport that if he had any grievance against Bantiska for what was said or done he should have lodged complaint with a policeman and had the sailor arrested and dealt with.

Robert E. Lee, colored, was charged with assault upon his wife, Beatrice. He was arrested last night. Today Beatrice did not want to press the complaint. She had been accused of being out of character by her husband on a previous occasion, according to the prosecutor, and that may have had something to do with the reluctance of the wife to resisting abuse by her husband. The case was continued to the 9th of October that it might be investigated.

Marian Clarke was charged with violation of the parking ordinance in leaving her car on State street about an hour and a half. She claimed that she did not have her car parked for any such time and said that she drove away and then came back where she found her car tagged.

Guerino Menghi was charged with parking his car in restricted territory on Church street. He explained that he saw other cars parked there and supposed he had the same rights that the drivers of other cars had. He said he read a sign declaring that there was to be no parking. Judgment was suspended in his case also.

Wolcott O. Potter parked his car on Main street while he went to the railway station to meet friends who were coming on a train. Time slipped away and he overstayed the limit.

Thomas Connolly was fined $5 for intoxication. He is employed by the city.

Ralph Tinker was fined $5 for being drunk and reckless with fireworks. Complaint came to the police station and Officer Philoperia was sent to arrest the accused man. Tinker set up an argument and declared that he had drank three whiskies and three bottles of beer, but denied that he was intoxicated. The court did not accept his alibi and fined him.

Tom Carroll, who has been in the court twice in a month, was fined $10 for intoxication and went to jail.

James T. Mathews was fined $3 for parking his car on Main street so that it was necessary to move it to allow a trolley car to pass. Matthews was disposed to resent the fine, but he paid it.

John K. Foran was charged with a breach of the peace, but the case did not get to a trial as he asked for a postponement and it went over till tomorrow. He is also charged with being resentful to the officers who made the arrest.

Cases of parking ordinance violations were preferred against James Fowler and Thomas Daly, and these were continued, the former till tomorrow and the latter till the 12th. A case against Daniel Stabler, Jr., was continued because the probation officer was not in court to report upon it.

An automobile owned and driven by Albert Goss, 23 New street, struck Samuel Castagna, six, of 48 Shaw street this morning, the boy sustaining injuries, not believed to be serious, to his head. He is now under treatment at Lawrence-Memorial hospital. The boy started to cross Bank street, corner of Truman street, when he stepped in front of the auto and was knocked down. Goss assisted the boy into the automobile and took him to the hospital.

Robert Scott, 19, of Cambridge, Mass., is a patient at Lawrence hospital suffering from lacerations of the face and chin, sustained this morning when he was struck by an automobile near the Saybrook bridge. He received emergency treatment at Saybrook and then was transferred to the hospital.

Mrs. Emma Houtkanf, 50, of Paterson, N. J., in alighting from her automobile Sunday afternoon, turned her ankle in such a manner as to produce a Potts fracture. She was removed to Lawrence hospital for treatment.

Samuel Green, 45, of Brooklyn, N. Y., employed in Waterford, sustained a deep laceration of the right leg this morning when a tree that he was removing from a wooded area, fell on his leg. He was brought to New London and admitted to Lawrence hospital for treatment.

CAR BEYOND CONTROL, MAN'S SKULL FRACTURED

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 5.—William Kirby, about 60, of Great Neck road, Waterford, was probably fatally injured this evening when struck by an automobile driven by William S. James, electrician's mate, second class and stationed aboard the United States ship Bushnell, submarine base. Kirby is now a patient at Lawrence hospital suffering from a fractured skull. James, who did not possess an operator's license, was arrested by Traffic Officer John Sullivan charged with reckless driving. In default of a surety on his bond of $100, James was locked up and will be presented in the police court tomorrow morning.

James operated his Ford coupe from State street into Bank street, about 7:15 o'clock and as the car rounded the corner, a Connecticut company trolley car was approaching. James could not drive on his right hand side because of automobiles being parked on that side of the street and operated the auto to the left. When nearly across the street James lost entire control of the auto for it struck a bicycle beside the curb, demolishing it and then climbed over the curb to the sidewalk. Pedestrians scrambled in all directions in an effort to get out of the way of the auto, but William Borkman, 13, of 45 Fourth street, was struck and knocked down. The car then passed into the street again, but 20 feet beyond it climbed to the sidewalk again. This time the auto struck Kirby, who was thrown down and dragged to the street where both the front and rear wheels passed over the man. Pedestrians then endeavored to stop the auto by jumping to the running board and taking charge of it, but before they succeeded in bringing it to a stop it continued to a point nearly opposite Golden street, where the car was taken from James and he was arrested. Traffic Officer Thomas Lyden took charge of Kirby, summoning the police speed auto and causing the injured man to be rushed to the hospital.

At the police station James could not account for his handling of the automobile except to say that he lost his head at the approach of the trolley car and, did not realize what he was doing.

Leroy Ward, United States coast guard sailor, stationed at the state pier, who attempted to commit suicide three weeks ago in the police station at Darien, following his arrest there for the theft of an automobile owned by David Barnes, Waterford, from Meridian street, was discharged at Darien hospital this afternoon and is now locked up at the Darien police station. Tomorrow an officer will go to Darien and bring the prisoner back to New London for trial. Ward attempted self-destruction by swallowing a solution of bichloride of mercury.

While the family of Roger N. Daboll, 100 Thames street, were seated in their home this evening a reckless celebrator of the Fourth sent a bullet from a .45 calibre revolver through a window of the house, the bullet passing through a picture and lodging in the wall. Mr. Daboll heard the crash of the window and found the bullet in the wall. He notified the police and Patrolman Henry Hick was assigned to an investigation. The officer made a search of the vicinity of the Daboll residence, but could not learn the identity of the shooter.

Charles P. Hammond, former member of the New London police department, now employed at Port Washington, L. I., spent the holiday with his family, 101 Bilnman street.

The petition to cause the city council to call a special city election that the voters may cast their ballots as to whether the city shall be conducted on the present form of city-manager government or shall go back to the municipal form of government, contains 2,400 signers, 250 more than is needed to compel the election to be called.

The hotels of the city reaped a harvest Saturday night and Sunday night for in most instances the hotels were compelled to turn away patrons and were crowded to capacity.

Benjamin Alime of Thompsonville, was arrested Sunday night by State Police Officer George Sisson, Groton barracks, charged with evasion of responsibility. Alime was in Waterford and when his automobile collided with another car, Alime failed to stop. He was later located and arrested. When his car was searched a quart bottle nearly full of liquor was found.

Celebrators of the Fourth "whooped it up" in earnest this evening, the result being one of the noisiest Independence days in recent years. On State street, particularly near the corner of Bank and at the union station hundreds of dynamite crackers were exploded, while at the quarters of the Allen Hook and Ladder company, Bank street, a large quantity of firecrackers were set off.

WILL GIVE FIREWORKS AT GARDNER LAKE

The annual display of fireworks at Gardner Lake, arranged for by Milo Light of Camp Cadaho and C. W. Pendleton, who has a cottage at the lake, is to be carried out this (Tuesday) evening. The display will be given on Mr. Light's baseball field and arrangements have been made to park automobiles in the adjoining lot. Mr. Light and Mr. Pendleton carry out the display for the enjoyment of the campers at the lake and the public generally who care to attend.

Word has been received from Block Island, that the boat Baby came into that port with 10 sword fish, the largest catch made by any Noank boat this season. They got six in one day. A local boat had a very narrow escape in the fog when the steamer Leviathan, going to England, almost hit the boat Baby while the captain had tie up to another boat for mutual protection. They could not tell which way the steamship was going until she was right on them and then it took the full speed of both boats to get clear. RAID AT STERLING HOUSE RESULTS IN FOUR ARRESTS

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, July 5.—Nathan Carr was placed under arrest, about 10 o'clock Monday morning, when a raid at his home in Sterling netted a quantity of liquor. His wife, Mary Carr, his son, Arthur Carr, 24, and his friend, Wilfred Yates were taken into custody charged with interfering with an officer. The four were presented before Justice of the Peace John Tanner and at their request their cases were continued until next Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Carr was charged with selling and keeping liquor with intent to sell. His bond was placed at $1,000. His wife and son furnished bonds of $100 each and Yates a bond of $50. Grand Juror Fred Maria was prosecutor. When the officers entered the house, Mrs. Yates seized a bottle of liquor and rushed into her bedroom. Her son and Yates attempted to prevent the officers from reaching her. Carr is an old-time bootlegger, according to the police, having been convicted four or five times in justice and federal courts. The raiding crew was composed of Deputy Sheriff Frank Tillinghast, Constable Dwyer Russell, Federal Prohibition Enforcement Officers Stanton L. Briggs and Harry W. Avery and County Detective William E. Jackson.

Mike Sallanka, 32, of Brick Row, was arrested Sunday afternoon by Motorcycle Officer Hurley charged with operating an automobile under the influence of liquor and without a driver's license. There is also some question regarding the registration of the car, which bore the number 5X-1248. Sallanko said he had bought the machine in Ansonia.

Anthony Thisseault of this city is scheduled to appear in court this Tuesday morning to answer to a charge of reckless driving. He was arrested on Main street Sunday afternoon by Motorcycle Officer Marrette.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre.

Now comes a photoplay telling a new story and having a new plot. It's "Watch Your Wife," Universal-Jewell co-starring Virginia Valli and Pat O'Malley and now the current attraction at the Broadway theatre.

"Watch Your Wife" tells the story of a young married couple and the petty quarrels that continually menace their happiness. The husband is an author who forgets his wife in his work. The wife, seeking affection, is continually at his elbow trying to help him along in his work. The climax to their quarrels come in a disagreement over the way a musical number went they heard at the theatre. A divorce follows. The husband seeks happiness in a feminine companion rented from a social service bureau; the wife falls into the clutches of a former admirer — a foreign fortune hunter. Out of this comes the comedy and the plot.

Virginia Valli as the wife, marks her return to the American screen after an absence abroad, by a splendid characterization of the wife who demands everything of her husband. Miss Valli's work is certain to please her large army of admirers. Her feminine friends will be especially pleased with the gowns she wears in this production. Pat O'Malley whether it be as the husband-author engrossed in his work, or the ex-husband stepping out with his "rented wife," again gives a display of the versatility that has made him a star of the screen.

The Tuxedo comedy is real funny and the new Kinogram is full of news events of the world.

POETRY

But When a Voice—

He is young summer's symbol and her soul
The oriole!
Who will find a word for his ravishing note?
Who can name its charm, so delicate, so remote?
We call it a reed, a flute,
And that does not suit;
We babble of honey—of gold—
And nothing is told.

We could not spare the flash, the lark's gay cheer;
But when a voice as from some shining sphere
Where tears are not, nor loss, nor any grief,
Thrills through my blooming plum
Like vocal fragrance, sweet beyond belief,
My heart lifts in me swiftly, wakes some
Wild chord—and then for urge of joy is dumb.

Yet—though we listen, mute, ecstatic, stirred,
Adoring—for the magic of the bird,
For that which strangely moves us in his voice,
That pagan challenge to a troubled earth
Too wise to hope, too heavy to rejoice,
That rapturous hint of something better worth,
There is no word.
—Julia Boynton Green, in the Forum.

The Harvest Hand

Youth comes striding over the roads
Like a prideful king.
Youth rides in at the call of the wheat
For the harvesting.
Burned and gay as he swaggers along
With tales of a world where law is wrong
Filling our village streets with a song
That the old gods sing.

Our sullen farmsteads hear a voice
That is fresh and young.
Our placid horses are ruled by shouts
In an alien tongue.
Our vacant barns are heaped with gold,
But the harvest is over—the year is old.
The ways to the lumber camps unfold.
And the song is sung.

The winter is slow on the bitter farm
And the songs so few.
How should we feed our hungry dreams,
What should we do
If we did not know that the summer's heat
Would bring the laugh and the dusty feet
From a glamorous land where sin is sweet
And the songs are true!
—Gwendolen Haste, in Scribner's

Women seem to have made all the recent records for long lives. During the last year the oldest person reported in England was a married woman of 104; in North America, a French-Canadian woman, Charlotte Nava, who died in the 110th year. The newest devices for combating disease will soon be available in the heart of the socalled Dark continent. According to a report to the American Medical Association, the Belgians are equipping a hospital ship to be put in service on the Congo river that will have ice machines, disinfection equipment, operating rooms, laboratories and all the appurtenances of a thoroughly up-to-date hospital. It will have wireless outfits with which to keep in constant touch with hospitals and numerous stations along the river and in the interior. It is hoped that in this way many sources of infection can be reached and checked before the spread can acquire dangerous proportions.

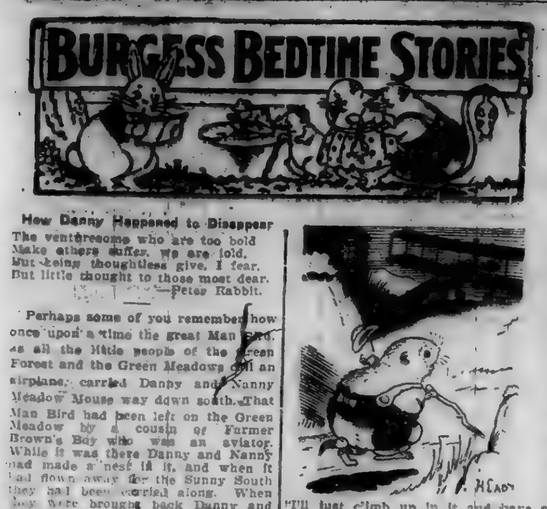
BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES



How Danny Happened to Disappear

The venturesome who are too bold
Make others suffer. We are told.
But being thoughtless give, I fear,
But little thought to those most dear.
—Peter Rabbit.

Perhaps some of you remember how once upon a time the great Man Bird, as all the little people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows call an airplane, carried Danny and Nanny Meadow Mouse way down south. That Man Bird had been left on the Green Meadow by a cousin of Farmer Brown's Boy who was an aviator. While it was there Danny and Nanny had made a nest in it, and when it had flown away for the Sunny South they had been carried along. When they were brought back Danny and Nanny declared that they never would have anything more to do with a Man Bird.

They hadn't seen the Man Bird again for more than a year. Then one day they heard that familiar sound in the air and, looking up, saw the airplane coming lower and lower over the Green Meadows, until finally it had stopped not far from where they were then living. The aviator left it and went up to Farmer Brown's house. All that day and the night following and all the next day and the next night the great Man Bird remained on the Green Meadows; and all the little people who lived there came as near as they dared to look at it.

Nanny Meadow Mouse had said nothing that would induce her to go near it. Danny felt much the same way. For two days and one night Danny kept away. Then his curiosity got the better of him. He really wasn't afraid of it. That is, he knew that the Man Bird itself was a man-made thing and couldn't hurt him. He wanted to see if it was just the same inside as when he and Nanny had made their long journey to the Sunny South and back in it.

"I'll just climb up in it and have a peek," said Danny to himself. "I won't tell Nanny what I'm going to do. What she doesn't know won't hurt her."

So in the moonlight Danny, watching his chance when Nanny was busy elsewhere, slipped away and went over to the airplane. He climbed up in it. somehow it seemed quite like home. He ran all over the inside of it, poking his little nose into every corner. The little cupboard in which he and Nanny had had their nest was partly open. Danny slipped in. There was some cotton waste in there. Now, cotton waste is very soft and nice for a bed. In fact, it makes one of the most comfortable beds that a Meadow Mouse can possibly have. Danny tried it. Then with a little sigh he curled up and went to sleep. Right away he began to dream. What do you think he was dreaming about? Why, he was dreaming about that wonderful, long, long trip to the Sunny South that he and Nanny had made even faster than the feathered folk can travel.

Danny was awakened by a bang. It was the closing of that little door. The wind had blown it to. Danny was a prisoner in there. Yes, sir, he was a prisoner in that little cupboard! The worst of it was, that little cupboard was made of metal and he couldn't get out that way. There he was and there he would have to stay a prisoner until some one should open that little door. He whimpered and cried a little for, being a very little fellow, he was frightened. Then he made the best of a bad matter and once more curled up and soon was asleep. When he awoke next it was to hear the terrible roar of the engine and feel the trembling of his prison. He knew what it meant. He knew that, whether he wanted to or not, he was going on a journey.

been entertaining the past few days at their home at Orient Heights Mr. and Mrs. Hubert S. Grinnon and Miss Dorothy Hanschild. Mr. Grinnon is a member of the police department of New York. A highwayman that leaped on the running board of a car, running along a highway in Elliott and was repulsed at night by a collie in the machine, could not be found by officers who went in search of him.

Up to late Monday afternoon no serious accidents to persons handling fireworks had been reported in Danielson.

A stunt that was missing this year was due to the suspension of trolley service. There was no placing of caps on the rails this year, for the cars to run over.

PINNED UNDER MACHINE, BUT PEDRO PANCIERA UNHURT

(Special to the Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., July 6.—Pedro Panciera of Bradford, R. I., escaped serious injury when the machine in which he was riding overturned Monday evening on Oak street. He was attempting to pass Harold L. Turner of Bradford when the accident occurred. His left wheel hit a stone, causing his machine to go into the gutter, where it turned over and was completely wrecked. The driver was pinned under the machine but was released without injury.

It was hot enough Monday morning to get the outing parties started off early and there was nothing to mar the genuine picnic weather of the day.

NORWICH DOINGS 75 YEARS AGO

Evidently Fourth of July was a tame affair in 1851 for the Courier simply dismissed the day with an account which told of rainy weather and an excursion to Long Island.

News of the week as taken in part from the columns of the Norwich Courier of 1851 is as follows:

Tuesday, July 1, 1851—Postal charges for mailing papers out of town were adopted by newspapers in the state recently and the Courier is announcing to its patrons the following charges: Papers within New London county, free of charge; out of the county but less than 50 miles from Norwich, 20 cents a year; any distance under 300 miles, 40 cents; under 1,000 miles, 60 cents; under 2,000 miles, 80 cents.

This action is being taken to warn people that great inducements are being made by the government for prepayment on letters and newspapers and it is hoped that everyone will observe the rule and thus make a saving of nearly 50 per cent in mailing charges.

Many Norwich people are planning to go on the grand Fourth of July excursion in the floating palace, Connecticut. Captain J. W. Williams, the largest and fastest steamboat in the world. The fare for the entire trip is one dollar and the boat leaves Norwich in the morning and does not return until evening. At Greenport a stop is made for several hours to allow passengers to go ashore and enjoy a shore dinner.

Thursday, July 3, 1851—In the state senate yesterday there was considerable argument over the resolution incorporating the Bank of Commerce at New London, but the resolution was finally adopted. In the house the same resolution came up for vote action but it was laid on the table. The town of Hebron was refused permission to loan its credit to the amount of $10,000 to the New York and Boston Railroad company.

A number of local people who have recently visited the Stafford Springs House, one of the houses conducted by Henry S. Crocker, report that service there is excellent; hot and cold water for bathing being at hand at all times and good horses and carriages being in attendance when needed.

Rainer's New Orleans Serenaders are to arrive in this city tomorrow to give an entertainment at Uncas hall in the evening. Admission is to be 25 cents and it is expected that the hall will be filled to capacity.

Saturday, July 5 1851—Elisha B. Brewster of Griswold has found a wallet containing considerable money and states that the owner may have same by proving ownership. The wallet was found yesterday in the road between the Toll Bridge and the Turnpike Gate in Preston.

Rain fell all day yesterday and served to dampen the ground and also the spirits of those who would celebrate the day. Over 400 local people enjoyed the excursion on the Connecticut and many others left town by train for the holiday.

All postmasters are to be supplied with post office stamps which can be sold to the public. Hereafter a man writing a letter may affix the stamp and also send a stamped envelop to the party he is writing to that a reply might be received.

Jenny Lind is to sing in Hartford this evening and a number of local people are in that city to enjoy the concert. Tickets have been selling at $2 and $4 and it is stated that all available seats have been taken.

According to accounts reaching this country a new kind of cuirass is to be adopted by France for its soldiers This cuirass is of vulcanized rubber, about a half inch thick, said to be sufficient to resist the ball projected from any kind of firearm. Experiments tried thus far have proven that the force of the ball is broken by the elasticity of the rubber, and the ball falls to the ground. At this rate a pitched battle will become a pastime.

Steamers returning from California and landing at New York this week have brought back over 400 passengers and over $4,000,000 in gold dust besides other cargo.

MYSTIC

A skyrocket landing on the roof of Columbus hall set the building on fire about 10.30 Monday night. Morgan Foote was the first to mount onto the roof. The firemen were summoned, shingles were torn off and with the use of chemical the fire was quickly extinguished.

Miss Ramona Hanks of Burnett's Corners had her fingers badly burned about two o'clock Monday afternoon when a giant firecracker exploded while she was holding it. She was treated at the office of Dr. C. F. Congdon.

Alfred B. Saunders died suddenly about two o'clock Monday afternoon at his home on Greenmanville avenue, where he had been in poor health for two or three months. He was born in Ashaway, R. I., May 26, 1869, the son of Edwin Clinton Saunders and Phoebe Berry Saunders, formerly of New London. He had been a machinist in the employ of the Atwood company at Stonington, but had not been able to work for about three months.

The Fourth was celebrated here with the usual amount of noise. Sunday was quiet, very few attempting to use a firecracker. Motor traffic through the village was the heaviest so far this year. Holiday hours were observed at Mystic postoffice; the city and rural delivery was omitted, in order to avoid the mail accumulating a delivery was made Saturday afternoon by the carriers. Stores were closed and business was suspended.

CALLS FOR FIRE DEPARTMENT MADE NEW RECORD IN YEAR TO JUNE 30TH

The twenty-fifth annual report of Chief Howard L. Stanton of the Norwich fire department, which is to be submitted to the common council of this city at its session this (Tuesday) evening will show a total of 256 alarms for fires during the year of the fire department, which closed on June 30th, this being 28 more alarms than were reported last year and 68 more than were reported for the year ending June 30, 1924. Of this number 20 of the calls were for fires outside the city limits, the greatest distance outside the city being to Montville. Other outside calls were for Yantic and Taftville.

Loss Total $72,087.50

In the summary of the report of Chief Stanton it is noted that the largest fire during the past year was in April at the Plaut-Cadden store on Main street. The loss at this fire was approximately $6,000 on the building and about $40,000 on contents. The total insurance loss during the past year was $72,087.50, which when the Plaut-Cadden loss is taken out, amounts to $26,087.50. This loss compared with a loss of $37,535.64 in 1925 would have shown a decrease of $11,448.14 in losses despite the fact that there were 33 more alarms for the department.

The 256 calls during the past year chalks up a new high record for the department, the record of 243 calls in 1924 having been high previous to this year. An interesting feature of the calls for the department is shown when it is seen that in 1902, when Chief Stanton made his first report, there were but 65 alarms. This increase in alarms indicates that the city is growing for the average number of calls for the past ten years is 200 yearly.

As in past years chimney fires resulted in largest individual number of calls, 66 alarms coming in for this cause, while 22 were sent in for grass fires. The causes of the fires in 10 cases were children playing with matches, while cigarettes also claimed their share. Another hazard that has come in recent years is the oil burning heater hazard.

To show the variety of calls received during the year Chief Stanton mentions that frem autos backfiring down to helping to pull a boy out of the river were responsible for calls.

In the number of fires reported the afternoon and evening blazes ran nearly double the morning calls, 91 responses being made in the morning and 165 in the afternoon or evening. Norwich had no general alarms during the year 1925-1926 and but one false alarm was sent in to the department.

Alarms by Months

April continues to be a month of fires although most of them were from grass hazards the time of the usual spring cleaning. The alarms by months show as follows:

1925	Bell	Tel.	Oral	Tr.
July	3	13	2	18
August	0	13	2	15
September	2	7	0	9
October	1	15	2	18
November	3	17	2	22
December	2	17	1	20
1926
January	2	24	2	28
February	0	12	0	12
March	4	30	2	36
April	7	31	3	41
May	5	16	2	23
June	3	9	2	14
Totals	32	204	20	256

The classification of the buildings where fires occurred during the past year are given in brief as follows: Frame 121, brick 45, stucco 3, brick and frame 1, cement 1, frame and iron 1. The fires during the year were in 174 buildings and 33 places other than buildings.

Laid 4 1-2 Miles of Hose

To extinguish these fires it was necessary for the firemen to lay 14,350 feet of 2 1-2 inch hose, 7,100 feet of 1 1-2 inch hose and 2,650 feet of chemical hose, a total of over four and one half miles of hose being laid during the year. During the year 1,152 gallons of chemical was used and 1,155 feet of ladders raised against burning buildings. The apparatus responding to the fire calls travelled a distance of 696 miles during the year and the men in service fighting fires a total of 284 1-4 hours during the year. Seven of the 40 gallon tanks of chemicals were emptied at fires, eleven of the 25 gallon tanks and 209 of the three gallon tanks of chemical, a total of 227 tanks during the year.

Value of Property at Risk

Property in this city valued at nearly $2,000,000 was threatened by fire during the year just closed as follows:

Value of property
Buildings	$1,018,950.00
Contents	902,455.74
Total value	1,921,405.74
Insurance carried
Buildings	$ 695,400.00
Contents	644,870.00
Total insurance	1,340,270.00
Total fire loss
Buildings	$ 21,673.78
Contents	51,713.72
Total loss	73,387.50
Insurance loss
Buildings	$ 21,673.78
Contents	50,413.72
Total loss	72,087.50
Loss over insurance
Buildings	none
Contents	$ 1,300.00
Total loss	1,300.00

The total amount of insurance paid during the past year was $72,087.50, an amount which has been passed six times during the past 16 years. The year 1909 still holds the record with a loss paid of $216,392.42, this being the year of the Shannon building fire. The year 1921 the year of the Uncas Paper Co. fire ranks second high with a loss of $160,535.17, while 1922 the year of the Chappell Co. fire held a loss of $144,087.05, third largest in the past 25 years.

Inventory Valuation

In giving the inventory of the fire department, the figures including land and buildings, apparatus and all other equipment, Chief Stanton figures the value at $210,650, but states that the equipment could not be replaced for less than a quarter of a million dollars. This information is gained by information given by Chief Stanton, who states that Central station is figured at $48,000, when it would take fully $75,000 to replace it, and the fire alarm system is figured at $22,000 when over $30,000 would be required to replace it.

Speaking of the firemen's pension fund Chief Stanton stated that it now amounts to $18,064.73, all invested in Liberty bonds, savings bank or Gas Electric bonds. There has been no drawing from the account during the seven years it has been in existence.

In his 25th annual report as Fire Marshal Chief Stanton states that 259 permits were granted during the past year, 43 permits being for new frame houses, 92 permits for frame garages, 10 permits for brick garages and 3 for brick buildings. Alteration permits totalled 31 for frame buildings and 13 for brick buildings.

The largest buildings completed during the year were the Sheltering Arms and the new Bishop school on the East Side. Values of buildings as given by owners and contractors totalled $477,038. The figures show a decrease of 99 permits over last year and a shrinkage of about 50 per cent in value of buildings. Permits have increased rapidly since 1922 when 67 were issued and the year 1925 with 358 permits was the banner year since Chief Stanton has held the office of fire marshal.

ONECO'S GLORIOUS FOURTH BLAZES WITH ELECTRICITY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

ONECO, Conn., July 5.—Independence Day, 1926, has gone into history in Oneco side by side with the biggest ever remembered. Early in the day Saturday, Bill Young, a new comer, yet all around boomer, got busy preparing to not only celebrate the 150th anniversary of independence, but the arrival of electric lights in Oneco.

The celebration at Young's emporium commenced at dark, the first big act being to build a monster bonfire in the very middle of Oneco pond, where a float had been drawn for that purpose, flames 20 feet high proclaiming to the people around that Oneco was not only a part of Independent America, but Oneco was burning up all lamps, candles and fixtures so that the new electric lights could reign supreme.

Guns roared, fireworks snapped, cracked and brightened up the atmosphere, the church and school bell merrily peeled its story of independence and electricity, while the store and grounds around Bill Young's place was a blaze of glory and people all the way from Sterling, Ekonk, Gibson Hill and into Green, R. I., joined in the jolly time.

Bill Young deserves the thanks of the village for being the promoter of a rip-roaring, snorting Fourth of July and electric light celebration.

Will Attend Baptist Assembly

Those from the Central Baptist church who are to attend the Baptist assembly which opens at Storrs this week are Miss Edith A. Ellis, Miss Helen Denison, Miss Helen Hastings, Sanford Smith and Ledlie Pitt.

Had Appendicitis Operation

Seized with a severe attack of appendicitis it became necessary Monday afternoon to remove Joseph Portelance of 213 Central avenue to the Backus hospital. An operation was performed at 6 o'clock in the evening but it will be several days before he will be out of danger.

FEDERAL AID AGAINST FIRES FOR NEW ENGLAND

Connecticut and each New England state will be among the thirty-three states which will receive federal funds to be spent in preventing forest fires on state and privately-owned land, the forest service of the United States department of agriculture announces. The amount to be distributed among the states totals $607,670 and becomes available on July 1.

Maine, alone of the New England states, will receive more than $20,000, the report points out.

The distribution to the thirty-three states is made under authority of the Clarke-McNary act to those states which maintain forest protection agencies. However, adequately to protect the 320,000,000 acres of forest land, exclusive of the national forests, located in these thirty-three states would require about $9,000,000 per annum, which would be less than three cents an acre, the forestry service points out. Thus it is that the funds, both state and federal available for adequate protection of state and privately-owned forest land equal about one-third of the estimated cost.

CLAIMS COAST GUARD NOT IN GROCERY BUSINESS

Charges that coast guardsmen at Block Island have gone into the grocery and marketing business and are thereby competing with the retail grocers and markets on the island were scoffed at by coast guard headquarters in Washington Monday. Officials there declared that they had received no complaints from residents on Block Island, although it was stated in newspapers Monday that such a complaint had been forwarded to Washington.

Coast guardsmen on the island could not compete with local grocers and markets, it was stated in Washington. It was said that only a certain amount of supplies are sent to the guardsmen, only enough for their needs, and that there would not be enough to sell to citizens. The guardsmen get their supplies at wholesale prices and sell at government rates to themselves and members of their families. But not to outsiders, insists Washington headquarters.

NEW GALLOWS HILL ROAD COST $41,454.12

The new 19 foot wide road over Gallows hill, between Norwich Town and Taftville, has cost $41,454.12, of which one quarter is paid by the town and three-quarters by the state. Besides this the road is now under state aid so that all expenses of maintenance will be taken care of by the state, thus saving the town all further care of the road. Its total length is 9,344 feet, which is a little over 1.86 miles.

Automobile drivers are finding the road a great convenience for travel between Norwich Town and Taftville as this route avoids the traffic that is met by passing through the center of the city.

NEARING SETTLEMENT IN SEN. BRANDEGEE'S ESTATE

That the tangled estate of the late United States Senator Frank B. Brandegee of New London will soon be settled became known when Attorney C. Hadlai Hull of the firm of Hull, McGuire & Hull, representing the administrators of the estate, announced that the settlement proceedings were progressing at a very favorable rate. Attorney Hull and Attorney Frank L. McGuire recently returned from Washington where they conferred with attorneys for the various creditors relative to the filing of the final account. The National Bank of Commerce and W. Don Lundy, the late senator's secretary, are co-administrators of the estate.

DAUGHTER AND MOTHER SUE FOR AUTO INJURIES

Miss Annie M. Coffey of Occum, who was riding with Russell B. Starkweather of Plainfield in the early morning hours of March 11, 1926, has brought suit against him for $5,000 damages for injuries she received when the automobile hit a pole at Norwich Town. The suit is brought through the young woman's mother, who also sues Starkweather for $3,000 damages to recover for medical expenses and loss of her daughter's wages.

According to the complaint drawn in the suit Starkweather was driving his auto at a high rate of speed without regard to the width, traffic and use of said highway, failed to reduce the speed and at the same high rate of speed, viz, 30 miles an hour, continued to drive his machine around a curve and as he was driving the auto, the machine approaching in the opposite direction blinded Starkweather and the defendant without slackening his speed, negligently and carelessly pulled off the road and ran and propelled his auto into and against a telephone pole near the Sacred Heart church. By reason of the auto striking the pole it is alleged that Miss Coffey, who was riding with Starkweather in the front seat, was thrown and hurled through the windshield, thereby inflicting upon her severe and permanent lacerations of the nose, head, face, knee and scalp and general contusions to the limbs and body, a severe and serious nervous shock to her system and the ligaments of her leg were torn. It is alleged that she will suffer permanent scars and will be lame and incapacitated.

FRANCE MOVES TO STOP DEBT DEMONSTRATION

Cabinet Forbids Former French Combatants From Carrying Out Organized Plan Against Ratification of Washington Debt Settlement—Order Issued Against Demonstration Because it Would Be an Unfriendly Act Toward the United States—M. Caillaux Asks Full Powers to Arrange Details For Stabilization of the Franc, to Cut Down Expenses and Restrict Domestic Consumption.

PARIS, July 6.—(AP)—The French government by cabinet decree today forbade former French combatants from carrying out an organized plan of protest next Sunday against ratification of the Washington debt settlement.

The proposed manifestation originated among moderate elements of the combatant organization, composed of French soldiers who fought in the great war. It soon passed into the hands of the radicals, among them numerous communists, and it was learned that it was the purpose of the demonstrators to drape the equestrian state of Washington in the Place D'iena in black and hang crepe on the gate of the U. S. embassy while the band played a funeral dirge over the death of Franco-American friendship.

The government was rather slow in taking cognizance of this particular agitation against the Mellon-Beregen accord, inasmuch as for days it had been known to various members of the cabinet. Ambassador Herick himself, it is understood, consulted with Premier Briand, and M. Masson, general manager of the Credit Byonnais, and the managers, of other important banks in Paris, also protested against slowing the proposed "insult" to the United States.

Members of the American Legion called on the officers of the former combatants and pointed out the bad effects such a demonstration would have in the United States and finally today the cabinet issued an order against such a demonstration because it would be an unfriendly act to the United States and contrary to public order, and, furthermore, was purely political in purpose.

The former combatants had expectations that not less than 40,000 veterans would participate in the demonstration.

M. Hubert Aubert, director of the National Union of Combatants, which is the veterans' organization, is quoted by some of the papers tonight as saying he did not wholly despair of holding some sort of demonstration. A delegation of veterans, he added would consult with the minister of interior as to the possibilities.

CHAMBER OF DEPUTIES CHEERS M. CAILLAUX

PARIS, July 6.—(AP)—The government's plan for stabilizing the Franc, which involves ratification of the Washington debt agreement, will have a majority in the chamber if the deputies vote as they applauded today. The entire house, excepting the irreconcilable radicals, socialists, communists and royalists, cheered M. Caillaux, the finance minister at the end of his statement on the government's projects for complete financial renovation.

M. Caillaux demanded full powers to arrange the details for stabilization of the franc, which, he said, must be done in secret, in order to be successful. He also demanded full powers to effect economies and apply restrictions to domestic consumption.

If the chamber votes these powers, it will be the first time that they have been accorded under the third republic, although it is the second time they have been asked for M. Poincare, when he balanced the budget in 1924 in order to obtain the $100,000,000 Morgan credit, asked for power to effect economies by decree, which, under another name, is the same power requested by the present government.

It was recalled in the chamber lobbies during the suspension of the session that M. Caillaux, who was instrumental in defeating the Briand-Poincare ministerial combination a few days ago, wants the same powers as did the ex-president of the republic two years ago.

Full powers, as indicated in the finance minister's declaration today, mean the authority to make retrenchments in the expenses of the administration, reduce number of functionaries, cease recruitment of employes and cut down expenses of all sorts As applied to restrictions, they would authorize the government to put into effect, by decree, measures to reduce the consumption of imported products affecting the balance of trade.

These powers are not extra-constitutional, but extra-ordinary. The socialists today frequently interrupted their former idol, asking on the occasion if M. Caillaux demanded these extended powers for himself or for the whole government.

It was Premier Briand who replied that the whole government was in accord, as were M. Caillaux and himself A clear majority of the chamber, comprising the moderate radicals and a considerable portion of the conservatives, cheered the finance minister when he finished his two hour speech.

The session tomorrow will open with a speech by M. Franklin-Bollion against the Washington debt agreement.

PRES. COOLIDGE SPEEDS TO SUMMER CAMP

On Board President Coolidge's Special Train, Baltimore, July 6.—(AP)—Leaving the heat and humidity of Washington, President Coolidge sped by special train tonight toward the north and the cool woods of the Adirondacks for a vacation which is expected to keep him away from the national capital until late August or early September.

So far as possible, cares of state have been left behind with the intention of obtaining a thorough rest after a hard winter and spring, and in preparation for another difficult year with a congressional election in the offing. Relaxation is desired and the seclusion of White Pine camp on Lake Osgood in the woods which stretch to the Canadian border has been sought as the best way of accomplishing that end.

The vacation atmosphere quickly was apparent once the President and Mrs. Coolidge left the white house to board the train at 5 o'clock in the afternoon. Mr. Coolidge was wearing a dark grey sack suit and panama hat while Mrs. Coolidge, attired in a yellow and brown georgette dress with a dust-colored hat, carried a bird cage with four yellow canaries.

Entering Union station through the president's room, Mr. Coolidge found awaiting him drawn up in almost military line the members of his cabinet who greeted him and Mrs. Coolidge heartily and accompanied them to the train where they wished them a pleasant vacation.

The president and Mrs. Coolidge dined with the other members of their party, who included white house officials, in the dining car this evening, all being in comfortable travelling dress and preparing to spend the evening hours in leisure, lounging about the excellently appointed Pennsylvania train of eight drawing room and compartment cars. The train is to bring them to Gabriels, N. Y., their destination, tomorrow morning.

PRES. COOLIDGE PLEASED WITH LEGISLATIVE RECORD

WASHINGTON, July 6.—(AP)—President Coolidge apparently is well pleased with the legislative record made by congress at the session ending last Saturday.

In an outline of his views given out today at the white house it was said that he felt a great deal of constructive work was accomplished.

The president not only did not find it necessary to veto any bill of general importance passed during the session, but he feels that congress took favorable action on all of the main legislation proposals advocated by him.

The reduction in taxes he places well up on the list of accomplishments, and he also is gratified over the ratification of war debt settlements, by adherence to the world court, and by passage of the railway labor act, the cooperative marketing bill, the public buildings bill, and aviation legislation. The president would have liked to see action also on coal legislation, railroad consolidation, radio control measures, and the Lausanne treaty with Turkey.

EXPECT TO DOCK S-51 THIS MORNING

NEW YORK, July 6.—(AP)—With clear weather prevailing, the convoy towing the wrecked submarine S-51, was proceeding according to schedule down Long Island sound, wireless messages to the Associated Press from the S. S. Vestal said tonight.

Buoyed by huge pontoons, the steel hulk, containing 25 bodies of the trapped men who died when their vessel was rammed and sunk off Block Island, September 25, 1925, passed Bridgeport, Conn., late this afternoon.

The convoy is proceeding at five miles an hour.

It is expected the submarine will reach Brooklyn Navy yard Wednesday morning. Navy officials have prepared drydock number four usually set aside for large battleships to receive the wreck "Traffic" orders for her safe passage through the East river have been issued also. On arrival at the dock, men with acetylene torches will bore their way into the hull to retrive the bodies.

SUB PASSED BRIDGEPORT LATE YESTERDAY AFTERNOON

BRIDGEPORT, July 6.—(AP)—The S-51, believed to hold the bodies of 25 men who went down with her after the collision last September, was towed past this city at 4:45 o'clock this afternoon.

Arthur K. L. Watson of Black Rock saw the group of boats passing down the sound. Mr. Watson said that the pontoons and the top of the conning tower of the submarine were visible, and the ship seemed lower in the water than at first reported. There was a mighty wake behind the tow, and although the wind was from a disadvantageous quarter, the ships seemed to be making a steady progress of about two and one half miles per hour. "There were no escorting submarines in sight," said Mr. Watson, "just the three tugs of the salvage fleet, and the Vestal."

TO NEGOTIATE HELL GATE BY DAYLIGHT

ABOARD U. S. S. VESTAL, OFF SOUTH NORWALK, Conn., July 6.—(By wireless to the Associated Press).—The convoy bringing the submarine S-51 to the Brooklyn navy yard moved in circles off South Norwalk, Conn., late tonight. It was planned to arrive off Execution Rock at 4 a. m., and the convoy was killing time in order to reach Hell Gate in daylight.

STATE HAY CROP 30% BELOW NORMAL CUT

HARTFORD, July 6.—(AP)—The hay crop in Connecticut will be about 30 per cent below the normal cut, entailing a loss in hay and forage of more than $4,500,000, according to estimates gathered by State Agricultural Commissioner Philo T. Platt. The backward season, which included unusually dry weather, is given by farmers as the reason for the light growth.

Last year 3,175 acres were planted to alfalfa, and the acreage this year is expected to exceed this total by a considerable amount. Hartford county led in the production with 500 acres. In Fairfield county 200 acres were planted; Litchfield 450 acres; New Haven 400; New London 100; Middlesex 300; Tolland 150 and Windham 75.

Cloudburst Floods Streets of Day

Storm Paralyzed Wire Communication and Caused Extensive Damage.

COLUMBUS, July 6.—(AP)—High winds and torrential rains, accompanied by spectacular lightning displays descended upon Ohio today in a furious onslaught.

Most damage was done at Dayton, where the rainfall assumed cloudburst proportions. In 25 minutes 1.91 inches of rain fell, flooding the streets, causing wooden paving to buckle up, and putting out of commission virtually all the long distance telephone lines entering the city.

Damage may reach $100,000.

Darkness accompanied the wind and rain. Two persons were injured by lightning here, and a church steeple was struck.

Street car traffic was held up for from ten minutes to a half hour.

Fire started by lightning and fed by the explosion of 10,000 gallons of alcohol, completely destroyed the denaturing plant of the Federal Products company of Carthage, near Cincinnati. The damage was $75,000.

Other sections of the state reported unestimated damage to crops.

MRS. BUDLONG ACTS AS OWN ATTORNEY

NEWPORT, R. I., July 6.—(AP)—Mrs. Jessie Margaret Budlong today "fired" her counsel, acted as her own attorney and cross-examined her husband for an hour and a half when a hearing on his petition for a divorce was resumed this afternoon before superior court Judge Blodgett. Cornelius C. Moore, of Newport, the attorney, thus joined the seven others dismissed by Mrs. Budlong in the course of her two unsuccessful separation suits, which prefaced the present counter action by Budlong.

"Do you complain at any acts of cruelty prior to the summer of 1918 was Mr. Budlong's opening question.

"Not in this action, but I have complained many times," was the reply.

"You said, I was running around with other women, and did not give you the money I should have," continued.

"Do you admit that your wife was satisfactory in the relations of a wife up to 1918?"

"No. You were never satisfactory as a wife, but I was so much in love with you that I overlooked much."

Asked in whose presence the acts of cruelty were committed, Mr. Budlong enumerated a list of Newport and New York friends including the "Corwins, the Ashtons, Fredericks, Joys and Jacksons."

Further pinned down to specific dates and places, Mr. Budlong declared:

"You said you devoted a great deal of time keeping me away from other women. You said we wouldn't go to Long Island because the women there were too beautiful.

"So you think it is cruelty for a wife to endeavor to hold her husband?"

"The methods you adopted—yes."

"You pounded on the floor and embarrassed me in the board. You were angry and the board knew it."

"How did the board know your wife was angry?"

"Just by looking at you."

Court adjourned with Budlong still on the stand and no indication of how long his cross examination would continue.

ANDREWS OUTLINES HIS REORGANIZATION PLANS

WASHINGTON, July 6.—(AP)—General Lincoln C. Andrews, chief of the prohibition forces, outlined his plans for reorganization of the dry army to Secretary Mellon today and assured him he would stick to his post until that task was completed.

After two conferences with the secretary just prior to his departure for London, Mr. Andrews said he had withheld his resignation and would not alter this decision until he completed the reorganization.

"We are going ahead full tilt," he said, "and I will be busy enrolling the 906 new men authorized by congress. I have not resigned and will not consider such action until that task is completed. I think I can finish that work early in September."

Administration officials expressed concern over continued publication today of stories that the assistant secretary had resigned in the face of a statement authorized by President Coolidge that he had not.

"The stories are unfounded," Secretary Mellon later stated. "Mr. Andrews has not resigned."

"The government asked me to reorganize the prohibition service," Mr. Andrews said. "I have not completed that job. I expect to in September."

The statement of Mr. Andrews was taken as definite indication he expected to resign in the fall after he had put into full effect the extensive program for organization.

SWEDISH PRINCE MAKES LIMIT TROUT CATCH

YELLOWSTONE PARK, Wyo., July 6.—(AP)—Sweden's heir to the throne is a "he-man", take it from the rangers of Yellowstone. Prince Gustaf Adolf on his visit to the park rode a bronc, herded buffalo, caught 30 trout—the limit—seated on a tin bucket up-ended in a rowboat, and in all ways measured up to the west's standard of a "red-blooded American," says the rangers who are no mollycoddles themselves.

WOMAN FOUND DEAD AT HER SON'S HOME

HARTFORD, July 6.—(AP)—Mrs. Mary Ray 55, of New Haven, was found dead at the home of her son, Thomas K. Ray, of Woodlawn street, Elmwood late this afternoon by neighbors attracted by the odor of escaping gas. Medical Examiner Henry N. Costello pronounced death accidental. A small dog was found unconscious in another room in the house.

"DRY" CHIEF DOES NOT INTEND TO RESIGN

NEW YORK, July 6.—(AP)—General Lincoln C. Andrews, chief of the prohibition enforcement service, denied any intention of resigning from his post just before sailing on the Aquitania tonight. He said the statement made in Washington today by President Coolidge relative to newspaper reports of his resignation was correct in every particular.

Falling Plaster Causes Theatre Panic

Over 800 Children and 200 Adults in Wild Rush for Exits at Cry of "Fire".

BOSTON, July 6.—(AP)—More than 600 children and 200 adults were thrown into a panic today in the Gem theatre in East Boston when a large section of the plaster ceiling dropped into the auditorium. Scores of the youngsters were caught in the wild rush for exits, but no one was badly hurt.

The crash and dust from the plaster, most of which fell into the orchestra pit, caused many to set up the cry of "fire" and a general emergency call was sent in for police, firemen, doctors and ambulances. Patrolmen dragged out the frightened people and calm was restored.

ROCKEFELLERS HEAVY ANTI-SALOON CONTRIBUTORS

WASHINGTON, July 6.—(AP)—John D. Rockefeller and his son, John D., Jr., have been the heaviest contributors to the anti-saloon league, while two women—Mrs. Harend van Gerbig, New Canaan, Conn., and Mrs. Marius de Brabant, New York city—have given the largest sums to the association against the prohibition amendment.

This was disclosed today by a partial list of the dry organization contributors made public by the senate campaign funds committee over the protest of Wayne B. Wheeler, and a full list of donors to the wet organization which William H. Stayton, the national chairman, insisted should be spread upon the committee record.

The Rockefellers have given $20,000 to the anti-saloon league since Jan. 1, 1925, the date fixed by the committee behind which it would not go in seeking donations to political or semi-political organizations. It is known, however, that this constitutes only a small part of the total they have given.

The figures for the association against the prohibition amendment go back to January 1, 1921, and show that since that time Mrs. Van Gerbig has donated $5,200 and Mrs. Barbant $2,000. The third largest contributor was Larz Anderson, of Washington, former ambassador to Japan, who gave $1,500. Next to the Rockefellers, Joseph Boyer of Detroit, took rank among the individual contributors to the dry organization. He gave $11,000 while S. S. Kresge, also of Detroit, the five and ten cent store magnate, gave $5,000. P. A. Peterson of Rocky Ford, Ill., contributed $6,500.

Besides making public the list of contributors, the committee took steps looking to possible action against two of its witnesses, moved for a time into the expenditures on behalf of Governor Pinchot in the recent Pennsylvania primary, and recalled Stayton for cross-examination by Senator Goff, republican, West Virginia, on the basis largely of information furnished the committee by Mr. Wheeler.

By unanimous vote, the investigators decided to refer to the district attorney of the District of Columbia the record of the hearings in which F. X. O'Connor, a south Philadelphia magistrate, denied statements by Senator Pepper, of Pennsylvania and the three Philadelphia newspaper men that he had told them the organization of William S. Vare in the Keystone state senatorial race had sought to purchase his support.

The record will be transmitted without any recommendation or suggestion from the committee, but the district attorney will be expected to take such action as he may deem warranted.

Having repeatedly failed in its efforts to have Representative Morin, of Pittsburgh, Vare's western campaign manager in the Pennsylvania primary, appear before it, the committee directed the sergeant-at-arms of the senate to proceed to Morin's summer home at Atlantic City and bring him to Washington under subpoena.

The hope of the committeemen is that Mr. Morin will be here tomorrow and they adjourned the hearing until that time. He telegraphed Acting Chairman King yesterday he had been called to Atlantic City by illness in his family and Senator King immediately telegraphed him to come to Washington today.

The sergeant-at-arms also was directed to make another effort to find Thomas W. Cunningham, treasurer of the Pennsylvania republican state committee, who is reported to have contributed $50,000 to the Vare-Beidleman organization. If he can be found tomorrow the committee hopes to wind up the Pennsylvania end or its inquiry at that time.

BODY OF MURDERED MAN IS BURIED

WATERBURY, July 6.—(AP)—Guarded by detectives, and accompanied by a brother and a handful of friends, the body of John Costanzo, 35, who was slain on the Orange road Friday morning, was buried in Pine Grove cemetery at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon. Floral offerings were few. There were no church services.

Lieutenant Timothy J. Hickey and several other inspectors of the detective bureau visited the undertaking rooms before the body left. They carefully scrutinized the mourners in the hope of recognizing possible witnesses in the case or members of the Boston gang which is believed responsible for Costanzo's death.

Mrs. Alice Costanzo, professed wife of the slain man, his friend, Tony Riscuili, who was with him when he left a Waterbury garage three hours before the murder, were not at the funeral this afternoon. They are both held at New Haven for the coroner pending the result of the investigation.

Costanzo was shot through the back while sitting in his car early Friday morning in Orange. The murder is believed to be the result of a gangsters' or bootleggers' feud.

A machine which collided with Dr. Spier's car, and which was operated by Stanley Bang, of Ansonia, ran up onto the Derby trolley tracks and collided with a trolley car.

SUBWAY STRIKERS CLAIM ALMOST COMPLETE TIEUP

Taxis, Buses and Horses Provided Transportation For New York's Thousands of Workers—Company Officials Claim Service Is Being Maintained at 40 to 60 Per Cent Normal—Retarded Schedules Enforced as Pre-Cautionary Measure Owing to Number of New Men on Trains—Strike Leaders Predict Elevated Trainmen Will Join Walkout.

NEW YORK, July 6.—(AP)—Taxis, buses, horsecarts and motorvans enabled New York's daily hegira of workers to gain their homes tonight despite the subway strike.

There were no serious disorders and the underground stations were signally free from jams owing to police precautions. Patrolmen stationed at usually crowded points prevented more passengers entering than could be accommodated in the train next due.

Thousands tramped across Brooklyn, Manhattan and Queensboro bridges to transit lines unaffected by the walkout of motormen and switch tenders on the Interborough Rapid Transit lines. That company insisted tonight that service had been 40 and 60 per cent of normal and claimed the ratio would have been higher but for retarded schedules, enforced as a precaution in view of the number of new men on the trains.

The strikers claimed a tie-up of more than 90 per cent and predicted a widening of the strike as pressure was brought on elevated workers and employes of other trunk transportation lines.

IMPENDING VICTORY IS SEEN BY BOTH SIDES

NEW YORK, July 6.—(AP)—Impending victory was seen by both sides as the first day of New York's subway strike drew to a close.

The Interborough Rapid Transit company, operators of the city's principal underground arteries, announced that 582 men were in jobs vacated by the strikers and that 73 of these places were filled by strikers who had thought better of leaving their jobs and had returned to work. The total number of motormen and switchmen ordinarily employed is 750. The general counsel for the I. R. T. announced that service had been cut between 40 and 60 per cent, but company officials minimized the seriousness of the strike.

Strike leaders announced that the strike was 90 per cent effective and would progress in an orderly manner to sure victory for the wage demands of the strikers, who seceded from the union recognized by the company and formed their own organization.

The state transit commission, which has supervision of New York city transit matters, issued a statement in which it was said that subway service had been reduced two-thirds during the "rush" hours; but that service was being maintained with available equipment and personnel

To a visitor the subways themselves might show no signs of the labor struggle being waged, but to New Yorkers there was ample evidence of an unusual situation. On every subway platform a policeman marched back and forth like a sentry. Another rode on the bench behind every motorman. The motormen, themselves, in civilian clothes and wearing straw hats or caps, drove their trains at a speed far slower than the ordinary swooping rush of the non-strike subway train.

There were some indications of inexperience or nervousness on the part of the new men, but these were taken in good part by the passengers who, as far as reports showed, evinced no nervousness. There was no accidents of any kind.

The first court penalty in connection with the strike was a $25 fine with a five day alternative imposed on William Adler, a motorman, who shouted "Remember the Malbone wreck" as he quit his post when the strike was called. The wreck he referred to occurred in 1919 during the last subway strike.

Although reduced service was maintained in Manhattan and the Bronx it was almost entirely given up on the I. R. T. lines in Brooklyn. Brooklynites managed to get to work, however, with the help of the Brooklyn-Manhattan subway, which was not affected by the strike.

Strike leaders during the day announced that employes of the I. R. T. elevated lines were coming over to their support but reports at nightfall to police from the company recorded that only five "L" men had quit and that full service was being maintained.

THIRD ATTEMPT AT ARBITRATION FAILS

NEW YORK, July 6.—(AP)—A third attempt to arrange arbitration since the subway strike loomed, failed tonight.

James J. Brady, director of the bureau of industrial relations of the state labor department, sent an offer to the strikers and employers to let his office act as mediator.

He said that at the Interborough offices he was told that the time was not considered "ripe" for mediation. When the offer was taken to strike headquarters with the information that the company had already refused it, strike leaders said that they were powerless to act unless the employers were willing to arbitrate.

The first arbitration offer was made by the state transit commission. It was accepted by the strikers but refused by the company. The strikers then proposed arbitration by an impartial board to be chosen by both sides but this also the subway officials refused on consider.

INTERBOROUGH STOCK ROSE THREE POINTS

NEW YORK, July 6.—(AP)—Stock of the Interborough Rapid Transit company rose three points today, the first day of the Interborough's subway strike. Stock of the Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit company, which is not affected by the strike, remained steady.

INQUEST INTO DEATH OF AUTO VICTIM

GREENWICH, July 6.—(AP)—An inquest into the death of Frank McGrath, of Stamford, who was killed early Sunday morning, was held here today before Coroner John J. Phelan. McGrath met his death on Put's hill, here when the automobile in which he was riding swerved to the side of the road and turned over into a brook.

Donald Studley of this place, who was a passenger in the machine, testified that at the time of the accident two automobiles were coming in the opposite direction. The night was foggy and the pavements wet. One of the cars approaching tried to pass the other, according to the witness, causing the machine in which McGrath was riding to swerve to the side.

Henry H. Howard, operator of the automobile which overturned was examined at the hospital where he was taken after being seriously hurt in the wreck. He said that three cars were approaching at the time of the accident.

Officer William Burke testified that the machine operated by Howard skidded 67 feet on the pavement at the time of the accident.

The coroner adjourned the case for a week pending further investigation.

LEAVES $500,000 FOR HOSPITAL AT TORRINGTON

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., July 6.—(AP)—A bequest of $500,000 and a share in the residuary estate, is given the Charlotte Hungerford hospital at Torrington, Conn., by the will of the late U T. Hungerford, president of the Hungerford Brass and Copper company of New York, filed here today.

LIQUOR WORTH MILLION TIED UP IN STATE

HARTFORD, July 6.—(AP)—Liquor valued at more than $1,000,000 at current bootleg prices, and at least a dozen vessels, varying in size but each worth several thousand dollars at the lowest estimate, are tied up in Connecticut for the summer due to the failure of the New York circuit court of appeals to give a decision last week on the case of the ship "Underwriter." The "Underwriter" was seized in January 20 miles off shore by a coast guard cutter.

Judge Edwin S. Thomas in the United States court of this district, gave a decision to the effect that coast guard cutters were beyond their rights in seizure of American ships outside the 12-mile limit. Appeal was taken by Assistant U. S. Attorney George H. Cohen and the case has been in the New York court for some months. It is now held over for the September term.

Meanwhile here and in Boston cases pending against masters, crews and the ships and cargoes which have been involved in seizures beyond the 12-mile line, are waiting the higher court's affirmation or revocation of Judge Thomas' decision. If his opinion is upheld American ships can line the 12-mile limit with cargoes of liquor and without fear of coast guard forces, it is claimed, and ships and cargoes held in libel proceedings here and crews facing smuggling charges will be freed from litigation.

SUPREME COURT UPHOLDS VOTING TRUST AGREEMENTS

NEW YORK, July 6.—(AP)—Voting trust agreements, entered into by stockholders of banks prior to 1925 were upheld today by the appelate division of the supreme court.

This ruling was contained in a decision reversing the order of the special term which granted an injunction against the Bank of America and others which prevented the voting of stock by individual defendants as trustees under a voting agreement dated Dec. 21, 1924. The decision held that the banking law governing voting trusts, which became effective in 1925, was not retroactive.

DANIELSON

MISS FRANCES L. PALMER DIES AT WILLIMANTIC

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, July 6—Miss Frances L. Palmer, of Brooklyn died early Tuesday morning at St. Joseph's hospital in Willimantic and during the day the body was brought to Danielson by Undertaker A. F. Wood. Miss Palmer had been seriously ill for some time. She was the daughter of John and Frances M. Davison Palmer and had lived her life in Brooklyn, where her family has been prominent for many years. Miss Palmer was at one time, in its early history, librarian at the Brooklyn library, an institution in which she always maintained a lively interest. She was a member of Brooklyn grange and attended Trinity church at Brooklyn. She leaves two sisters, Misses Charlotte and Nellie Palmer, both of Brooklyn.

Following a meeting Tuesday afternoon of the trustees of the Brooklyn Savings bank, it was given out that the institution has had a prosperous six months of business and continues in an exceedingly strong position. The deposits now amount to $4,582,477.67 and the surplus and undivided profits are $477,636.59.

That people hereabouts enjoy a clambake is evidenced by the statement that approximately 500 people were fed Monday at the dinner given on the grounds of the St. James' church property on Franklin street. The dinner, an excellent one, was prepared by King George Jacques of East Killingly.

There were many regrets by people who have been in the habit of going there on the holiday that East Killingly passed up its usual snappy and interesting observance of the Fourth, with a parade, athletic events and formal exercises. It cannot be that East Killingly will do this with its annual Old Home day, though it is not the customary enthusiasm. Old Home day at East Killingly has meant a splendid outing for years for people from many places

Three boys who came here from Putnam riding bicycles, at night, without any lights on the machines, had the bikes seized by the police. The boys made their way home as best they could and on the following day were allowed to take their machines and ride them home. This is the opening of the campaign against the night riding of bicycles that carry no lights, and it is their aim, if other means are not effective to call be presentations of violations in court.

Tuesday afternoon, W. S. Brown of the Shepard Hill farm, Wauregan, shipped one of the young bull calves from his herd of pure bred Holstein-Freisian cattle to Northampton, Mass. Mr. Brown has been engaged in selective breeding of fine animals of this type for a number of years and now has a large and notable herd, one of the finest in eastern Connecticut.

The funeral of Andre Gendreau, who died suddenly Saturday in Foxboro, Mass., was held Tuesday morning from the home of his brother, Alfred Gendreau, Brook street, with services at St. James' church at 9:30 o'clock. Rev. Joseph Desilaux, M. S. was celebrant of the high mass of requiem. There were many relatives and friends in attendance. Burial was in Holy Cross cemetery. The bearers were Pierre Bergeron, Ovila Bernier, Wallace Bernier and Oscar Bernier. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the arrangements.

In Wauregan Tuesday afternoon, the funeral of Madeline Maynard, one year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Romeo Maynard, was held from their home, with burial in Sacred Heart cemetery. The bearers were Lucien Brodeur, Montealm Brodeur, Charles Brodeur and Walter Plankey. L. E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Early Monday evening, at her home on North Main street, the death of Mrs. Lora J. Sprague, 76, widow of Penuel Sprague, occurred and in her passing Danielson lost a resident of prominence and one whose circle of friends always found in her a delightful personality.

Mrs. Sprague was born in Medway, Mass., a daughter of John and Elizabeth Packhurst Mahrs. She had been critically ill for the past five weeks.

She was a member of the Westfield Congregational church and long interested in its affairs. She leaves two sisters, Mrs. Henry M. Thompson of Danielson and Mrs. W. K. Lorce of Providence. Mr. Sprague died about six years ago.

It would appear that Danielson isn't going to have a daily opportunity to watch the aeroplanes in the Boston-New York mail service. Their course does not take them over Danielson, as had been indicated would be the case, or anywhere near this community. They are coming out of Boston to a point a few miles south of Worcester and their nearest approach to Danielson is when they are crossing over a portion of the town of Woodstock.

At Chautauqua Tuesday afternoon a concert by the International Trio and Junior Chautauqua featured the matinee entertainment. In the evening the Trio gave another splendid concert and there was the added attraction of an address by Ng Poon Chew, a distinguished Oriental, who has brought his wisdom, his humor and his great knowledge to many a Chautauqua platform orator. Known as the Chinese Mark Twain, Ng Poon Chew is humorist, philosopher, journalist and editor of the first and largest Chinese daily newspaper in the United States—Chung Sai Yat Po, of San Francisco. He is an apostle for better understanding between the United States and China. The International Trio is made up of Miss Ethel Walker, soprano, Hyman Adler, violinist, and Dolly Stewart, composer-pianist and entertainer unusual.

Charles T. Thayer, of Putnam, who has just rounded out 30 years of service with the S. N. E. Walter Monseau, driving his Chrysler, was in collision Monday evening, with Mrs. Stephen Nolle, driving a new Hupmobile six, at the corner of Wilson and East Main streets. Spectators and the drivers agree that there was a misunderstanding relative to the turning of the Nolle car down Wilson street, to go to the celebration at the Ashland casino.

A child, among the passengers in the Hupmobile, was taken into Dr. Jennings' office nearby, but other than the nose bleed, no serious injury was found. Both machines were slightly damaged. Officer Viegarde held no one for irregularities in driving.

PUTNAM

SUCCESS OF DAY KIMBALL IS OF LOCAL INTEREST

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, July 6—Of interest to the people of this vicinity is the tribute paid Day Kimball, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Kimball of Bark Meadow house, Pomfret, by Frank W. Grinnell at the annual meeting of Harvard Law school association. The tribute came as an illustration of the excellent work of the Harvard Law school. He said: "I know of no better single illustration of the current work of the faculty and students than the note on 'The Limits of Legal Tolerance' by Day Kimball in the Harvard Law Review for January 1920. Kimball, then a student in the school disagreed with Prof. Chaffee in regard to the decision of the supreme court of the United States in the Abrams case, and he stated his views in the note referred to. If the members of the association will read Kimball's note, I think they will agree that he produced a more convincing opinion than seven judges of the supreme court of the United States were able to produce in that case. As long as the Harvard Law School authorities can excite their students to disagree with them so as to produce thinking and law writing of that standard, the school will maintain its highest traditions."

At the same meeting of the association, a portrait of Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes was presented to the Law School, by the association. Mr. Kimball, whose law studies were interrupted by service in the late war, was for a year secretary to Mr. Holmes at Washington. Later he entered the law firm of Choate, Hall and Stuart, Boston, from which he was appointed assistant attorney-general of Massachusetts, two years ago. Mr. Kimball, accompanied by his brother, Lawrence Kimball, went to London, where both took up the study of English law. Last April, Mr. Kimball was admitted to the English bar as a barrister, having passed his examinations with such high honor that his admission to practice was permitted one year in advance of the regular date.

The Messrs. Kimball are now living on Curzon street, London.

Universal regret is expressed for the death of Isaac Lizotte which occurred at the Day Kimball hospital Sunday after a week's illness with pneumonia. He was but 38 years of age, but there are seven children who survive him besides his wife. The oldest child is ten, the youngest eight months, and among them are twins, five years old. His wife was Marie Robitaille, whom he married twelve years ago.

Mr. Lizotte was born in Putnam and spent all his life here. Besides his wife and children he leaves six brothers, George, Henry, William, Felix, Frederick of Webster and Edward and a sister, Miss Mary Lizotte.

The recent death of Judge William H. Williams of the superior court at his home at Derby, recalls the famous arson trials of Frank E. Howorth and Lindley Cain, both of Putnam, the former a rising young attorney and the latter a superior court messenger.

Judge Williams presided at that trial and on November 17, 1913, accepted a plea of guilty from Howorth, on three counts of a complaint containing thirteen counts for arson. Howarth was sentenced by Judge Williams to states prison at Wethersfield for not less than eight years nor more than fourteen years. Cain, who was the dupe of Howorth, was sent to the state reformatory at Cheshire, after turning state's evidence.

These two young men terrorized Putnam as it was never before or since terrorized by a series of fires. Their last fire was the house on Priest's Island, November 17, 1912, a year to a day before the date of their sentence. The period of terror lasted for nearly a year. A Performance thrill you'll never forget

ARE you tired of "sluggish" cars? Do you want the thrill of flashing, brilliant performance . . . to be able to step out and around other cars on the road?

Then this is the car for you.

It is built for young people who are going somewhere.

They have discovered it in thousands.

It is "modern" . . . not made over. We mean just what we imply.

Many cars have been "modern" too long. Buyers of such "new" cars are due for a "shock" when they look for resale value.

It was designed for road speeds of from 45 to 55 miles per hour without wear and tear on the motor.

That's why you can run this new-type car at high speed hour after hour.

It will pickup in high gear from 5 to 40 miles an hour in 21 seconds.

It has ample power to climb steep hills in high . . . gear shifting reduced to a minimum.

It has a modern full pressure-feed oiling system.

That's one reason why the Overland Six will run longer than other cars, without a pile of repair bills.

Modern engineering has made possible a lower gravity center. The Overland Six fairly hugs the ground. Without sidesway, slipping or wandering . . . it is surprisingly safe and easy to control.

The only way to appreciate it is to actually drive the car. Sit behind the wheel and experience yourself the wonderful "thrill" of its tremendous power, its lightning pickup and amazing bursts of speed.

In fairness to yourself, see this car.

NOTE: 4-wheel brakes are now furnished as optional equipment at slight extra cost

WHAT YOU GET IN THIS WORLD-FAMOUS SIX

- 40 to 55 miles an hour comfortable driving speed
- 5 to 40 miles an hour in 21 seconds
- High torque engine . . . . ample power to master the steepest hills
- Low gravity center . . . . greater safety
- Big, broad doors 31½ inches wide . . . . by far the roomiest car of this size and weight

RECKLESS CELEBRANTS

If we can judge by the results of the celebration of the Fourth we cannot anticipate the early coming of the day when there will be no fatalities and accidents on the nation's anniversary. Celebrants are too oblivious to danger. They take chances with death dealing contrivances with too many apparently being more willing to display a bit of bravado and suffering penalty than to practice safe and sane [illegible].

Meriden reports the death of a boy from wounds received in an early celebration. A Springfield young man lost an eye and a hand from a cannon cracker. A Dunbury man lost a hand. A Salem, Mass., young man died when a bomb burst. A Bar Harbor girl received fatal burns from a firecracker, a Holyoke boy's hand was blown off, a Thompsonville boy got a badly mangled hand from a "dead" cannon and scores of others were injured and injured in many ways from the inconvenience in a too strenuous observance of the day.

What the record for the country as a whole will be awaited with deep interest. There was a time when the record was marked only by minor accidents and petty fires, and it remains to be seen whether the tide has turned once more in the wrong direction and the tendency is for a celebration rather than a safe and sane observance. It was because of the toll on Independence day in deaths and serious accidents, loss of eyes and hands that such an excellent movement was started for the advocacy of safe and sane observance. There are good reasons today [illegible] even if there has been a reduction in the number of casualties. The fewer of accidents and yet there are those who seem to think that they are called upon to indulge in practices which reflect no credit on their judgment and display of excessive patriotism.

[illegible] in behalf of the safe and sane observance is to be [illegible] after the celebration of the day, the deplorable and needless suffering, some of which will be carried through life if they are so fortunate as to escape the fatality list. There seems to overlook the fact that there is no Memorial day for those whose rashness places them in [illegible].

FINE CLEAN-UP WORK

Many problems are tackled in the best of more attractive cities. Most every community has eyesores which need to be eliminated and faces changes to create a more inviting appearance if not through the construction of new buildings, the building of new streets and the keeping clean of existing streets, then by removing some of the dilapidated structures and firetraps which are a menace as well as a detriment.

A campaign of this character which not only arouses much commendation at home but can be appreciated from the standpoint of that which is underway by the bureau of fire prevention in Providence, which is making an investigation throughout that city of property which can be regarded as dangerous and undesirable from more than one standpoint. The bureau has been responsible for getting the wreckers busy on five buildings and has made recommendation that six more be treated in a like manner. The character of such structures is revealed in the report when it is stated that one has not been occupied for eight years, another means four feet out of plumb, another rests on rotting sills and crumbling brick foundations while a fourth, was so bad that the owner sensing an order from the board got into action and started to demolish it before receiving notification.

Here is action that is worth while. Certainly buildings which are in danger of falling, so dilapidated that they are of no use and virtually abandoned, houses that are the target for the small boy's stones and used solely for bill posting purposes and structures which cannot be used for any purpose because no one wants them and they are not worth spending more money on are no asset to a city. In most cases they constitute a fire menace, a hazard which not only promises needless work some day by the fire department but a danger to other property, to say nothing of the detriment to the good appearance of a community.

Providence is moving in a direction that others might profitably follow, and it is commendable that such a movement has been started before life and property losses have been sustained through neglecting just such conditions.

FIGHTING DOPE

Whatever may be said against the enforcement of some laws there will be less objection raised to the steps that are taken for the upholding of the narcotic laws. There is a widespread if not general recognition of the need of curbing the use of habit-forming drugs and stopping the traffic that leads nowhere else than to the demoralization of humanity, the increase of crime and depravity.

It is because of the frightful effects of such drugs and the knowledge that so much smuggling is being done in this direction, that there could not fail to be surprise over the opposition which Senator Bruce of Maryland raised to the item of an additional two and a half millions sought in the second deficiency bill for the enforcement of the opium and narcotic laws. However a person may stand upon the question of personal liberty in regard to liquor, and admitting the similarity of the position of the individual in each instance, it is a deplorable attitude when opposition is manifested to fighting a condition which is known to be a national menace as the drug traffic is known to be.

To claim that no such sum is needed because there is a moral force behind the enforcers of the narcotic laws would carry greater weight were it the fact that the moral force is doing its part. This ignores the great amount of the drugs that are being smuggled into the country in various ways, which require much help, funds and cunning to check, and even in the checking the lure of the profits has thus far enticed many into the illegal traffic regardless of the law and the moral force.

It may be pointed out that the narcotic laws are not accomplishing all that was expected of them. That may be true. Smuggling is by no means stopped and there are many avenues through which it is done which call for the closest scrutiny. If there are no funds to watch them the traffic booms and the country suffers. It will be a blessing to mankind if the time ever comes when the production of opium can be restricted to that which is needed for scientific and medical purposes.

RADIO CONTROL

Failure of radio legislation at this session of congress was due to the fact that the house and the senate could not agree upon the kind of a bill to pass. There was general recognition of the fact that there is need for regulation, but the two branches of the national legislature differ upon the manner in which it should be done.

According to the house bill the control would be vested in the department of commerce under a special bureau. By the senate bill it would be turned over to a special commission.

Because of the defiance of the existing and voluntary method of regulation the need of establishing restrictions and placing them in the hands of properly constituted authority was evident. The opposition to the bureau authority was that it would be putting the authority in the hands of one man and there was fear that it would be impartially used, although there are plenty of instances to show that it has not been abused and that the chances of such a result are almost entirely imaginary.

The opposition to a commission plan is that it would add to the list of commissions, of which there are too many and concerning which there is just ground for disapproval considering the manner in which the shipping board and other commissions have acted.

Because none other has followed in the footsteps of the Chicago broadcasting station in defying the voluntary control doesn't mean that others will not or that the matter should be neglected for the future. Delaying radio control until the next session of congress means only a few months but by that time there should be a disposition to get together upon some plan that will settle the matter and at least make a start with such changes as may be required left for the future.

NEW YORK'S STRIKE

There is a strike situation in New York which once more snaps its fingers at public convenience. It in fact makes a threat at it which is intended to help it in securing its demands, and the test of which is going to be victorious, those making the demands or those refusing them, is of direct concern to the people of New York who are dependent upon transportation facilities.

Last month there was an agreement reached between the employes of the Interborough Rapid Transit lines and the Interborough Brotherhood of Employes regarding new working conditions. Just as that was about to be put into operation a minority of the brotherhood refused to abide thereby and made demands for an increase in wages. It was a case of deliver or stand the effects of a strike. It wasn't a case of being guided by the facts or by the majority opinion of their fellow workers. It was a holdup with the expectation that the company would be obliged to yield, justice or injustice.

The refusal of the company to grant the increase and the acceptance of the strike challenge is bound to have its effects upon transportation in New York city. The company is standing by its agreement and the brotherhood, the strikers are repudiating their own organization and the public is getting such transportation as the emergency situation makes possible.

MAKING HIM LIKE IT

Mrs. Cooley stood at the window. Charlie was coming home with his wife and baby. Charlie—happy-go-lucky little boy, posing his cap all over the house—wee laddie trembling along on his bicycle—baby in arms taking his bottle. A wife and child!

Even now she could see his jolly little face screwed up at her while he guzzled his orange juice from a teaspoon. If ever a baby got his vitamins it was hers. It seemed yesterday that she was sterilizing bottles, straining vegetables, putting him outdoors to sleep at sacredly kept hours and warning everybody not to kiss him on the mouth.

A rigid schedule, for years, but look at him now! Big, rollicking! Cheer leader in college; baseball fiend; a perfect ad for health. But Charlie with a baby! She laughed softly. Well, the mother would have had instruction before leaving the hospital. And with such a physical inheritance any child—

A cab stopped before the house. She rushed to the door.

There was Charlie's broad-shouldered back in the baggy gray overcoat. His head was inside the cab. He emerged, holding before him a huge basket full of blue and white. All the way up the snowy walk he was instructing the driver, who came with him.

"'Sh, mother, don't touch her please," was Charlie's greeting. But he kissed his mother absently while telling the driver how to set up a folding chassis for the basket.

Mrs. Charlie sweetly filled the lack. She explained that Charlie had worried all the way up for fear the baby wouldn't be allowed to stay outside till feeding-time, before being looked at. So they went in.

After luncheon, when the gentle snowfall had changed to a near blizzard, Charlie's mother, trying to make her tone indifferent, asked when the baby's feeding time was due.

"Not for another half-minute," Charlie answered gravely. "We're teaching her regular habits."

"And, mother," he added when, with permission, Mrs. Cooley was actually having a peep at the baby while mamma warmed the bottle, "be careful not to shake her up. We handle her as little as possible."

"No, son," said Mrs. Cooley in her best clubwoman manner, "I'm merely planning to drop her in the rug a time or two to toughen her, you know." And after a minute, "I'm not such an old foggy, dear. I used to throw you out in the snow to sleep, too. Besides, I've been chairman of infant welfare work for—there's the bottle now! Let me have it. I'll give it to her."

She began, while Mrs. Charlie sat by smiling serenely.

"Look out, mother!" from Charlie. "She's getting air. Tip it higher—so. There now! You have to take it out once in awhile to give her a chance to breathe. That's the way—no. Suppose you let me finish feeding her. She can lie in your lap like this, without being touched."

But Charlie's mother heard the telephone or something. She handed him the baby and left the room.

She had not returned when Charlie and his wife went out to the basket with the baby. There was a little snow on the coverlet and as she was shaking it off Mrs. Charlie said gently, "Be tactful with your mother, dear. Didn't you see how she flashed when you took the bottle away?"

"Did she?" Charlie stood between his wife and the winter wind while she tucked the baby in. "I'm sorry, but say—it had to be got over soon, before this kid was spoiled. You know how grandmothers are."—Chicago News.

"Fast," replied the other, "I'll say he is. Why, he's so fast he can drink water out of a strainer."

He's In For It!

With camp time approaching they are telling stories of what used to happen. There was a raw recruit on sentry duty for the first time one night when the sergeant-major inquired of him, "Has the colonel passed this way?"

"Haven't seen no one," was the reply. Later the same question was relayed to him twice and a similar reply was given.

Just before the time for the sentry to be relieved he noticed a figure moving in the darkness and in his excitement he forgot his orders and shouted. "Hi, who are you?"

"I'm the colonel," came the reply.

"Oh, you're the colonel, are you?" he inquired. "Well you're in for it! The sergeana-major has been shouting all over the place for you the last two hours."

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

George W. Wickersham, who declares that the American governmental system "has grown so top-heavy and unwieldly that it is practically impossible for an executive to carry out the mandates of the Constitution" is one of the foremost representatives of the legal profession in America. He was attorney-general of the United States from 1909 to 1913 in the cabinet of President Taft, and as such led in some of the most important litigations against the trusts ever undertaken by the United States government. He is a native of Pittsburgh and was educated at Lehigh university. In recent years he has served on many important public commissions, notably as the American member of the international committee for the codification of international law. More than most men of his rank in his profession Mr. Wickersham ventures into print with discussion of contemporary political and economic issues.

"AT YOUR RETAILER"

From Small Beginnings

Oscar Hammerstein, a Great Builder and Manager

The United States is a land of strange and unusual opportunity. The man who is one day rolling cigars for a mere existence, a little later may be a master of millions of dollars and a leader among men. Everything depends upon himself.

Oscar Hammerstein was 16 years old when he left Berlin in Germany and came to the United States with a mind quite ready to face the world. He did not worry at all about the lack of money and the scarcity of opportunities. He set about to make one and to find the others. He laid the first stone in his career by settling down to the making of cigars, working patiently and energetically and finding recreation in music. Instead of working like a machine, that has no capacity for thought, he worked like an individual man, with the result that he made inventions that lightened the work and increased profit. Even in the music to which he went for recreation he put forward his individuality and composed new pieces. There, perhaps, is the secret of all success—to put forward individuality and to refuse to become a mere breathing machine.

By the time he was 41 Oscar Hammerstein had made many friends, had earned much, spoken much and written much. He had gained both money and influence, and was able to use both in the following out of the new ideas. He built the Harlem Opera House in New York City and made it a success. Then he astonished New York by building the Manhattan Opera House and becoming a daring rival of the Metropolitan Opera management. Here, as elsewhere, he made his energy and individuality felt. He set new standards in costuming, scenic effects, and beauty of production. He drew to his stage such artists as Melba and Tatrazzini, Nordica and Bonci. He paid such sums of money for the carrying out of his plans that he made a golden age for singers. When he withdrew he sold his share in the Manhattan Opera House for $2,000,000.

The Philadelphia Opera House, and the London Opera House, are other witnesses to the energy and the daring of the man who set out in life as a humble worker of cigars.

CHILD TRAINING

HOW CHARLES LEARNED UNSELFISHNESS

Charles was only three years old. Ned, who was visiting him, was a little girl three years older. They played together happily for a while. Then Charles took his Kiddie Car, and rode around the room a few times. He stopped, and began playing with some other toys. Carol took the car and rode across the room.

Charles was worried over this. Carol had not asked permission to take the car, and he did not know whether she would give it back or not. He began to cry, and running to his auntie, who was sitting near, he said, "Carol is taking my Kiddie Car. Make her give it back."

Then what did Auntie do? Did she scold Charles, and tell him he was a selfish boy? Did she give him a lecture on unselfishness? No! She took Charles on her lap and talked softly to him in this fashion: "Don't cry, darling. Carol is not going to keep the car. She is only borrowing it and will give it back when she has used it a while. You don't mind lending it to Carol, do you?"

"No," answered the little fellow, happily.

Then Auntie told Charles how she and his mother and other children used to play together when they were just about his size.

"One of us would ride a while, and then another, till all of us had taken a ride. Then we would begin over again. That was 'taking turns,' we said. Wouldn't you and Carol like to do that way, too?"

"Yes," answered little Charles, with his face all smiles and dimples again.

By this time Carol had come back with the car, and was listening to what Auntie was saying. She, too, thought that taking turns was a good plan. So they played happily for an hour, first Carol and then Charles riding the car, and the little boy let his playmates turn be the longest each time.

In this way, Charles learned how to practice unselfishness; it was a new experience and he enjoyed it. When children are taught by such a method, they not only learn to share the toys and pleasures willingly, but they learn at the same time to respect the rights of others, a much needed lesson in these days.

Spahlinger's Work

Predicting that tuberculosis would be stamped out within five years if the treatment perfected by Prof. Spahlinger could be financed, a London firm has announced plans to exploit the Swiss bacteriologist's discovery.

The scheme is one of pure philanthropy, as it was explained that Dr. Spahlinger had refused many big offers, some from America, to develop his treatment on a commercial basis. The first $200,000 to be raised would be used to erect a laboratory in Switzerland for the manufacture of the medicinemedicine according to Dr. Spahlinger's secret formula.

Between 1912 and 1916 Dr. Spahlinger saved 89 per cent of the patients he treated and 80 per cent of these have fully recovered and are doing normal work, according to reports.

Some dubiousness is expressed among physicians of Dr. Spahlinger's work, because he refuses to reveal his formula, but it is said to be in the possession of the Swiss government, not to be published, because the medicine would be dangerous to life unless manufactured under extraordinary strict control.

Dr. Spahlinger is reported to have spent his own fortune in perfecting it. Twenty-five cases now under treatment by Dr. Saphlinger in England all indicate an early recovery.

Danny Makes a Wry Face

In food and drink be not too hasty;
Things that look nice may not be tasty.
—Danny Meadow Mouse.

Danny Meadow Mouse, who was a prisoner in the airplane—which the little people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows call a Man Bird—wasn't a prisoner long enough to suffer any from hunger. In fact, he was up in the air only a couple of hours. He knew by the feeling when the great Man Bird began to go down, down down. The engine had stopped. Presently there was a little bump or two, and he knew that they were rolling along the ground. Then the machine came to a stop. Danny heard the aviator talking and other people also talking. Presently the aviator opened the little cupboard door and pulled out some of that cotton waste of which Danny's bed was made. He didn't discover Danny, but he did leave the little door ajar.

Danny took a long whiff of the fresh air. It was different air from what he was used to. It seemed to him that the people who had gathered around the airplane never would go away. Danny was thirsty. He was more thirsty than hungry. He felt that if he could slip out and get just a wee drink of water he would feel quite himself again.

After a long, long time it became very quiet. Danny ventured out of the little cupboard. There were none of those two-legged creatures to be seen. Danny climbed up where he could look out at the Great World. In two directions as far as he could see was shining sand. Out in front was water just as far as he could see. Back of him was what looked much like the Old Pasture at home. In the distance he could see the houses of those two-legged creatures called men.

But Danny didn't stop to do much looking. He wanted a drink and he wanted it right away. Just a little way from where he was he saw a little puddle of water. He looked anxiously this way and that way, but saw no one to be fraid of. He climbed down from the airplane and ran swiftly through the coarse, stiff grass growing out of the sand, until he was close to that puddle. Then he ran out and plunged his little nose into the water. He took one good swallow and then such a wry face as he made! My, my, my, such a wry face as Danny Meadow Mouse did make! You see, that water was salt. Danny was at the seashore. He didn't know it, but that's where he was.

"Bah!" exclaimed Danny in a squeaky little voice, and ran back into the grass, for he didn't dare stay out there in the open. That taste of salt water made him even thirstier than before. "Now what shall I do?" thought Danny. "I just must have food and water. I'll go exploring."

So Danny went exploring and presently he came to a bathhouse although, of course, he didn't know it was a bathhouse. There was fresh water there, sweet, fresh water, dripping from a faucet. A very little was all Danny needed. When he had had that little he felt like a new Meadow Mouse. He crept under the bathhouse. That seemed like a very comfortable, safe place—under the bathhouse. He decided he would stay there for a while. He was filled with the spirit of adventure and, curiously enough, he never once thought of home. He didn't even wonder if he would ever get back there. He was out in the Great World once more and he wanted to see more of it.

"There must be a lot to see here," said Danny right out loud.

"There is," said a voice close to him, giving him such a start that he almost squealed aloud.

NORTH WESTCHESTER MAN FOUGHT AGAINST PROHIBITION RAIDERS

A trial that lasted all the afternoon Tuesday in the town hall at Colchester came to an end about 6 o'clock when Justice of the Peace Arthur F. Libby of this city found probable cause in the case of Joseph Haraskiewicz of North Westchester on the charges of resisting an officer and violation of the liquor law. The cases against three other accused men were dropped. These were August Haraskiewicz, Andrew Racsnicwski and George Liesniak. The bond of $1,000 which was set in the case of Joseph Haraskiewicz was furnished.

Attorney E. W. Perkins of this city prosecuted the case for the state and Attorney C. Hadlai Hull of New London appeared for the four accused men.

Testimony in the case showed that a miniature battle was waged when the men were arrested in the course of a raid for liquor on the night of Saturday, June 12, when there was a dance in the barn on the North Westchester farm of Haraskiewicz. The officers making the raid were Deputy Sheriff George Hoxie, Federal Officer Harry Avery and a sergeant and three men from the Stafford Springs barracks of the state police.

It was brought out that while one group of the officers was looking around the dance and the grounds, two of them went into the farm house. This precipitated a battle with the men who were found in the room that the officers entered and chairs tables and other moveable articles of furniture were used as weapons until windows were knocked out and the room was generally wrecked.

The officers reported finding five gallons of cider, part of a bottle of booch and 16 bottles of home brew beer. The last named, it was stated, tested three per cent alcohol.

BANKRUPTCIES IN YEAR EXCEED OLD RECORD

In the fiscal year just ended, there were more bankruptcy petitions filed at the office of the clerk of the U. S. cour in New Haven than in any of the past seven years. From July 1, 1925, to Monday there were 604 petitions filed which bested by nine petitions, the record of 597 petitions filed in 1922.

Since July 1, 1898, when the national bankruptcy act took from the probate courts the power to accept petitions, there have been 5,153 petitions filed here giving an average of 291 a year.

The figures since 1919 show that 208 petitions were filed in that year, 247 in 1920, $40 in 1921, 597 in 1922, 555 in 1923, 460 in 1924, 524 in 1925 and 604 for the fiscal year just passed.

During the first six months of this year, January with 70 and June with 69 petitions set individual records for one month's business and during the fiscal year just passed there were 296 petitions filed in the first half of the year and 308 in the second half.

In June, 1837, the first national bankruptcy act was passed and until 1878 all bankrupts were governed by these laws which in June of the latter year were repealed to give the powers of bankruptcy courts to courts of probate. In 1898 the national government again took over the bankruptcy courts and they are still operated in conjunction with the district court in this district.

There will be band concerts to enliven the occasion and numerous other events to give enjoyment to the men attending.

BELIEVE HEART ATTACK OVERCAME MISS COTTON

Picked up unconscious after a fall from a horse at Camp Farwell, Wells River, Vt., Monday, Miss Millicent M. Cotton, 17, formerly a resident of Pawtucket for several years, died without the exact cause being determined. Her relatives in Pawtucket and Providence were notified by telephone.

Miss Cotton, who graduated from Norwich Free Academy at Norwich, Conn., last month and was to have entered Wheaton college in the fall, had been at the summer camp since its opening July 1. She was an athletic young woman and had ridden horses for the past three years. It was her second year at Camp Farwell.

Information telephoned to her relatives in this state was that no marks were found on her body and it was believed that from the fall she suffered either a fainting spell or a heart attack. She did not regain consciousness.

She was born in Neveda, Mo., daughter of Millicent R. (Leete) and the late William M. Cotton, Jr. The family later moved to Pawtucket, where Miss Cotton was a pupil at Pawtucket high school before the home was moved to Taftville Conn. She was a granddaughter of William M. Cotton, in charge of the supply department of the Providence Journal company, and one of the company's oldest employes in point of service.

LEDYARD PROHIBITIONISTS ARE SHOWING ACTIVITY

There were received at the office of the secretary of state at Hartford Tuesday three papers signed by 75 residents of the town of Ledyard, including Gales Ferry, asking that the names of persons nominated by the prohibition party be printed on the official ballot of the state at the state election in November. The names were written on three pages. Attached to each paper is a certificate, signed by Former Senator William I. Allen, the town clerk of Ledyard, and which states that the names appear on the list of voters of the town. The filing of these lists of names is taken as evidence of the activity of the prohibition party in the eastern part of the state.

RESCUED FROM DROWNING IN LANTERN HILL POND

Mrs. Henrietta Abell, 23, wife of Boatswain Raymond F. Abell of the United States coast guard, stationed at New London, was rescued from drowning Sunday afternoon at Long pond, Lantern Hill, and is now a patient in the hospital at New London with congestion of the lungs. The woman was saved by quick work on the part of Matthew Paciera and Thomas Weir of Mystic and George D. Johnson, manager of the Mystic telephone exchange.

Mrs. Abell was a member of a picnic party staying at Lantern Hill for the day. She had been in the water but a short while when Mrs. Florence Brown, standing on shore, saw her head sink beneath the surface. Mrs. Abell, who had been seized with cramps, was unable to make any outcry, but Mrs. Brown observing her distress, cried out for help. Several young men answered her call. Paciera immediately dived into the pond. Swimming under water, he reached Mrs. Abell and taking a life hold, swam back nearly to shore, when Weir went to help Paciera. Completely exhausted, Mrs. Abell lapsed into unconsciousness.

Through artificial respiration methods administered by Mr. Johnson, Mrs. Abell was kept breathing until the arrival of Dr. A. H. Meyers and Dr. Louis M. Allyn of Mystic, who reached Lantern Hill after a fast drive of seven miles. The physicians took further steps to restore consciousness, after which Mrs. Abell was removed to the Lawrence hospital in New London. At the hospital it was found that she was suffering from congestion of the lungs, but her condition was reported favorable Wednesday.

AGGIES HAD BETTER SEASON THAN ANTICIPATED

(Special to the Bulletin)

STORRS, Conn July 6—The Connecticut Aggie baseball team, which before the present season got underway was doped the weakest nine in the history of the Nutmeg institution, has finished its schedule with a record of even victories and seven defeats.

Such a record is in no way outstanding so far as the number of games won and lost are concerned, but before the season and record made by the Aggie nine of this spring has surprised and pleased its most optimistic followers.

For the Aggie club was one of the very few nines to turn back the strong Tufts outfit this year and in addition it defeated Connecticut's old rival, the Massachusetts Aggies, Maine, Colby, Clark, Trinity twice and secured an even break with Rhode Island in a two-game series. A record like this is a surprise at Storrs, especially when conditions such as Coach Dole had to work under this spring are considered.

Dole lost the nucleaus of last year's team by graduation and Captain Seymour was lost from this year's nine because of illness. Wardle, regular backstop also left school at the college at mid-year, and when Dole sounded the call for the first practice only a handful of veterans were present. He had been forced to shift his men throughout the season in an effort to find the best combination and necessary as it was, it did not help team play.

Despite these handicaps and lack of experience, the Aggies put up a good fight on the ball and won more than half their games. The undergraduate men playing on the team gained much valuable experience, and another year should find them good varsity timber.

The summary:

Connecticut 7, Brown 10.
Connecticut 5 Tufts 3.
Connecticut 10, Trinity 7.
Connecticut 6, Clark 2.
Connecticut 4, Springfield 5.
Connecticut 6, Rhode Island 10.

SUZANNE HATES TO BE SCOLDED BY COMMITTEES

LONDON, July 6.—(AP)—Suzanne Lenglen is "just a sensitive girl" who might have been spared recent unpleasant incidents at Wimbledon if the tennis committee had been made up of students of the psychology of young ladies, the French star today said just before leaving for Paris.

Discussing the events of June 23 when she failed to play her scheduled matches and the Queen of England and large crowd waited in the stands Mlle. Lenglen explained her point of view. She said that at first she was willing to play in her doubles match but, that after being scolded for not appearing for singles match of which she knew nothing, she was too excited and upset to play at all.

"If only the committee were students of the psychology of young ladies," she said, "they would have told me to play my doubles and then scolded me when play was over, provided they did not take the course which—treating me as an ordinary competitor—they might correctly have taken that is of scratching my name.

"People came to such false conclusions about my actions and some very unkind things were said about me which were utterly undeserved. For, after all, I am just a sensitive girl who tried to do my best in every difficult circumstances."

MCTIGUE FILES CHALLENGE TO PAUL BERLENBACH

NEW YORK July 6.—(AP)—Mike McTigue today took advantage of the favorable impression he made in decisely outpunting Johnny Risko of Cleveland here last week by filing a light heavyweight challenge against Paul Berlenbach, to whom he lost the crown a year ago.

The state athletic commission deferred action pending the outcome of Berlenbach a title battle next week with Jack Delaney, of Bridgeport Conn.

The board ordered Sid Terris New York lightweight, to fulfill a 10 round lightweight engagement with Phil McGraw at the Polo grounds Friday night. Medical reports indicated his fitness to undertake the match despite Terris' plea of physical disability, the commission announced.

The bout will be staged as the semi final to a welterweight championship fight between Pete Latzo, defending titleholder and George Levino of New York.

SUSIE HAS EXCITING TIME IN CELEBRATING FOURTH OF JULY

The grand and glorious Fourth left lasting impression, both mentally and physically, on Susie and the boy friend and she writes about it as follows:

Dear Sports Ed.: I don't know who first got the idea of celebrating the Fourth of July, the anniversary of our nation's divorce from the rule of a king, with firecrackers and other hellish devices for making noise. Whoever did was loose in the attic and some of them what celebrates is looser, myself inclusive. When a nother Fourth of July comes round there's one girl what's going to be in a foreign country where there ain't no firecrackers. Now Ed. I don't want you to think I ain't in favor of celebrating independence 'cause I'm a strong believer in it and I show mine occassionally. But when it comes to celebrating it in an insane and unsafe manner I draws the line. I suppose you wonder what's hit me to ramble on like this but I have good 'cause being one of them innercent victims of a nation's foolishness. I'll tell you what has set me agin firecrackers, roaming and skyrockets.

It being the Fourth of July and as nice a day as you could ask the boy friend calls up early in the morning and asks me did I have an engagement for the day and when I tells he is first in line he says lets celebrate the Fourth in the good old-fashioned way. Not being so old as some what was born before the Civil war I don't know just what he means so I says I ain't much on them antiques but if he says it's all right and proper I'll take a chance. He says he'll be round to the house in about a hour so I gets busy and feeds and gets all dolled up in my white flannel suit and vagabond hat and I looks like a regular sheba but before many hours I wished I had been dressed in a asbestos suit instead of flannel. When a girl gets a dumb boy friend she better shake him 'cause if she don't it's a ten to one bet she'll decorate one of them white iron beds in some nice quiet hospital or there'll be a flock of her friends passing by and saying how natural she looks and she ain't going to be in no position to answer back. You'll see what I mean before I get through.

Well in about an hour the boy friend drives up in front of the house and in the car is a lot of boxes and sticks and everything all in red and yellow paper. I is kinda surprised thinking how we might be going to some parade where he could stand and wave flags and say hurrah as the soldiers passed and have a swell time but it ain't for your's truly. The boy friend climbs outa the hack and greets me in his usual affectionery way slapping a dirty crack on the back and saying well kid we is sure going to make the neighbors sit up and take notice today. I don't get him and says is we going to a parades and he says parades nothing we is going to celebrate the birth of a nation but believe me before it was over it was more like a wake, instead of a christening. Well when he unloads that hack I finds he musta bought the bankrupt stock of some fireworks company they was much stuff. Ma and Pa comes out and take a look and Ma throws up her hands and says "My Gawd, there ain't going to be no peace in this house today." Ma was about right, too. Pa don't say nothing but I notice he ain't doing no cheering neither not yet registering any emotion of pleasure, as they say in the movies.

Little brother Willie is the only one what seems pleased for he forgets Ma is around and says "Gee, ain't we goin' to have a hell of a time." Believe me Ed. that kid did sure spout words of truth when he said them few words. As for me I don't say much but I has a sneaking feeling that little Susie has got something coming to her but I won't realize the half of it.

Well the boy says we'll celebrate by shooting off the firecrackers and he undoes some red packages. Right there is where he muffs an easy one and runs up the works. Willie says I'll help you and they both goes to it. The boy shoots off a couple big ones what sounds like the city department doing some blasting while Willie shoots the little fellers what goes "plop." By and by the boy comes over and says come on Susie why don't you shoot some? Now I ain't chicken hearted nor nothing so I says sure and the boy pulls out a couple firecrackers and gives them to me, I lights one and it gets going so fast I has to throw it and not caring much where it goes either. Well, I just closes my eyes and waits for the bang but all there is is a kinda swish and all of a sudden I see the boy friend hopping up and down and doing a Houdini act trying to get out of his coat. All the time he is saying something what sounds like "Susie, ya damm fool why doncha look what ya doin'." It seems that when I showed that fire cracker it landed in his pocket along with a lotta others and the boy friend was having a celebration all by himself. Finally he gets his coat off and stamps on it puttin' out the fire but the coat is ruined. Willie is laughing like he would split and I that don't make no hit with the boy.

The boy says to Willie, "You get outa here and go shoot your crackers somewhere else."

Now that don't please Willie none but he says "Gimme a coupla packs of crackers and I'll go round in back." Well the kid tosses him a coupla packs and the kid beats it and we hears him firing 'em off out back of the house. By and by we hears a popping and it keeps coming nearer and nearer and the first we knows one of the neighbors dogs comes tearing around the house like the devils was after him and a streak of fire shooting behind him. Willie had tied a pack of firecrackes to his tail. Well that animal don't use no judgment in picking his route and he plows right through that heap of roaming candles, sky-rockets, bombs and firecrackers and everything, before the boy friend could head him off.

Well I sees what's coming and I beats a retreat, but I ain't fast enough. I gets almost to the door of the house before things start popping when swish and something tears past me goes right into the house through the front door what's open. I trips and falls on the top step and there is I right in the middle of a battle what made that argument over in France look like a primary class Sunday school picnic. Something hits me were I sat and I feels something what is more than warm and I tries to get up and run but one of the skyrockets hits me in the knees and down I goes, white flannel suit and vagabond hat and all. Out the corner of my eye I sees Ma coming to the door to see what's up and before I can holler to her a roaming candle lets loose and she beats a hasty retreat but not before one of them fiery things lands in her hair and burns a hole in her new switch. Pa enters the battle about this time and he gets greeted with a big bomb what goes off right under his feet and rips his pants and he don't stay to see no more.

Well I manages to crawl around the corner of the house to safety and there is Willie laughing his fool head off and I forgets I is a lady and gives him a kick right where his pants fits the tightest. Then I goes and looks around the corner of the house to see what's going on. At first glance the street is deserted but by and by I sees the boy friend over in back of a tree but he didn't get off clean, there is a couple holes in his pants and his shirt is torned and his face is all black. A automobile what was going by at the time is resting comfortably up against a tree and the driver is under the car looking out between the wheels. Pa is somewhere inside the house bellering for somebody to get the fire department and I can hear Ma upstairs splashing water on her head where that roaming candle lit.

As for me I feels something warm around my body and I looks down and finds my white flannel suit is smoldering in several places. I trys to beat the fire out with my hands and then I realizes it ain't no time for modesty and I starts peeling off, running for the woodshed all the while. By the time I reaches that shed I musta looked like an add for lingerie that you see in the magazines. I gets inside the shed and slams the door and takes account of my wounds. I has got a coupla blisters on tender places and my hands is also blistered and there is a lot of other things that ain't right with me.

While I is in the shed the fire department comes and puts out the blazing front curtains and a few other blazes what's started in the house from them skyrockets and roaming candles. Well everything is quieted down pretty and I hollers to Ma and she brings me but some clothes and some iodine and salve and I goes in. The boy friend ain't around there no more Pa having chased him home without no ceremony.

The house is a wreck, a couple windows broke, a big hole burned in the front hall carpet, the curtains in the parlor all burned up besides a coupla holes in the parlor walls with rockets sticking out of them. Pa is hobbling around with one foot done up in bandages like he's got the gout. Ma has a towel wound around her head and is saying that she's got to get a boyish bob and as for me I is a total and complete wreck. It's hard for me to sit down and it's harder to stand up.

Now Ed. do you wonder why I ain't strong for them Fourth of July fireworks. I ain't seen the boy friend yet but if he feels like I do and I guess he does for the last time I seen him he weren't in no condition to go to no party. Maybe Willie ain't sore too but from a different cause. Pa wields a mean hairbrush if you ask little Willie.

Hope you had a good Fourth.

Your's in misery,

SUSIE.

POWER CO. TEAM WINS FOURTH STRAIGHT GAME

The Eastern Conn. Power company won their fourth straight game in the twilight league Wednesday evening, defeating the Warriors in a snappy contest, 4 to 1.

The game was exceptionally free from the heavy hitting which has been present in the majority of the games so far this season, there being but seven hits made in all, four by the E. C. P. and three by the Warriors.

The Warriors put up a good exhibition of baseball against the league leaders, but their inability to hit in the pinches and Jim Shea's wildness lost them the decision.

Tommy Simcox pitched for the E. C. P. and was never really in danger. He allowed three scattered hits in the six innings he was on the mound and Jim Shea, although touched for only 4 hits, issued six passes and hit one batter and lost the game through his wildness rather than any heavy hitting attack by the power boys. Couture who relieved Shea blanked the Power team in the last two innings and fanned four.

After a scoreless first inning, the Warriors broke into the scoring column first, when they scored their only run in the second inning. With one out, Couture was hit by a pitched ball. Couture tried for second a moment later, and when Smith dropped Cormier's throw, he was safe.

Fitzgerald popped out to second, but Kampf came through with a sharp single to left which scored Couture. Outside of this inning the Warriors were helpless before Simcox, only one other man reaching third in the remainder of the game. With two out Bill Burns doubled in the third and went to third on a passed ball, but remained there when Jab Burns went out to second.

The Power team likewise scored all their runs in one inning, pushing across four tallies in the third frame. Simcox led off by drawing a pass. He went to second on a passed ball, and when Hamel threw wild on Cimikoski's grounder to third, Simcox went to third and Cimmy to second. Smith scored both with a single to left, and took second on the throw-in to the plate. Whitney was hit by Shea, and both he and Cimikoski advanced a base on a passed ball. Dugas fanned, but Murphy scored both runners with a single left. He was caught however when he tried to stretch the hit into a double. Fitzgerald to Hamel to Couture. Both Green and Hull walked but Cormier closed the inning with a strikeout. The score:

Moosup Wins Series

On Sunday last the Moosup Town Team scored their second win over the fast Anthony team thereby capturing the series with two straight wins. The Moosup boys hit the ball hard garnering 18 safeties for a total of 31 bases. The game was a one sided one until the eighth when Anthony tallied four times tying the score. The Connecticut boys however, came right back in the ninth when a base on balls to Young followed by French's triple and Pechie's single accounted for two runs.

The particular features of the game were a double play by Ainsworth, Frechette and Pechie, Young's homer in the seventh with two men on and the heavy hitting of Kendricks, Pechie, Frechette and French. The score:

CANDIDATES FOR KAPLAN'S TITLE ARE NUMEROUS

NEW YORK, July 6.—(AP)—Louis (Kid) Kaplan's withdrawal as featherweight boxing champion of the world leaves a vacancy that may be hard to fill.

Another championship tournament such as took place a year ago last winter is likely to be the outcome and the eligibles are numerous. Babe Herman, of California, Bobby Garcia of Camp Holabird, Md., Danny Kramer of Philadelphia, Jose Lombardo of Panama, Red Chapman of Boston, Benny Bass of Philadelphia and Mike Dundee of Rock Island, Ill. are the leading candidates.

Kramer, Lombardo and Garcia have fallen before the Meriden "Buzzsaw," Garcia having suffered a technical knockout recently at Hartford. Kaplan encountered Lombardo in the second round of the tournament which gave him the title, the Panamanian going down in four rounds, and he stopped Kramer in the seventh round of the final.

Dundee and Herman appear in the tournament only as alternatives although many critics insisted they were among the best of featherweights. Herman has proved the real thorn in Kaplan's path, having fought him several times without either having a large margin. Their battle at Waterbury, Conn., last summer, was declared a draw.

It has been known for some time that Kaplan could make the 126-pound limit with difficulty, but relinquishment of the title gave him an opportunity, but experts say he will be unable to show his old form at 126 pounds.

Chairman James A. Dicks of the state athletic commission said tonight the matter of another tournament probably will come before the board at its regular meeting Friday.

"In my opinion such a tournament would be too long drawn out for the fans to enjoy," he said. "Without having had time to give the matter consideration I would say that Kid Chapman, who has been denied the chance at the title a couple of times, is entitled to the opportunity.

"Chapman and Kaplan had been scheduled to fight this summer, and I think that if we could get a new contender and pit him against Chapman the problem might be solved."

MORE RECORDS ARE SMASHED IN PHILADELPHIA A. A. U. DECATHLON MEET

PHILADELPHIA, July 6.—(AP)—The sensational attack upon time and distance begun in the battle for individual athletic titles was brought to a smashing climax today when two world's relay records were toppled in the concluding heat of the National Senior A. A. U. track and field championships.

By far the most spectacular individual contribution to this climax was made by Lloyd Hahn, stout-limbed Boston A. A. runner, who raced his anchor half mile in the astonishing time of 1:51 1-5—a full second better than the world's record—to carry his club to a record breaking victory in the two mile relay.

Hahn who won the national mile title yesterday on a watery track in 4:16, finished like a sprinter to enable his team to register a new world's mark of 7 minutes, 41 4-10 seconds and beat the crack New York A. C. quartet. This eclipsed the former world' srecord of 7:42, set in 1925 by Georgetown university.

Incidentally three members of the famous Georgetown quartet—Swinburne, Marsters and Hollis—carried the New York A. C. colors today in a vain effort to beat the Boston fliers. Leness the fourth New York anchorman, was ten yards back of Hahn at the tape. Hahn's mates were three college stars—Sansone of Canisius, Welsh of Boston college and Martino of Dartmouth.

The quarter mile relay record was slashed three times before the Newark Athletic club's sprinters, in the final heat, lowered it to 41 4-10 seconds. This eclipsed the listed world's record 42 4-10, set by the New York A. C. 1921 as well as the American mark of 41 9-10 seconds, made last year by Southern California.

The New York A. C. set the record-breaking pace by winning the first trial heat in 42 seconds flat but this lasted only until the Newark quartet came flying through the second heat in 41 7-10, then sliced another tenth of a second off this in beating the New Yorkers in the final by four yards.

The same Newark runners—Bowman, Marwood, Cummins and Clarke—registered a double victory when they won the half mile relay in 1:27 8-10, time which fell short of the world's record by only four-tenths of a second.

Championship records fell in the two remaining relays with the Illinois Athletic club's runners accounting for both. They set a one-mile mark of 3:17 1-5 and a new four-mile standard in 17:54.

This four mile victory, in which Ray Dodge outran his New York A. C. rival, Willie Goodwin, in the final leg, enabled the Illinois Athletic club to tie the New Yorkers in the two day team battle for points. Each finished with 45 points but an official ruling gives the team trophy to the Illinois A. C. for the coming year because it tallied the most first places, five, as compared with only three for the New Yorkers.

The New York A. C. lost all five of the clubs relay titles it won last year. The best the Mercury footers could do was finish second in the quarter mile, two mile and four mile races and third in the one-mile and half mile events.

Besides the club relays, five races for distinct A. A. U. associations were held, with the metropolitan association scoring walk-overs in the mile, two mile and four mile events, winning the quarter mile race from the Niagara association and losing the half mile test to the latter district.

Other club points totals for the two days were: Hollywood A. C., 35; Chicago A. A., 19; Newark A. C., 18; Los Angeles A. C., 17; Boston A. A., 16; Olympic club, San Francisco, 9.

Today's records, made on a track still soggy from rains, will have a better fate then the four track marks set yesterday, all of which will be discarded because the quarter mile oval, on re-measurement today, was found to be four yards too long on the inside and 13 yards too long on the outside. The performances registered in the face of this as well as the wet track stand out as all the more remarkable but the technicality will keep them from being officially recognized. They included the records made in the three mile walk, six mile run, half mile and 120 yard hurdles.

TWILIGHT LEAGUE MANAGERS TO BE ON CARPET AT MEETING THURSDAY

Many a good sporting proposition during the past has been wrecked by various kinds of scandal which have started by a word or two out of the way or some slight violation of a rule. For three years Norwich has enjoyed the privilege of twilight baseball and although there have been some small disagreements the various teams have pulled together quite well.

Now it seems as if there is serious trouble in the winds and according to a report being circulated before the week is over several of the teams will be accused of seriously violating the rules which they so honestly agreed to abide by at the beginning of the season. During the past few weeks several of the managers have been watching the others quite closely and although they suspected them of crooked work as they call it, it was not until the beginning of this week that they really got enough on them to bring the matter before the league officers and demand that a league meeting be called immediately.

Of what the guilty teams will be accused of is being kept well under cover. Not even the slightest rumor is being whispered as to what the trouble may be, the only thing being known is that President Harry Mills has called a special meeting of the twilight league managers for Thursday night. Only one representative from each team and one representative from the Duwell club, sponsors of the league, will be allowed to attend and a hot session will be enjoyed by all. Why all the secrecy as to the trouble and why the meeting is limited to only eight men is more or less a mystery. The only probable explanation being that any trouble will be kept from the public as much as possible.

Whatever the trouble may be, it is hoped that the league will not be made to suffer as trouble at this stage of the season might prove disastrous. It would be really too bad should anything happen as the teams are all playing good clean ball now after a rather bad start. While the real cause of the special meeting is not known, another subject which probably will be discussed is umpires. Although both Oney and Morin have tried their hardest to please everyone, it seems as if some are dissatisfied and that there will be several complaints entered against them at the meeting. While there may be some objections it is almost certain that the majority will stick by both of these men as they both have tried to be square and although they may have slipped up occasionally, are doing as well as any big league umpires could do under the conditions. It must be remembered that at every game these two men must please two crowds. Every night there really are two home teams playing and it would be a real good man that could send away both sides smiling.

No doubt the fans of the city will await with interest the outcome of the meeting to be held on Thursday night and will all hope that the outcome will not be too severe although any team guilty of seriously violating the rules of the league should be punished.

Tonight's Game

With the league in its fourth week the games being played over at the Duwell field are beginning to get real exciting, as has been proved by the last four games played, the outcome of each game being undecided until the last man had been called out. The Warriors, the junior team of the league, although not winning many games, are giving the other teams some hard goes as was proven last night when they held the league leaders to a close and exciting game which ended with a four to one score in favor of the Power Co. boys.

The game tonight between the East Ends and the Bon Ton Colored Stars should prove to be another fast game as both of these teams have won one and lost two games and have strengthened up considerably lately. The Bon Ton team which defeated the Yantic A. A. last week is a team which now will make the fastest in the league exert themselves to the limit. Yantic until last week was tied for first place with the E. C. P. and their game with these colored boys proved a real setback. The Bon Ton's team is composed of boys from Norwich, New London, Westerly and Willimantic.

The East Ends to date have not played the ball that they are capable of but according to their manager, Harry Mills, tonight's game will be the beginning of a long winning streak which will end only after the pennant is safely tucked away. Owing to the fact that both teams have strengthened up considerably during the past week the lineups were not exactly known last night.

BUDDIES WIN THEIR SIXTH STRAIGHT GAME

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, July 6.—The Buddies beat the Paco team 11 to 8 in a twilight league game tonight for their sixth consecutive win. Lambert opened up the fire in the first with a double followed by Blakely with a single and after the next two batters had struck out Gale brought them in with a triple and scored himself on an error. The scoring continued in the second when timely hitting netted them six more runs. The Paco batmen found Lagace in the fourth when a walk, four hits, a homer by Taylor, who knocked it over centerfield fence, and an error netted them five runs. The Paco threatened again in the fifth but the rally was shortlived when it ended after two runs were scored. Lambert of the Buddies led the batting and scoring, getting four hits, three for two bases and scoring three runs. Lagace struck out eight batsmen, while the Buddies were gathering 13 hits and Taylor struck out six batsmen while his teammates gathered eight hits. The score:

CHRYSLER "70"

Supreme Performance -Sensational Values-

Chrysler "70" Reduced $50 to $200 Unchanged except in price

Today's Chrysler "70"—changed in no way except new lower prices which save you $50 to $200—is more than ever the car of world-wide preference.

We knew that the Chrysler "70" would sweep its way to pre-eminence, but we did not anticipate the tide of public favor which makes possible these sensational values.

Long lived; characteristic Chrysler beauty; designed to meet today's traffic needs; roomy for comfort and luxury; easiest to handle; flashing pick-up; 70 miles plus; safe—

Little wonder that none of its more than a hundred thousand owners who have enjoyed uninterrupted satisfaction from their Chrysler "70's" for thousands upon thousands of miles, will ever willingly go back to the less modern type of cars.

We are eager to prove to you why the Chrysler "70" with its savings of $50 to $200—the identical car whose performance and endurance have won such universal preference—is beyond all doubt the preferred motor car investment at these lower prices in its class.

	New Prices	Savings

The Road

My way is a winding road,
A road that wanders yet turns not back,
Where one should go with no light load
As well may be in a traveler's pack;
A road that rambles through marsh and wood,
Meadow and waste to the cloudy end;
But smooth or rugged, I find it good,
For something's always around the bend.

There may be storms in the bleak defiles,
But oh, the calm of the valley's breast!
There may be toil on the upward miles
But oh, the joy of the mountain-crest.

And here's a thistle and there's a rose
And next—whatever the road may send;
For onward ribbons the way I chose,
With something always around the bend.

"A noonday halt at a crystal well,
A word and smile with a passing friend,
A song to sing and a tale to tell,
And something coming around the bend!"

—Arthur Guiterman in "Ballads of Old New York."

Poppies in the Wheat

Along Ancona's hills the shimmering heat
A tropic tide of air, with ebb and flow
Bathes all the fields of wheat until they glow
Like flashing seas of green, which toss and beat
Around the vines. The poppies lithe and fleet
Seem running, fiery torchmen, to and fro
To mark the shore. The farmer does not know
That they are there. He walks with heavy feet,
Counting the bread and wine by autumn's gain.
But I—I smile to think that days remain
Perhaps to me in which, though bread be sweet
No more, and red wine warm my blood in vain,
I shall be glad remembering how the fleet,
Lithe poppies ran like torchmen with the wheat.

—Helen Fiske Jackson.

In order the better to enjoy a breakfast of water lilies that happen to be below the surface of shallow lakes the moose has learned the trick of "plugging" his ears—which are immersed for half a minute or more at a time. Having much greater use of the muscles in this respect than the human, the moose simply folds back the outer integument so that it acts as a stopper over the sensitive inner ear.

At the Roechling Steel Works in Volklingen, Germany, artificial diamonds are being made with some degree of economic success. The diamonds are within a fraction of the hardness of true diamonds, being 9.9, as compared with 10 for genuine stones. The artificial gems are made of an alloy of wolframite and cormpara in powder and luster favorably with genuine diamonds. The cost of manufacturing them is said to be reasonable on a commercial scale.

Milton McMillan, geologist saw a swarm of bees entering a small aperture in the wall of a canyon near Anaheim, Cal. He set off a dynamite charge expecting to uncover a honey cache. Instead he blasted into a tomb containing a well-preserved human skeleton and other objects of archaeological interest. In a clay jar, hermetically sealed, were thousands of vegetable seeds. On many of the largest there were hieroglyphics, presumably carved by members of an early race.

France, as well as America, has a "melting pot" trouble, and views certain classes of immigrants with disquiet. At a recent meeting of the Society of Comparative Pathology, the perils of uncontrolled immigration were set forth by M. Berillon. He said that there are at present 3,000,000 foreigners in France of whom two-thirds are to be regarded as assimilable into the French nation. The other third, comprising elements of German, Slavonic and Semitic races, he believes to be unadapted for French citizenship.

NORWICH WOMAN DRIVER FREED FROM CHARGE OF NEW LONDON MAN

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 6—State Police Officer Bernard Kenerson, of Groton barracks, yesterday investigated the complaint, made to the New London police by James Follon, of 355 Bank street, that the driver of an automobile bearing Connecticut registration, X-7173, which is registered in the name of Mrs. George Magowan, 14 Starr street, Norwich, had been guilty of evasion of responsibility and that he desired the arrest of the driver. Follon stated that he was struck by the automobile while on Bank street and that the driver failed to stop. When Officer Henerson went to the residence of Mrs. Magowan yesterday afternoon he was informed by Mrs. Magowan that the automobile was not in New London yesterday.

BODY OF G. W. STANSFIELD NOT YET RECOVERED

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 6—No trace of the body of Gilbert Wayne Stansfield, 28, of Monson, Mass., who was drowned off Pleasure Beach Saturday afternoon, has been found, although summer residents of the beach are maintaining a lookout for it. It is believed that Stansfield either suffered an attack of cramps or acute indigestion.

Bill James, an electrician on the convoy Bushnell, a vessel of the United States navy, must answer for the injury he caused William Kirby, of Waterford, when the latter was run down on Bank street, opposite the Capitol theatre, Monday night by the Ford coupe which James was driving or at least which he was attempting to operate. Mr. Kirby, over 60, sustained a fracture of the skull when the Ford mounted the sidewalk and ran him down. It was fortunate for Policeman Thomas Lyden that he, too, was not hit by the James car. He was forced to jump into a doorway to escape. Policeman Lyden saw the auto come upon the sidewalk so he ducked to a doorway. He did not stay there any longer than was necessary for he had Mr. James under arrest in a few seconds. Then Mr. Lyden turned his attention to the injured man, Kirby, and calling the police speed car he sent him to the hospital, where he must remain for a considerable number of days. James was in the police court this morning, but to proceed with his trial the presence of Kirby was necessary, but his condition would not permit his leaving the hospital. James was held in a bond of $1,000 for appearance on the 12th inst. He provided the bail.

James and the owner of the automobile, Frank Jefferson, of 67 Montauk avenue, drove to Suffield Monday to visit, but James did not care to remain so he drove the car back to New London, reaching here early last evening. He came along all right as far as State and Bank street, where he met a trolley car coming from the opposite direction. This confused him and James lost his head, as he put it, and his coupe mounted the sidewalk. It hit a bicyclist first and then kept on and struck Mr. Kirby. The charges against James is operating a car recklessly and the operation of a car without having a license to do so. James claims he is the possessor of a license entitling him to operate an auto in the Canal Zone, and that he supposed he was entitled to drive such in New London, as he is in the service of the government.

Thomas Gentile was charged with offensive conduct, in attempting to entice a child into a bathhouse. There was a disposition on the part of the parents of the child to regard Gentile as a fellow mentally not right, but a talk with him by the prosecutor and inquiry from others led to the abandonment of that notion. No particular harm was occasioned by the conduct of Gentile, so the case was polled, on payment of $10 by the accused.

The case against Arthur Page which was scheduled for today, was again continued, it going over till the 12th inst. Page is the man who ran down the fire department apparatus of which Chief Rose was an occupant. Rose was thrown out and sustained a broken leg. He has since been in the hospital and today was unable to appear.

Cases against two residents of the city for violation of the parking ordinances were presented, but suspended judgment was the result.

In two cases of intoxication, judgment was suspended also.

An automobile owned and driven by Alfred B. Thetonia, Whitman, Mass., knocked down Prescott Evelyn, 13, of 12 Richards street, on Main street, near Hill street, last night. Miss Alice Murphy, 21, of 313 Montauk avenue, was found injured at the corner of Montauk avenue and Perry street last night and was removed to Lawrence hospital. There it was found that she was suffering from abrasions of the nose and chin. It is believed that the young woman was either struck by an automobile or fell from a machine.

J., and Miss Lucy Kellogg, Mystic, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were discharged over the holiday.

Charles Smith of 570 Main street, made complaint to the police this afternoon that a bullet was fired through a window of his plumbing establishment, 570 Main street, last night. Ralph Little, United States Coast Guard sailor, state pier, made complaint to the police this morning that his Ford automobile was stolen from the pier last night.

Patrolman George Gockell, in making his rounds at Ocean Beach last night discovered a fire hazard in the rear of property, corner of Midway place and Bentley avenue. A large pile of refuse and of a highly inflammable material has been deposited on the property and located close to cottages, so that should the refuse become ignited, the property in the vicinity would be damaged. The matter was turned over to Acting Fire Chief Thomas Shipman.

CITY COUNCIL DECIDES TO PROCEED AGAINST B.-B. CLUB

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 6—The session of the city council this evening was a short one, but considerable business was transacted. The matter of alleged encroachment upon land of the city on Pequot avenue by the Pequot Bath and Beach club was taken up and disposed of by the adoption of a vote prepared by the director of law directing commencement of proceedings and taking legal steps deemed necessary to protect the city's rights in the matter and to secure the removal of any and all buildings that are an encroachment. Councilor Woodruff voted in opposition to the adoption of the vote. He explained his action in so voting. He said he was not ready to enter into a prosecution at this time and pointed out that some of the parties interested in the matter were among the payers of the largest taxes in the city and would continue to be such taxpayers. They were instrumental in securing Riverside park for the city and were not exploiting the land, but proposed to occupy it for their own use. Mr. Woodruff said he believed there was a middle ground on which the council could proceed and that there should in his opinion be a give-and-take attitude in regard to this question. That would be his method of dealing with the matter rather than to enter upon a long-drawn-out lawsuit. The council voted to refund to Messrs Lucius E. Whiton and to James D. Lynch money which they had paid in taxes for the land they had occupied and then to proceed about the recovery of the land in question and the maintenance of Pequot avenue to the full width designated in the survey by which the city was proceeding.

Councilor Whiton asked that the report of the attorney for the Bath and Beach club should be made a part of the record of the proceedings of the council That was not opposed and the record will contain such report.

City Manager Holt reported on the matter of the petition of residents of Walden avenue for the laying of sidewalks and the putting of the highway in proper condition. He explained that there was no money appropriated for the work, but said that it could be provided for in the next budget. Councilor Scott moved and the council so directed, that the city manager should take up the matter of providing for this improvement in the budget next to be prepared.

James E. Sullivan sent a communication as lieutenant of police to the city manager asking that the section at Ocean Beach, which was an extension of Holt avenue to Bentley avenue be designated as a street. He said that prosecutions in the police court of late for violation of the parking ordinance or the state motor vehicle laws made it imperative that this section be designated by a name. The matter was referred to the committee on public works that a name might be suggested to the council and by the latter body be adopted

Raymond Darrow gave notice of a claim for damages for injuries sustained by his daughter, Dorothy Helen, from a fall the 25th of July last on Hope street The child has been in the hospital since and her injury has caused a considerable outlay for surgical and hospital treatment. The claim was referred to the director of law.

The city was invited to send a representative to the dedication of a memorial provided through the generosity of Col. H. R Green. The invitation was through Harry Nellan, a member of the committee, and pointed out that New London in 1858 had whaling ships sailing from this port. The industry was now practically extinct but the memorial was fitting tribute to the industry and he desired that New London should be represented. Councilor May moved that Mayor Fox should be the representative, but the mayor suggested that the councilor should extend his vote so that it would provide for the payment of the expenses of the representative.

Mayor Fox, when a letter was read from J. P. T. Armstrong protesting against the presence of representatives of the Passaic, N. J., strikers on streets of this city soliciting funds, that the city might move to put a stop to the solicitation of money through hiding behind a few shoe laces or something of the sort. Mr. Armstrong pointed out that the Community Chest assured the public that there would be no more solicitation of money for charity in the public streets. The letter and the remarks of the mayor were recorded that they may be taken up at some future time.

Nine applications for building and repairs were granted.

The second step toward obtaining a return to municipal form of government, the form operating the city of New London prior to the present form of city manager government being adopted, five years ago, will take place tomorrow evening when a mass meeting of those interested in the endeavor to abolish the present government will be held, in the hall of Loyal Order of Moose, Main street. The meeting has been called by a member of a committee, formed among the circulators of the petition, and will be called to order at 8 o'clock. Just what the meeting will develop it is not known, but it is believed that the speakers will endeavor to show where in the present form of government has not functioned in the economical manner which it was stated would be the case and that the expenses of the city now exceed by approximately $400,000 that of Former Mayor E. Frank Morgan, during whose regime the change in government was made. Mayor Morgan's arministration was during war time prices. The petition now has, it is said, over 2,400 signatures. The number of bonafide signatures to make it mandatory for the calling of the special election is 2,160. The circulators state that a check-up of the signatures make it impossible for more than 50 or 75 of the signatures to be declared invalid, principally because their names do not appear on the city's check list. The petition will, it is stated, be filed at the office of the city clerk within the next 48 hours. The city clerk will then make a check-up of the signatures to determine their validity and it will then go to the city council, probably at the next meeting, which will take place next Monday, but whether the date of the special election will be fixed at that meeting cannot be foretold.

The police this evening received a report that there was an automobile parked beside the highway near the city line, Gallows lane and it carried Connecticut registration, X-7854. The registration, it was found, was issued to Edwin L. Gray, Thames View, Waterford, and as the auto had been bewas believed that the auto had been side the highway the entire day, it stolen and then abandoned. Motorcycle Officer Augustus Ray and Patrolman Frank Philopens were sent to where the car was and ascertained that Gray, who is the manager of the Thames Lumber company, experienced trouble with the car this morning while on his way to work. He then operated the car off the side of the road and proceeded afoot to his employment. This evening he was successful in making repairs and was about to drive the auto to his home when the officer appeared.

A youth residing on Vauxhall street made a nuisance of himself this afternoon and so much so that he was arrested by Motorcycle Officer George McCasker. The boy, who is but 13, and without parents as both his father and mother died within a few years, resides with relatives. Today he started to amuse himself by hurling firecrackers to the veranda of neighboring homes and when remonstrated with for his acts, continued to discharge the firecrackers more frequently. He was given a severe reprimand and then sent to his home.

Marice Rouff, of Waterford, reported to the police this afternoon that on his way to his home and when between Stations 5 and 6, Waterford, he found a lady' shandbag which contained papers valuable only to the owner. It was later learned that the bag was the property of Mabel Guilbord, of Black Point. She was notified of the recovery of the bag and will claim it tomorrow at the police station.

New London

With seven building permits issued by the council last Monday night, the total for the month was brought up to 52. Although this number exceeds the average number of permits for a month, it is not considered a large number for June, one of the best building months of the year. No major projects are seen in the past month's permits, a large number being for additions and alterations while a normal amount of new houses, mostly cottages for single families, are starting.

ANOTHER RALLY CHECKED IN STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, July 6.—(By The A. P.)—Heavy realising sales and sporadic bear selling checked another promising rally in today's stock market, which was featured by the establishment of a new high record for all time at 151 1-8 by the present no par common stock on the General Motors Corporation. Final quotations disclosed considerable irregularity, but both the rail and industrial averages closed slightly lower. Trading was only moderate in volume, the day's aggregating 1,287,000 shares, as compared with 1,401,000 on Friday.

Banks called about $25,000,000 or $30,000,000 in loans, incidental to month end adjustments, but the call money rate held steady at 4 1-2 per cent. The principal business news of the day was a general reduction in automobile tire prices. Foreign news interest centered largely in the further collapse of Belgian francs to a new low record around 2 1-2 cents, and the beginning of discussions of the new tax and debt proposals by the French chamber of deputies.

There was nothing in the day's news to explain the further advance in General Motors, although Wall street coindently expects another generous dividend distribution at the directors' meeting this month. The stock closed at 149 5-8, representing a net gain of 2 1-8 points most of the other motors showed only small net changes, Mack Trucks closing 3-4 higher at 118 3-4 after after having touched 120 3-8.

Independent steel shares displayed a strong undertone with the buying influenced by the statement of President Campbell of Youngstown Sheet & Tube; that the steel business is better than had been hoped for and that indications points to a good fall. Youngstown closed 3 points higher at 82 and Bethlehem, Republic, Sloss-Sheffield also developed in U. S. Cast Iron Pipe, which crossed 210 for a net gain of more than 7 points.

Interborough Rapid Transit closed nearly 2 points higher at 42 7-8 despite the strike of some of its employes. Mathieson Alkali jumped 6 1-2 points to 85 but Allied Chemical dropped over a point on profit-taking. Good buying also was noted in a number of specialties. Burns Brothers issues continued their advance on reports of large earnings and net gains of 2 points or more were recorded by Continental Can, DuPont and Montana Power. Oils started upward toward the close under the leadership of Pan-American B and Mariand.

Profit taking sales brought about recessions of a point or more in such issues as Chesepeake & Ohio, New York Central, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, Brooklyn Union Gas, Detroit Edison, Standard Milling and Reid Ice Cream.

A sharp rally in wheat featured the commodities markets, the July option closing over 2 cents higher at $1.26. U.S. Cotton advanced about 18 to 25 points on reports of unfavorable weather and boll weevil damage. Raw sugar was unchanged but futures were slightly firmer. Coffee futures advanced 23 to 33 points in sympathy with a firmer spot market.

Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchanges were heavy. Demand sterling ruled 1-16 of a cent lower around $4.85 15-16 and French francs were again quoted under 2.70 cents. Belgian francs recovered about half of their extreme loss, closing around 2.56 cents.

282 Connecticut Men Enrolled

A notice from First Corps Area headquarters to Colonel Charles Gerhardt of Hartford in regard to enrollment for the citizen's military training camps shows that up to July 1, the applications of 282 Connecticut men had been accepted. The quota for the state is 648. Massachusetts is the only one of the New England states which has its quota filled at the present time, 2,264 applications having been accepted while the quota was 1,826.

The enrollment for the individual camps is in every case close to or above the quota. Camp Devens, the largest one, has an enrollment of 1,516 and a quota of 1,550. The other camps in New England are Fort Ethan Allen, Fort McKinley, Fort Adams and Fort Terry.

For Operations in Boston

Mrs. Harry Pecan of East Great Plain left Norwich Tuesday morning with her little daughter, Betty, to enter the children's hospital in Boston where Betty is to be operated on by a noted orthopedic surgeon. The child has congenital malformed dislocated hips and is to undergo two operations, the first to set the hips in position and the second, in a few months, to set the hips. Mrs. Pecan is to remain at the hospital with her daughter until the child is permitted to return to Norwich.

STUDIO AT OLD LYME DESTROYED BY FIRE

The studio of Artist E. Gregory Smith, at Old Lyme was destroyed by fire Sunday morning about 7 o'clock. The family was asleep when the fire was discovered by W. H. Paxton, employed by W. H. Foote, whose residence is nearby. The call for the volunteer department was given and it responded immediately, but the building was ablaze when the engine arrived.

The work of the firemen saved the dwelling house. The studio was connected to it by a lattice. Mr. Smith has lost his work of the past 16 years which included two large pictures which were just framed for the Lyme Art exhibition. The origin of the fire is unknown as no one had been in the studio after Mr. Brown left it Saturday noon.

PIMPLES ITCHED AND BURNED

Over Face, Arms and Body. Cuticura Healed.

"Pimples broke out on my face, arms, and all over my body. They were large and red and later formed water blisters which caused me to scratch. The pimples itched and burned so that I could not sleep at night or rest during the day. Scratching made them very sore and they would scab over.

"I tried a number of different remedies but they were no good. I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and after using four boxes of Cuticura Ointment, together with the Cuticura Soap, I was completely healed." (Signed) Miss Hattie Small, Box 102, Jonesboro, Me., March 22, 1926.

Use Cuticura for all toilet purposes.

Soap 25c. Ointment 25 and 50c. Talcum 25c. Sold everywhere. Sample each free by address: Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. X, Malden, Mass.

CLAIM APPROPRIATIONS WERE NOT ENOUGH FOR CITY DEPARTMENTS; MUST ASK FOR MORE MONEY LATER

Aldermen and councilmen serving on the police, fire and public works committees came out strongly at the meeting of the court of common council Tuesday evening and stated that there is not the slightest doubt but that it will be necessary to resort to overdrafts during the current year due to the cuts in the budget at the last city meeting.

May Lay Off Policemen.

The discussion of the subject came up following the transaction of the regular business at the meeting, Alderman Patrick F. Sweeney, the first speaker, stating that this was the time to discuss the subject. Speaking for the police department, he said, although I know that other departments are in the same fix, there is not enough money appropriated to go ahead through the year. If there is not sufficient money and overdrafts are necessary we are certain to be criticized, he said. One way money could be saved would be to drop the insurance on the patrol wagon, this costing $188 a year, but this would be only a small saving. Evidently the people at the meeting did not stop to consider that the finance committee had already cut down the appropriation to a minimum and did not care whether or not we were forced to lay off one of our regular officers for a year because of lack of funds.

At this point Mayor Waters stated that the budget had been cut down as close as possible by the finance committee and that the members of the council knew that overdrafts would become necessary. However, he said, let's not drop the insurance for I know of one case alone where it saved the city $400 and there are other cases in addition to this. I would suggest going ahead, said Mayor Waters, then, when it becomes necessary for overdrafts, go to the people in a special meeting for additional appropriations.

Short For Street Repairs.

Alderman Henry Gebrath, speaking for the department of public works, stated that $2,000 was cut from the ordinary street expenses after the finance committee had already cut it once. The appropriation for West Thames street was voted down and our ordinary repair account shaved $2,000, yet it is absolutely necessary for us to repair this street, between the trolley tracks and for two feet on either side, for the street is in a deplorable condition. That $2,000 would have done this work, he said, and seeing that the state has laid cement in Trading Cove, the city must repair West Thames street if it is to hold up its head. There are evidently some poor economists in Norwich, he said, but overdraft or not, these streets must be repaired.

Fire Department.

Councilman William H. Aldrich, speaking for the fire department, said that the appropriation was cut by the finance committee, then slashed at the city meeting and there is no answer for it. The sidewalk at the Greeneville station must be laid, he said, and the station needs painting badly. Coal this year is costing $1.30 more per ton than it did last year. Last year, he said, we added three fire boxes, but we cannot do it this year. Monday we had a wreck with Engine No. 1 and that will cost money. There has been but one overdraft in the fire department in 25 years, he said, and we don't want to begin overdrawing now.

Mayor Blames Council Members.

At this point Mayor Waters took the members of the council to task for not coming out with these facts at the city meeting, stating that it was now too late to talk of the cuts. We are up against it, he said, but in a sense the blame rests on the members of the various committees.

Councilman Quinley stated that he was not aware that when the police cut came it affected the department more than the extra asked for extra patrolmen and repairs at the station. He was not aware that the appropriation was needed.

Alderman Gebrath then stated that the people at the meeting were out to cut and the members of the council could have talked their heads off without doing any good.

Councilman Dr. Clarence G. Thompson then suggested that things be allowed to go as they are for the present and that a meeting be called later to ask for more money when needed.

That is the only solution to the problem, said Mayor Waters.

There was no further discussion and adjournment was taken at 8.43 o'clock.

The business session of the council started at 8:17 o'clock when the body was called to order by Mayor Milo R. Waters. Routine business was transacted following which the sheriff's original notice of payment for Orchard street, Mowry avenue and Oakridge street sewer assessments was read and placed on file.

Petitions received were for the removal of a tree at 285 North Main street, referred to the public works committee with power; that two lights be installed on Yerrington avenue and that electric lights be installed on the Fox Hill road to Palmer street and the city line, both referred to police committee with power, and one that Golden street extension be accepted as a city street, referred to the public works committee.

The regular reports were then read and accepted, motions being made that they take their usual course. In the case of the 25th annual report of Chief Howard L. Stanton, it was voted that 550 copies be printed for distribution.

Alderman Henry Gebrath reported that all residents of Garfield avenue had not yet been seen relative to the street being accepted. The report was accepted as one of progress.

Resolutions adopted included the following: That Mayor Milo R. Waters, Alderman Patrick F. Sweeney and Councilman Clarence G. Thompson be appointed to sign the 1926 rate bill of the city; that Mayor Waters be empowered to apply to the selectmen of Colchester for the discontinuance of portions of land on the Scott Hill Meeting House road to the borough of Colchester, and a portion of highway 4,850 feet in length be discontinued to make room for the Deep River reservoir and that Mayor Waters be empowered to apply to the selectmen of Colchester for the discontinuance of said property, and that the election of F. H. Quinley as president of the board of water commissioners, at a salary of $500 per year, be approved.

One claim was presented, this coming from Earl L. Rollinson, for injuries sustained May 29th from a fall on Main street near the Discs building, when he suffered a wrenched ankle and broken bone in the right leg.

Department Bills.

Bills read and taking the usual course were as follows: G. & E. dept., $29,953.35; Deep River, $176,943.43; Water dept., $6,478.30; recreation committee, $6.19; Park dept., $628.97; Fire dept., $6,289.25; Police dept., $6,021.54; street lighting, $1,821.91; cemeteries, $1,646.12; finance, $8,266.79; public works, $20,581.78.

Chief Stanton's Recommendations.

In his 25th annual report of the fire department, made Tuesday night to the court of common council, Chief Howard L. Stanton made a number of suggestions, his statement being as follows:

I again renew my recommendation for a new station for Engine No. 5 as the old station is not worth repairing owing to its location. This station should be located at the top of West Main street hill and should be a double station to provide for the future.

I also recommend the purchase of a light city-size truck to respond to all alarms where it is not necessary to send the aerial truck. This truck could be located in Station No. 3 but would work to better advantage to locate it on the West Side in a new station as recommended. Should an accident occur to the aerial truck there is no later truck to respond. As recommended in former reports the need of new fire alarm boxes is very well known, and a special appropriation should be made to purchase at least 10 a year until all old Pony boxes purchased 50 years ago are replaced and a suitable number installed in new locations. Boxes in the business district are too wide spaced and more should be installed in resident sections and in new developments.

With the closing of this, my 25th annual report, I cannot resist the opportunity of making some comparisons. On July 1, 1901, there were 11 volunteer organizations in the city, in run down condition, with hand-drawn apparatus and a few hired horses for engines. There were no permanent men and the department did not own horses, all hose was drawn to fires on hand-drawn hose carriages.

After passing through the horse-drawn apparatus era the department is fully motorized with most modern apparatus with 38 permanent men and two call men to each company, or a force of 50 men with an organization that compares favorably with larger cities.
